800 Children Welcome Santa In Summerside

On Saturday afternoon Santa Claus arrived in Summerside and about 800 delighted children were on hand to welcome him. The rain and snow which fell during the afternoon did not dampen the enthusiasm of the crowd of children which surrounded the roped off area where Santa was due to arrive, and windows on both sides of the street adjacent to this area were lined with children and adults.

Preceded by a sound truck playing "Here Comes Santa Claus", a tractor drawn float carried the big gaily painted sleigh and reindeer and old Santa who, dressed in raincoat and with umbrella, stood waving and acknowledging the cheers of the children. Upon dismounting from the big sleigh, and to the tune of lovely music played on an accordion he gaily danced and sang his way from the street to the big throne awaiting him on the second floor toyland at Holmans, where to the great delight of both children and parents who could get close enough to see, he did another little dance and told all the children how glad he was to be back again to see them all.

Enthusiasm was at a high pitch among the children, as one by one, under the control and guidance of the store staff they helped past old Santa for a friendly word from the jolly old fellow who had an apple and a colored book of stories and puzzles for each and every one of them. Store staff members within Toyland were kept busy directing traffic and occasionally had to help a harried mother who found it difficult to carry a child in her arms and guide other little ones around in the dense crowd awaiting to visit Santa.

Fathers also present in good numbers, were not without their difficulties in helping the wee ones to see Santa, and one father with two little boys braved the guidance of parents and children by carrying one in each of his arms. At one point in the afternoon Santa paused from his task to survey the crowd still awaiting a personal visit with him, and delighted at the large number still awaiting a treat did another little dance for the crowd, and went back to his work of greeting the little children, because, as he told them many times on Saturday, "old Santa doesn't want to miss a single little boy or girl."

Nurses Participate

The second part of the course was presented by Miss Muriel Archibald, R.N., Secretary-Registrar of the Association of Nurses of P. E. I., who, while discussing the law, and practice of nursing emphasized the value of the Association to the nurse and told how nursing service and nursing standards have been improved individually as well as collectively. Miss Archibald also dealt with the relationship of hospitals and nurses with respect to the patient. Following a discussion on law, and the practice of nursing, films were shown on social work in B. C., and the evening session was brought to a close with the showing of a film on A. B. C. warfare. Laboratory Tests

The third day of the program was held at the Charlottetown Hospital. Part I on Laboratory Tests, chaired by Miss Bernice Haughey, R.N., was conducted by Sister St. Hugh, Laboratory Technician of the Charlottetown Hospital, and Sister M. Irene, R. N., Instructor of Nurses.

Sister M. Irene explained the functions of different organs of the body while Sr. St. Hugh discussed the various Laboratory tests which may be done on these organs, giving the normal values together with the findings in different diseases. Sister expressed especially the necessity of nurses being alert and of the importance of avoiding mistakes which could be made if the specimens were carelessly labelled or not sent to Laboratory in proper condition.

can you bring down the mortars closer?" "Good Joe," said the colonel ("who calls everyone 'Joe'"). "I didn't really expect anything less from you. Sure, we'll bring down the mortars."

Heavy Mortar Fire Forty-five hundred mortar bombs were fired during the night—at a rate of 700 in 20 minutes at one time. They burst so close to the U. N. outpost that they spit mud into the defenders' faces. Though the fight was at hand-grenade range—even close enough for one Red to wrest a U.N. rifle—the Chinese could not penetrate this U. N. platoon's newly-regained position.

However, while the conflict raged, that part of the hill had become a no-man's land, and daylight made it impossible to dig in. The platoon was withdrawn slightly, a matter of yards only, to a slight rise where shell holes could easily be improved into temporary trenches. There the platoon stayed.

SHILL In Action

By Bill Boss Canadian Press Staff Writer WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 25—(CP)—United Nations troops tonight held firm to a vital ridge-top position west of Imjin despite three days of almost-incessant attack by Chinese. Reds in massed battalion strength, after a daylight assault, resumed their assault today. He was beaten back repeatedly from the west's barbed-wire barricades by hand-to-hand fighting, artillery and mortar fire.

After dusk tonight, snow fell in the hilly battle area where the temperature has been consistently below freezing.

(Censorship) apparently would not let Boss identify the U. N. troops involved. Details he was able to cable from the front indicated this action was a continuation of one he reported Saturday. He was allowed to say then that the U. N. troops involved were from the U. N. 22nd Regiment, a famed French-Canadian unit under Lt.-Col. J. A. Dextraze of Montreal.

The Communists are entrenched on a peak to which the ridge rises east of the U. N. troops. But friendly forces now are firmly on another peak at the ridge's western extremity.

(Saturday Boss said Chinese capture of the eastern peak had allowed the Reds to step up their artillery and mortar barrages and the scale of their infantry attacks.)

Defenders Snatch Sleep

The defenders slept three to five hours today—their first break in 72 hours. It boosted their spirits and as night fell they were ready for more attacks.

Saturday night one position was lost briefly. Scouts and snipers won it back. During the night they beat off four Red counter-attacks, one by as many as 300 Chinese.

Once their corporal refused point-blank to obey the colonel's order to withdraw. "No, sir," he radioed. "We can take a bit more. We'll sit it out."

Keen Interest In Schurmans School Parade

The usual Schurman School Parade programme, which was heard on Friday night, was an extremely full one and the contestants who appeared on the talent part presented a programme that was indeed pleasing to listen to. The contestants who offered number in vocal solos, piano solos, reading and public speaking were from the Central Bedeque, Sherbrooke, St. Eleanors and Kensington schools and did an exceptionally fine job with their presentation. In the inter-scholastic quiz the competition was keen and the questions in some cases were difficult, but the students answered some questions that would certainly stump the adult. The first quiz of the evening brought the St. Mary's Academy and Kensington School together and after four rounds of play the score was a tie. The fifth and final round broke the tie as the St. Mary's team came through without missing a question while the Kensington School team missed three and lost the contest by a score of 16 to 13.

On the winning team Patricia MacNeill, Geraldine Noonan, Katherine Praught, Shirley Gallant, and Marie Peters were the scholars while the Kensington School team was made up of Jean Murray, James MacLean, Gail Darrach, Peg Pengergast and Joan Bonness.

The St. Mary's Academy then took on the Air Vice Marshal Johnstone School and because the programme was nearing its time limit, only two rounds between these two teams was heard on the air. However, the play continued off the air and at the end of four rounds of play the St. Mary's Academy again emerged victorious with a final score of 15 against 12 for their rivals. The hard fighting Air Vice Marshal Johnstone School was represented by Brenda Orchard, Gary Cooling, Richard Brown, Sheena McGibbon and Shirley Burns. Shirley Burns was the only contestant for the entire evening to have a perfect score.

The dollars for scholars question was selected from hundreds sent in by school children throughout the Island and the lucky winner was Loranda Gallant of the St. Mary's Academy and strange enough Katherine Praught from the same school held the lucky number but could not answer the question and received $2.50 while her air partner collected $7.50.

Schurmans School Parade is heard each Friday night and is a public service feature of the M. F. Schurman Co. Ltd.
