Turks Support British Claim To Island of Cyprus

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr. Associated Press News Analyst

Britain apparently will have the support of Turkey, third most interested party, when the question of the ownership of Cyprus comes before the United Nations at the meeting beginning next week.

Publicly, Turkey has been playing a restrained role in the dispute between the Greek-descended Cypriots and Greece on one side, and Britain on the other. Public demonstrations on the subject have been banned.

Turkey has two prime interests. About one-fifth of the island's half million population is Moslem, primarily of Turkish extraction but including other Middle, Eastern strains. The majority is Greek Orthodox, and primarily of Greek extraction.

But the major problem is strategic, and that also is the angle which preoccupies the British. Communism has made important inroads among the people of Cyprus. Several of its communities have local Communist, regimes and Reds have great power if not complete control among the trades unions.

Britain and Turkey both fear that if the principle of self-determination were applied, as Greece is asking, the Communists would vote for Greece and then proceed to stage a coup with Greece, 500 miles away, would be unable to prevent. This would put the island, which lies directly across Turkey's communication line with the West, in enemy hands.

Britain has said she is not even going to consider moving out of Cyprus now, but has not made this Communist angle a specific and official reason.

The self-determination movement seems to be a combination of genuine Greek feeling for union and the desire of the Communists to create as much trouble as they can among the three NATO partners in the eastern Mediterranean and in operation of the Greek-Turkish-Yugoslav pact. The Greek government probably is aware of this, and is acting primarily under pressure from its domestic chauvinists supported by Greek Communists.

The island has no value as a naval base due to lack of adequate harbors, and in the light of Sir Winston Churchill's statement that the hydrogen bomb had made the Suez position of doubtful value, would seem of little value.

At any rate, with Turkish support of the British position, it seems unlikely that the Greek claim will get anywhere at this session.

Blood Stream Used to Combat Rheumatic, Arthritic Pain; No Pills

Penetrant Dilates Capillaries, Flows Fresh Oxygen-Rich Blood Through Affected Areas

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. This new method applies, for the first time, a well-known medical principle of pain relief to a product now readily available to Canadians for home use. The discovery literally calls upon the blood stream to bathe away pains of rheumatism, arthritis, and InfracRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

Sold under the brand name "InfracRUB," this new cream is odorless and greaseless. InfracRUB has the unusual ability to penetrate the "skin barrier"—go to work to relieve pain deep down in sore muscles and joints. The bloodstream carries the soothing medication right to the seat of trouble where it actually helps drive away pain-causing congestion and pressure. Users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Another feature of this new product that appeals to many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary. InfracRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfracRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

InfracRUB is now sold at all drug counters. No prescription is necessary.

In a recent film about Joan of Arc the movie makers got over this weighty problem by dressing the actress who played the title part in a suit of armour made of aluminum. Result: shooting, including scenes showing Joan mounting her horse, proceeded on schedule.
