Canadian farmers are facing their greatest challenge in history. Dr. George Dewar, provincial minister of education, told the delegates of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture last night as they attended a provincial assembly at the Charlottetown Hotel.

On his recent tour to South America, Dewar said he found that with over half of the world's population in that area, "it is a matter of life or death for survival, on agriculture."

By NEIL MATHESON
A controversial tariff resolution that threatened to split the Canadian Federation of Agriculture meeting down the centre yesterday morning passed with only a dissenting voice in mid-afternoon when the delegates from across the nation accepted unanimously a recorded motion that eliminated the controversial phase of the request.

Embarked on an attempt to win the Carol Lane award for highway safety for the second straight year, the ladies of the Marshfield Women's Institute have adopted a farm vehicle identification device for safe travel on the highway. It was endorsed here yesterday by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture at its afternoon session.

Development of a major education program to train present and future Canadian fishermen in modern fishery techniques was the central theme Wednesday at the federal-provincial fisheries conference.

The greatest value of the provincial resources development program is "the organization of rural groups and the development of an incentive to encourage their own problems and act accordingly, and to build up a realization of the tremendous potential of their own land for community development," Premier Walter R. Shaw said.
