Of Special Interest to our Farmers

Sheep on Poor Land.

J. C. Marshall in Practical Farmer writes. When we moved to this farm four teen years ago, we found much of it rocky, hilly and run down; and having been told that high poor land was just the place for sheep, we concluded to give them a trial. We have found them to be the most gentle money-making animals that we ever had. We keep thirty ewes, divided into two flocks, and let them run on some old run-down fields in the summer. In the winter we feed them half a pint of oats, or less than that of shelled corn, once a day, and all the hay or corn fodder twice a day that they will eat up clean. I think that ten sheep will eat about as much hay as one horse. We have our lambs to come in April, just when the grass is getting green which insures plenty of milk from the ewes also plenty of herbage for the little lambs to nibble at, which they will commence to do when they are only a few days old. They thrive right along until November and weigh about 80 pounds each, and sell for 50 c. a pound.
Now we can sell our lambs for $4 each, with only the ewes to feed over winter and make each ewe raise a lamb. We have $4 clear profit on each ewe, if the wool will pay for her wintering. And if it pays us farmers to feed our grain into hogs and sell them for three cents a pound, why will it not pay to feed our lambs and sell them for 5 cents which is the same as shippers pay for poultry.

The most brutal treatment of sheep consists in leaving them out in the cold rains of autumn, winter and spring until they are wet through to the skin. If my sheep do not come to the stable from a storm or cold rain I go out and call or drive them in. I keep my sheep so tame that they all run towards me as soon as I enter the field and call them. Formerly I lost every year by dogs, but I have remedied this by putting a bell on every third sheep; also by having the sheep so they can come to the barn when they get chased. My sheep always run for the stables when the dogs attack them so that I can chase the dog with a gun. The bells make a noise, but I cannot say why it is exactly, but I have had no sheep killed by dogs since I put so many bells on them.

It takes great care at lambing time to see that lambs get milk soon after they drop. A ewe will often not own her lamb at first, but if caught and held a few times she is all right. A lamb will often seem so weak at first that it will make but little effort to get milk, when, if the ewe is held for the lamb it will live. I am careful at lambing not to let a lamb be dropped on the snow, but let the sheep eat their feed and lie in the stable till noon: even then I will not turn the sheep out into a snowy field if I am expecting lambs, without watching them very closely. I keep a ewe that has lambed, by herself a day or two, when if the lamb then appears strong, it will be able to follow the rest of the flock.

Use the Roller.

The competent and successful manager of J. S. Sanborn's Elmwood farm at East Poland, Me., where enough hay or its equivalent is produced to feed 150 horses and colts, is a strong advocate of the roller. We have often urged the use of this implement on the readers of The Union as we have long been satisfied that it should be the first thing to follow the breaking Drugs are expensive. Sometimes they are more expensive than need be.

And sometimes they are not so reliable as they ought to be.

There was a time when the prices of drugs were away up—too high altogether.

That is not the case now. The Apothecaries

You can get all my reliable special plow on sod land. It packs the slice down so the sod will rot sooner, does much toward pulverizing the soil by crushing the mass and leaves the surface level so that a common harrow will do more work the first time over than it would in going over two or three times with the roller having been used. It may profitably be used in place of the harrow in crushing the lumps for preparing a seedbed, and packing the soil down over the seed is one of the most important parts of the work of seeding.

Where the soil is mellow the surface can be smoothed with a bush but this does not take the place of the roller in crushing lumps or packing the soil about the seed. Its only benefit is in leveling the surface for convenience in harvesting the next crop, and if the bush is used to cover small seeds that do not require deep planting, the roller should follow it unless the soil is too wet to be worked. One objection to the roller is that it makes the surface so fine that a portion of the soil will blow away. Another is that on clay soil it packs the surface so closely that the seeds cannot send their shoots up through it. Judgment must be used in all cases and all operations and the size or weight of the roller gauged for the soil it is to be used on. The idea that plowing and harrowing are done to make the soil light and loose which will mix and pulverize without regard to their lightening effect are being adopted. The roller will crush lumps when the brush would only roll them along.

recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Weary of Experimenting

With salves, suppositories and ointments and dreading a surgical operation, scores and hundreds have turned to Dr. A. W. Chase's ointment and found it an absolute cure for piles.

The first application brings relief from the terrible itching, and it is very seldom that more than one box is required to effect a permanent cure.

Perfect Health.

Few human beings are in a state of natural, perfect health. The little ills that bother many of us are often overlooked, on account of their smallness. But these little ills grow—the more you neglect them the harder they are to shake off. Stamp them out, now, and prevent their return by the daily use of Abbey's Effervescent Salt.

Its efficacy as a preventive and cure for many of the prevalent ills is testified to by many eminent physicians in Europe and Canada. Medical journals of prominence speak highly of it.

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Journal says:

"We have tried Abbey's Effervescent Salt, and find it an excellent compound.
It was most favorably commented upon by the medical profession at the meeting in Montreal of the British Medical Association. The Company was not afraid of submitting it to the criticism of medical men. All were invited to sample and pass judgment on it. This was invariably favorable, some expressing the opinion that it was superior in points to any other on the market. A morning draught of this stimulating preparation will send a man to his daily occupation invigorated and ready for any task."
