of Ruby Violet Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Alphonse Johnson and the late Johan Albert Johnson of Port Coquitlam, B.C. and Donald Greeley MacPhee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell MacPhee of 16

Terrace Hill St. Brantford, Ontario, and formerly of Heatherdale, P.E.I.

The Rev. D.W. Reed was the officiating clergyman. The organist was Miss Cynthia Tison of Vancouver and the soloist was Miss Ruth Salberg also of Vancouver who rendered very beautifully "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. John Strome, looked winsome in a ballerina length gown of lace over satin, fashioned on princess lines with a matching lace jacket, with lily point sleeves, her fingertip veil of lulle illusion was held by a traditional Swedish crown of myrtle leaves. She carried a bouquet of stephanitis.

The matron-of-honour, Miss Mary Tait of Port Coquitlam, was gowned in a green linen sheath with green nylon flowered overskirt with matching headband and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The flower girls were Kathryn Boisvert and Katherine Scarr. They wore matching gowns one in pink and the other in yellow. They wore flowered headbands and carried bouquets of yellow and white marigolds.

The best man was Mr. Harlie Saunders of Vancouver, B.C. Ushering the guests were Mr. Len Saunders, also of Vancouver, and Mr. Ernie Johnston of Port Coquitlam.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at 1854 Harbour St. The bride's mother received in a Dale rose satin dress with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The

Literature, History And Art Will Be Studied

The United Church of Canada's Pensions Fund for retired ministers received a grant of $60,000, today from the profits of the church's publishing house. Toronto layman J.A. Northey presided at the annual meeting of the Board of Publication where the grant was determined on the recommendation of the book steward, Rev. Dr. C.H. Dickinson.

"The United Church has not had a more completely dedicated minister", Dr. Dickinson said, referring to Dr. Lorne Pierce, editor, who retires at the end of the year. Dr. John Webster Grant will succeed him.

In his address to the board Dr. Dickinson said there is "need to make the United Church more intellectually aware of itself, its heritage of thought, of discipline and of culture."

He said that Canadian ministers, while well trained theologically and practically, have a need for more learning in the literary, historical and artistic traditions of which we are a part.

BALTIC W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Baltic W.I. met on May 4th at the home of Mrs. William Cousins. The meeting opened by singing the "Ode" and repeating the "Creed" in unison.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL GALLANT Popular Couple Wed At The Most Holy Redeemer

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday, May 4, at the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer, Charlottetown, when Catherine Marie McEwen, R.N., daughter of Mrs. Anne McEwen and the late John McEwen, formerly of Rollo Bay now of Charlottetown, became the bride of Michael Gallant, son of Mrs. Harmony Gallant and the late Harmony Gallant of Souris.

Rev. J. F. Coghlan, C. S. R. performed the marriage ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Soloist Virginia MacDougall sang "Ave Maria" and "Come, Holy Ghost." She was accompanied by the church organist, Alex MacLean.

The bride was very winsome in a two-piece dress of pale blue wool, with white sailor hat and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white and pink carnations.

Bridesmaid, Miss Grace Seaman, R.N., was gowned in a navy blue dress, and wore a navy blue sailor hat with streamers. Her corsage was also carnations.

St. Dunstan's student, John MacDonald, was best man. Immediately following the marriage ceremony, the bridal party were the guests of the Brown family at a delicious breakfast served at the Revere Hotel.

For going away the bride wore a rose wool dress topped with a navy blue duster and navy sailor hat.

On their return from a motor trip through the Maritimes, the bridal couple were pleasantly surprised when they were invited to be guests of honor at a lobster dinner tendered them by Mrs. Pauline Jackson, proprietress of the Hillside Inn, Montague. Immediate relatives of the bride and groom were also invited.

A four-tier wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and groom and encircled with roses, centred the bride's table. Last Sunday evening the happy young couple received a large number of beautiful and useful gifts during a shower held at the home of Kenneth and Mildred Fraser, Souris.

Prior to her marriage the bride was entertained at a supper and shower held at the home of one of her classmates, Jane Praught, R.N. of Charlottetown. On this occasion she was presented with many lovely gifts by fellow members of the nursing profession.

The young couple have taken up residence in Montague where the groom is employed as an accountant with the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The bride graduated from the Charlottetown Hospital's School of Nursing in 1957.

Queen Urges Youth To Improve In Mutual Trust

Queen Elizabeth II has urged the young people of the British Commonwealth to "think, speak, and act as true brothers and sisters of one another."

The Queen told them May 10 in a message marking the annual celebration of Commonwealth Youth Sunday.

"As you grow up to face the problems of a world which is darkened by fear and prejudice it will help you greatly to remember always that you are facing them as a united family, a family which stands for mutual trust instead of fear and for mutual affection instead of prejudice.

"All of you can serve that family already now and in your own homes by striving to think, speak and act as true brothers and sisters of one another and by remembering that you can never serve your neighbors as you might unless you have first done your best to serve God as you should.

"May God bless you all."

ELLEN'S DIARY

Alderlea Old Parlor Has Family Antiques

"Quaint aren't they?" Granddaughter twinkled looking up from viewing some old-time tin-types in the parlor this afternoon.

"All feathers and furbelows" we observed, fitting an extra length of "silver" to the vacuum for the higher cleaning there, even though we felt it quite out of place to pick up with it the spider holed in a high corner of the room. More seemly to capture him with a feather-duster, an old fashioned corn broom, or a goose's gray wing, than with this quick and deadly modern device.

"And clothes!" Granddaughter chuckled. "I used to wonder how they could be comfortable on these chairs. The petticoats helped."

"Wouldn't it be nice" she said wistfully "if they could step out of their pictures—so we could hear their voices and know what they were like. I guess they'd be confused with our living" she nodded.

"It would be like the song, 'We live in two different worlds, Dear' everything now is so changed from what they knew," we said.

"What would they think of cars and planes, of tractors and the great road-machines, of radio and TV and electricity, I wonder?"

We chuckled over a memory. "When the first car came to this yard it was the Doctor's, away back in the fall of 1918. We were ill then with the flu. And when we heard the strange sound in the quiet, we thought the end of the world was come! It was the strangest sound in our living of then. That same day a pair of newly-weds called at Alderlea."

"Yes?"

"They were on a honeymoon trip—driving by horse and buggy from up in Prince county down to Souris. In a strange coincidence, some years later, after a trip abroad and time spent over in the Maritimes, they lived in Souris. As a matter of fact lives there at the moment."

And she?

cemetery—brought home from the Mainland to it, one January day."

"Oh!"

We polished the ancient mantel-mirror in the ornate gilt frame—dusted the children's great-grandfather's frock-coated likeness and put it back on the wall; dusted too the chairs and the table—reset the kerosene lamp on its old-time runner of crocheted beside the best Family Bible brought in gift to James' parents from "California" in the long long ago. And came then with Granddaughter to prepare supper.

"Clams" James said, pleased with this fare "And where were they canned?"

"In Japan"

"No?"

"But yes!"

"Well, well" he smiled in surprise "doesn't that beat h'ars!"

Rain now against a window James looks up from his reading, listens.

"I'd better go" he says rising "and make sure that ewe has taken her new-born lambs into the shed."

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Hard rubbing injures woolsens and silks, so use a kneading motion when washing them.

You can clean burned baking plates and dishes by rubbing them with a cloth dipped in salt.

You can buy special water-proof paper sacks with which to line the garbage pail. These may be lifted out when full, leaving a clean pail.
