

Y.M.C.A. Announce Staff Appointment

The Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors announce the appointment of Mr. Wm. (Bill) Kingston, a native of Saskatoon, Sask., to the program staff of the Association.

Mr. Kingston, accompanied by Mrs. Kingston and small daughter Jane, arrived in the city on Wednesday and has commenced his work at the Y. Mr. Kingston was born in Winnipeg in 1926 and grew up in Saskatoon where he was a member of the Y. M. C. A. for 15 years serving as member of the Leaders' Corps and chairing many committees including the first So-Ed program in Saskatchewan. After service in the Navy during the war, he entered the University of Saskatchewan.

He has lately been employed as Physical Director of Calgary Y. M. C. A. and has conducted swimming and water safety programs for the Kiwanis Club of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, where he supervised their swimming pool. In 1947-48 he was instructor at the R. C. M. P. pool in Depot Division, Regina.

He is greatly interested in swimming and physical education as well as general Y. M. C. A. program. He is qualified as examiner for the Y. M. C. A. Red Cross and Royal Lifesaving Society.

Mr. Kingston has visited Charlottetown during his Navy service, when the frigate "Victoriaville" was in port. Mr. Kingston and family will reside on North River Road in an apartment in the new Warren residence.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN JOSEPH MONTEITH
1952 — September — 1953

No one knows how much I miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain,
I have suffered since I lost you,
Life is not the same.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear Joe
I do not think of you.

Masses being held.

Lovingly Remembered by Your Wife, Margaret.

AVONLEA W. I.

ground, and Tom and Felice came behind her. They were talking, and Aymer, reminded by the discovery of the revolver, regretted that they had forgotten to bring their own weapons in the haste of departure. "Something must have laid Benny Boss out," he said, "but, after the passing of half a century, that something ought to be dead itself." "Unless it was some saurian—some huge toad or lizard that lives for ages," suggested Pardo. "I'm thinking of what might have happened," he continued. "If Benny got his treasure and was coming back with it, then, assuming some wild animal robbed him of his life, it wouldn't have robbed him of his hoard, and the hoard might have sunk into the sand and be quite close to his bones. The bones themselves tell you something. They are not scattered or knocked about. You might expect that any huge beast would have smashed him after it had killed him, but nothing of that sort happened. He just died here and has remained here ever since, while his body and his clothes—even his boots—were all turned to dust and blown away." As Pardo spoke the horror came, and they saw Jane stumble and fall. She stood opposite one of the grey, cavernous cones in the rock and hastening to her, they saw that rope-like filaments ran out from it into the gorge, and that she had caught her feet in them and been brought down. She laughed as they approached and made to rise, but then her arms were caught and the strands of the net proved beyond her power to break.

"Cut me out of this tangle, Tom," she said. "I ought to have jumped over it, as Angus did, but thought it was only lichen. It's tough and sticky and I can't get out." He ran forward, bringing out his knife, then suddenly stood stock still as though frozen. From the grey cavern something suddenly and silently came. It was a black jump of a creature that looked like a gigantic gorilla advancing on all fours; but, though it had shining red eyes as large as motor lamps, the creature possessed no face, and not upon all fours it went, but upon eight legs. It towered above them and crept leisurely towards Jane. To be continued
