Mr. Martin asked what the railway proposed to leave for the I.M.T., without competition, and the question was objected to by Mr. MacDougall. When an argument developed on the matter the chairman of the Committee requested Mr. Martin take his seat.

Mr. Gaffney said it was his task to study highway competition throughout Canada, to analyze the problems involved and to attempt to find solutions for them. He thought this Island was an ideal place in which to co-ordinate rail and highway services. He stated that the first suggestion in this respect had gone to the then president of the C.N.R., Mr. R. C. Vaughan, from Mr. B. Graham Rogers. In his letter at the time Mr. Rogers, as an individual, had suggested a sharp reversal in schedules to offer a better service.

Hon. W. E. Darby, Attorney General, who is a member of the Committee ex officio, asked Mr. Gaffney to clarify his statements re co-ordination. Mr. Darby said that he understood from the term that it would mean a type of joint operation with present existing bus facilities. However, Mr. Gaffney said he meant a co-ordination of the services which could be offered by the C.N.R.

Mr. Rogers then rose to interject a remark that his proposal had first been made in personal conversation with Mr. Vaughan who asked him to put it in writing.

Woman Attacked & Beaten on Street

Mrs. Frank Longaphie is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital suffering from shock and severe injuries about the head and shoulders, inflicted by a person unknown whom she described as "youthful in appearance", while passing along Felling Street, at 10:45 Saturday night. Mrs. Longaphie, who resides with her husband and family at 341 Euston Street, reported to the Police that she was returning home after making purchases at a nearby grocery store, and paid no attention to the young man who passed her carrying a small baseball bat. She was struck on the head and apparently was awaiting an opportune time to make his attack as the lady passed. As Mrs. Longaphie collapsed under the shower of blows inflicted, her outcries were heard by Earl Hobbs, who lives nearby, who rushed to her assistance closely followed by his father, Howard J. Hobbs and Lloyd Grant, one of whom heard running footsteps away from the scene.

The victim was carried to her home nearby, and under instructions from the doctor who was called, taken to the hospital for x-ray examination and other necessary attention, chiefly for shock. The baseball bat, believed to have been the offensive weapon used, was found at the scene of the attack. City Police are holding a thorough investigation into the incident.

Coordinated Services Mr. Gaffney went on to quote from the Provincial Government brief presented to the Royal Commission on Transport, urging the advantages of eliminating mixed bus, truck and rail services. He went on to cite the evidence given by Mr. Graham Rogers, to the effect that the Provincial Government would not object to the Railway running the buses under the motor carrier board.

Mr. Rogers stated that if he had given that evidence, he must have misunderstood the question. Mr. Gaffney: Were you director of transport for the Government at that time? Mr. Rogers: "Yes, but I certainly must have misunderstood the question. There was a mistake somewhere."

Mr. Stewart, chairman of the committee, emphasized that the committee was interested only in seeing that Prince Edward Island had good transportation service. Mr. Gaffney went on to explain that the mixed train service now in operation was not giving the people the service they were entitled to. He also showed that it was a money-losing proposition.

Mr. B. Earle MacDonald, member of the Committee and former Mayor of Charlottetown, said that the "people here are not the least bit interested in the C. N. R. losing money. Economy has nothing to do with it. The Railway wrote off a billion dollars last year. For years the Railway has been giving poor service in this Province and it takes as long to ship a washing machine by L.C.L. freight to Halifax as it takes a man and a dog to walk from Montreal."

Mr. Gaffney said his company for years had been asked to provide a service from the ends of the Island. They can do it by bus and connect with the boat train at Borden. He also said that though the company had not made any trial runs by bus they had done so over all the proposed routes by private cars. Under questioning by Mr. MacDonald he said that Sunday services were not included in their schedules as they did not wish to interfere with the I.M.T.

Mr. Darby remarked "You will give them one day a week" and the witness replied that they were getting seven days, his company would operate at any time requested.

Winter Service Asked about the proposed winter services Mr. Gaffney said that if the C. N. R. had the matter in its own control it could decide when and if it were necessary to operate a train service. In other words it would know when highways were blocked, but it did not feel that it could accept the word for that of any other individual.

At the same time he also brought out that the Railway might be putting itself in jeopardy in dealing with the I.M.T. because that company said it could not guarantee to protect the pension equity of the present employees of the Railway.

National Youth Caravan Tour

The National Youth Caravan which visits here this week are a group of five people who have left their homes and regular jobs so that they might deliver a message of great importance to the young people of Canada. The Caravan is now on the last lap of a Canadian wide tour. It set out several months ago from British Columbia and has travelled northward and eastward 2900 miles and addressed 12000 young people. Young people groups in the Canadian cities, in the bleak and outlying stretches of Canada alike have acclaimed the Caravaners.

"God is not real to many young people today," the Caravaners say, "so our great mission is to witness, to share our firm belief which meets today's challenge so well. We present Christian witness to other young people to bring new material and ideas to help develop vital church programmes, we examine together Christian principles in relation to today's needs" says these young people.

Last week the National Youth Caravan appeared in Sackville at Mount Allison University before the 600 delegates of the Maritime Conference of the United Church of Canada. The Conference listened with close attention as the young people told of their exciting and often humorous adventures encountered in the carrying out of their mission.

Fine Display of Pupils' Work At St. Joseph's Convent

Great care in execution and very high class instruction are evident in a display of needlework now being held at St. Joseph's Convent. All the work, from Grade I upwards, shows remarkably high quality, and the fineness of the work is a tribute to the standard maintained by the instructors.

Even finely hemmed handkerchiefs made by the Grade II class, and the beginners' work in Grade I show a dexterity with the needle which is remarkable in students so young.

Aprons, handkerchiefs, runners, pillowcases and skirts and blouses, in which all the work, both embroidery and plain sewing, is done by the students themselves, form the bulk of the work up to Grade VIII. The students of that year have taken up weaving, and the quantity displayed, as well as the fact that apart from one period a week all the work is done out of class hours, denotes their enthusiasm for it.

The first class quality of the work, and the beauty of the materials and designs used in the handwoven articles make them an achievement of which they may well be proud. Besides the weaving there is a vast quantity of other work, of which plaster work, spider wedding and plastic jewellery form only a part. Each member of the class has also made a dress uniform for special occasions.

A table of fine altar linens, which will be sent to poor parishes in the west, made by the Grade IX class is shown, and so are a number of water colour paintings by this class which all show considerable promise.

Apart from the needlework there is a display in the Household Science section, showing a number of things which the students have learned to make this year, several meals, prepared with a regard for attractiveness and a properly balanced diet, recipe books and posters.

A number of other forms of handicraft are shown, and exercise and text books, which reveal that the same high standard noticeable in the cooking and sewing classes is also maintained in academic work.

A trained teacher has been obtained by the City School Board for the Household Science section, but the handicraft work is taught by each teacher in her own class, and an excellent job of instruction has been done in this very practical form of education.
