Address and Reply.

The following address was presented to Mr. Joseph A. McDonald by the ratepayers of Glenaladale School District, on the eve of his departure from that place:

To Mr. Joseph A. McDonald, Teacher of Glenaladale School.

DEAR TEACHER,—We, the inhabitants of Glenaladale School District, cannot allow you to depart from our midst without expressing our appreciation of your services in this locality.

You have proved yourself to be a true member of society, and your noble example, your modest and able manner, will be long remembered and felt an asset to us.

During the four years you have had charge of our school you have proved yourself to be a successful teacher, and the creditable condition of the school is largely due to your diligence and perseverance.

By your incessant efforts for the welfare of the pupils committed to your charge, you have endeared yourself not only to them but to their parents as well. Whilst deeply interested in the intellectual and moral education of the children, in their religious instruction, and though we regret to lose your genial presence and valuable instructions, we trust that your success in the past is but a foretaste of more glorious success in the future.

We remain, on behalf of the ratepayers of Glenaladale School District,

REPLY.

To Messrs. Angus A. McAulay, Thos. A. Dougan, John A. McDonald, Augustine McDonald, A. J. Dougan and others.

MY DEAR FRIENDS,—I can scarcely find language in which to express my thanks for the very kind and flattering address with which you have presented me. It affords me great pleasure to know that my humble services in your behalf have met your approbation; but whatever success has attended my efforts to do my duty as teacher is largely due to your hearty cooperation, without which it is impossible for the teacher to advance the intellectual and moral tone of the school.

I assure you, dear friends, that the four happy years spent in your midst will form an epoch in my life's early history which can never be effaced. I thank you for the unremitting kindness you have always shown me, and also the pupils for the warm affection and respect which they always extended towards me; and be assured that wherever Divine Providence may direct me, wherever my future lot may be cast, I can never forget the many happy days I spent in Tracadie Cross.

Again thanking you for this last kind act on the eve of my departure, I trust that, though our paths through life shall henceforth be divided, though the social ties which linked us together in the past have been severed, may we hope for many happy meetings here, and finally a happier reunion on that bright shore where parting is unknown. I remain, your sincere friend,
J. A. McDONALD.

It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best-known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. 1yr

Railways and Canals.

(The Empire.)
We understand that during the present recess of Parliament the Minister of Railways and Canals will visit all the different works which are under charge of his department, in the various provinces. His visit will be one of thorough inspection and careful enquiry into every branch of the canal and Government railway management, with a view of becoming thoroughly acquainted with every detail and every requirement of these important services. This is as it should be, for there is no department of Government where a well-informed and practical head may be of greater use to the trade and treasury of the country than in this department.

When the present minister was selected for the post, those who knew him best were not slow to express the opinion that he would prove himself one of the ablest and most practical men that Canada has had in charge of her great canals and railways. That this opinion was a safe one, his few months of office have very clearly demonstrated.

He has shown himself to have secured a thorough grasp of his duties, a broad appreciation of the wants of the public service, and a knowledge of detail that has already enabled him to make important reductions in expenditure without doing violence to the wants of the country's commerce. It is, we have no doubt, with a view to still further efficiency and still greater economy that he will make the inspection referred to. Hon. Mr. Haggart is especially fitted to make his visit to these public works of value both to Parliament and the country. He is a practical business man of long and wide experience, possesses a clear head and a resoluteness of purpose and conviction that will allow neither the specious nor the sophistical of officialdom to interfere with his better judgment or his determination to give the country a dollar's service for a dollar's pay.

Personal.
Mr. Theodore Davie, who becomes Premier of British Columbia, by succession owing to the death of Mr. Robson, the late Premier, is an Englishman, and was born in 1852. He is a lawyer, and holds the office of Attorney-General. The English are strong in the Pacific Province, and it may be mentioned as a curious fact that there is not a single native born Canadian in the Cabinet. Mr. Pooler, President of the Council, is an Englishman, as are Mr. Turner, the Financial Secretary, and Col. Baker, the Minister of Finance and Education. There is one Irishman in the Cabinet, Mr. Vernon, Chief Commissioner of Works, but, as he was educated for the Royal Engineers, he is probably quite as much of an Englishman as his colleagues.

The Rev. David Dudley Field, D. D., had a large family, four members of which reached national fame, if not more, world-wide distinction. The father was born in 1781 and lived to hear of his son Cyrus' greatest success, dying on the 15th of April, 1867. Like his more famous son, he died at Stockbridge, Mass. The eldest of his sons was his namesake, David Dudley Field, the lawyer whose learning as displayed in his "Outlines of an International Code" was acknowledged in flattering terms by some of the most distinguished jurists of Europe. As a law reformer and codifier he had few equals and no superior in his time. He was in his 34th year when, after travelling in South America, his attention was fruitfully directed to the question of telegraphy. Stephen Johnson Field, three years older, (David Dudley was fourteen years older) than Cyrus was, like David, a jurist. He spent his early years in the Levant. He was successful in adjusting conflicting claims based on difference of laws. He was made a judge of the Supreme Court of California. Henry Martin Field was, like his father, a clergyman. Like all the family, he loved travel and was the author of several books on Ireland, Egypt, Palestine, Arabia, Turkey, Greece, Japan, etc. He also wrote a history of the Irish rebellion of 1798.

To GAIN the public confidence is essential to business success, and it can only be gained by a steady course of faithful dealing with them. It is by this course that Messrs. Tuckett & Son have secured the great success of their "Myrtle Navy" tobacco. This confidence is not only a source of business to the firm, but also a source of economy which the consumers get the benefit of. The merchant never loses a moment of time in examining the quality of the tobacco. The name fixes the quality as absolutely as the mint stamp fixes the value of the guinea. It is not even necessary for the commercial traveller's trunk to be burdened with a sample of "Myrtle Navy." All his customers know what it is, and fix upon an instant when it has been supplied. There is no room for any dispute about it. No waste of time or postage in writing complaints about it. These my look like trifles to the uninitiated, but they save money, and enable merchants to perform the work of distribution at the smallest possible cost. They are part of the reasons why the finest quality of tobacco grown can be sold at so cheap a price.

STABBED.—St. John, N. B., has enjoyed several stabbing affrays of late. The first was that of a negro who was stabbed at a picnic. The last is a more serious case. On Thursday morning two men, the steward and a sailor of the bark G. S. Pinery received bad cuts in the leg. The story of the sailor is that he went to the galley door and made a request of that official. The cook answered sharply, and a quarrel ensued. Finally the steward doused the sailor with hot water and picked up his carving knife. They clinched and in the struggle both were wounded, the steward severely, having a severe cut on his leg about five inches deep. The cut extended around the inside of the leg for some distance. The sailor sustained a stab about six inches deep running around the front of the leg, but fortunately severing no arteries. The knife was a large carving very sharp, with a blade fully a foot long and about an inch broad. Both the men are now in hospital.
