BEHIND SECURITY SCREEN

Gay Princess Dances At Ottawa Party Until 3 A.M.

By CAROLYN WILLET
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — A gay Princess Margaret, tucked behind a security screen that headed off initial attempts to learn whether she renewed her acquaintance with handsome Montrealer John Turner, danced until 3 a.m. Sunday at a Government House party.

It was determined, however, that the 27-year-old princess danced several times with Mr. Turner, 29-year-old bachelor whom she met last weekend in Vancouver at a ball given by British Columbia's Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, Turner's stepfather. Her hour-long chat with Turner at that ball caused considerable comment.

Mr. Turner also joined the princess at her table during Governor-General Massey's dinner dance in the red-and-gold-curtained ballroom.

100 GUESTS
About 100 guests, from the Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Quebec City areas, attended the semi-formal party. The guest list was not made public, but it was learned that Mr. Turner was a late addition to it.

One reporter from the press corps was allowed a few peeks from vantage points in the first half hour of the dance.

But once the first dozen guests were through the reception line and seated and the princess had danced the opening dance with Lionel Masey the governor-general's secretary, the party was over for the reporter and three photographers.

LOW-CUT GOWN
During a similar affair when the Queen was here last fall, a lone woman reporter was allowed to "peek" at the party all evening from a hidden vantage point inside the ballroom overlooking the ballroom floor.

Last night, out of camera and pencil range, the princess, well-tanned and stunning in a low-cut, floor-length gown of white tulle and black polka dots with a large black bow at the back of a billowing skirt, first danced to her favorite tune—I Could Have Danced All Night.

The tune — from Broadway's popular My Fair Lady—was repeated several times during the evening.

The music chosen for the evening—quick fox trots and plenty of South American rhythms—was as brisk as the fast-moving reception line that moved guests past the princess and Mr. Massey into the ballroom.

MANY PARTNERS
A five-course dinner was served interspersed with dances for which the princess had half a dozen other partners as well as Mr. Turner.

The Governor-General, who would customarily have been his guest's first dancing partner, sat watching as the princess danced with his son. His right arm was held in a sling to relieve an inflamed shoulder.

In the huge, chandelier-centred ballroom, round tables for eight — with pink and white carnations as centre pieces—formed a semi-circle around the dance floor.

Princess Margaret sat at the centre table at the far end of the ballroom, facing the orchestra,

Six Major Drug Firms In U.S. Charged With Price-Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government Saturday charged six major United States drug companies with fixing the prices of wonder drugs at arbitrary, artificial, non-competitive and rigid levels.

The action, one of the most important anti-monopoly complaints ever drafted by the Federal Trade Commission, climaxed a two-year study of the antibiotics industry.

Industry spokesmen denied the commission's charges. The outcome of the case could affect the medical bills of millions. According to one estimate cited by the commission, Americans spent $750,000,000 on miracle drugs in 1957.

The commission said the six accused firms have an absolute monopoly in sales of tetracycline drugs which include aureomycin, tetracycline and chlortetracycline.

LARGEST IN SALES
The agency said the tetracyclines are the largest selling antibiotics by dollar volume. Developed within the last 10 years, they are called broad spectrum drugs because they attack a wide range of disease-breeding microbes.

Those accused of conspiracy to monopolize the wonder drug industry are:

Charles Pfizer and Company American Cyanamid Company, Bristol-Myers Company, and Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation, Bristol Laboratories, Inc., and the Upjohn Company.

The commission action is aimed at ceasing and desisting orders requiring the companies to stop the alleged price fixing. Commission complaints never call for punitive action and are civil rather than criminal in nature.

TWO SELL 47 P.C.
Cyanamid and Pfizer accounted for more than 47 per cent of all sales of antibiotics in 1956, the most recent year for which statistics were cited in the commission's study.

Cyanamid manufactures drugs through its Lederle Laboratories division. Olin Mathieson pharmaceuticals are made by its E. R. Squibb and Sons division. Bristol-Myers and Bristol Laboratories are under a single management.

The companies have 30 days in which to answer the complaint.
