MR. DESSAINT, M. P. for Kamouraska, P. Q., with a party of friends is visiting the Island in his clipper yacht Albon. He arrived at Tignish on Monday last, and was driven over the western part of the county by Mr. Perry. Mr. Dessaint is a Rouge in politics. Like everyone else he is loud in his praises of the beauties and fertility of the "Garden Province."

THERE was a large attendance at the Artillery Band moonlight excursion in the Princess of Wales last evening. Brass and string bands furnished music for dancing, and those from whom Neptune did not exact tribute appeared to enjoy themselves. Mr. Collings, the popular steward of the steamer, spread an excellent repast, to which, it is almost needless for us to say, ample justice was done.

THE M. A. Starr, with the usual general merchandise and the following passengers, arrived at noon yesterday: George Roome, W. O. Hudehins, Mrs Horton, Miss Horton and Miss Roy. She sailed on return at six p. m., with a cargo of lobsters, oysters, etc., and Rev M. Begley, Rev M. COMPLAINT is made in Summerside because the doors of the Post Office are shut every evening at sharp eight o'clock. The consequence of this "early closing arrangement" is that letters and papers which arrive by the Eastern mails cannot in many cases be obtained until the morning after they arrive, which makes it impossible for men of business to reply to correspondence by return mail. To ask that the doors be left open, so that holders, at least, may be able to get their letters up to ten or eleven o'clock every evening, would, it seems to us, be a reasonable demand. Of course it would be wrong to ask the overworked postmaster—who has to be up sometimes every morning—to keep the office open late at night; but the outer doors leading to and from the corridor might be left open without adding to the length of his office hours. Will the Inspector kindly consider this complaint?

THE efforts of the gentlemen of the Young Men's Christian Association in convention at Summerside might well be directed towards the purification of the press of that flourishing town. For some weeks past the rival journals there have been engaged in a puerile and vulgar war of words over their respective editors. The people have no interest whatever in the private acts or characters of these two men; but they have patiently and silently borne the infliction of having both brought to their notice week after week. The suggestions of the Journal of last week are, however, so grossly impure as to cause it to stink in the nostrils of decent men and women and to make it an offence to place it in the hands of boys and girls. Public opinion cannot remain silent about a matter, however insignificant, once it begins to affect the public morals and any influence which will lift the journals impured out of the gutter and make them respected and decent will be welcomed by the community. Here is practical work ready to the hand of the reforming young gentlemen of the Convention. We invite attention to it.

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.]

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

THIS MORNING'S BUSINESS.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

SUMMERSIDE, Aug. 5.

The members held a prayer meeting at 9 a. m., which was well attended. At 9.30 they met again, and after half an hour's devotional exercises commenced the discussion of the topic, "How shall we get the most good from this Convention?" Mr. E. D. Ingersoll in the chair. This meeting assumed a conversational form. The chairman pointed out duties of the representatives who attend the meetings. He said it was not only for their own sake but for those whom they represent that the real object of Y. M. C. A. Associations are to work. For the young men all other work was merely on a selfish basis. Associations desiring of success and doing what it was proposed to do, would command public sympathy and support. He instanced several business firms in the Maritime Provinces, who gave Y. M. C. A. tickets to all their employees. They thus found the best men and took advantage, and found it desirable to get rid of those who did not get tickets. Suggestions were made that success and failures be spoken of, and questions asked freely. Short practical speeches were given by Messrs. Power and Ponce. The Holy Spirit was earnestly sought for at the prayer meetings and bible readings in order that they might be diligently attended. The delegates are to report to public meetings on their return if possible. The union meetings will be held on Sunday evening. A carefully prepared paper, drawn up by ex-Mayor McIntosh, of Halifax, was then read, on "The business and financial management of Association," abounding in practical suggestions as to common-sense and business-like methods of work. After an animated discussion in five-minute speeches of this important topic, Convention adjourned.

British Politics.

LONDON, July 4.

A private conference of the Liberal Unionists was held to-day to discuss means for checking the Gladstonian reaction. The speakers agreed in attributing the defeats to the enthusiasm and energy of the Home Rulers in assisting the Gladstonians, and the want of united action by Liberal Unionists and Conservatives. Mr. Chamberlain pointed to the example of the Parnellites in sending a contingent to engage in the contest in the impending elections. In Northwick Dillon, O'Connor and several others will stump for Gladstonian. The Unionists must send members also.
