LATE ARRIVALS.—Two schooners from Halifax arrived at this port on the 24th inst.—the day before Christmas. See our shipping reports. VENTURE OF THE ST. LAWRENCE IN WINTER.—All Quebec a number of old pilots testified that with properly constructed vessels, the St. Lawrence could be navigated in winter. DURETY UNUSUAL.—The Collector of Customs, at this port a few weeks ago, seized two large quantities of Bibles, for "non payment of duty." They are advertised to be sold by auction. Bargains anticipated. OVER SURVIVED.—Twenty-four thousand five hundred tons of shipping have, this year, been registered at the port of Charlotte. We learn that there are several new vessels yet to be registered. DEATH.—The death of Hiram Blanchard, Esq., till within a few weeks. Leader of the Opposition in Nova Scotia, and President of the Bar Society of that Province, is dead. His death is generally regretted. CHRISTMAS GIRLS.—The teachers of the Wesleyan Academy were the recipients of valuable and appropriate Christmas presents—given by their pupils. The Professors of Prince of Wales College were presented with a handsome piece of silver plate. PRESENTATION.—The pupils attending Scott's Hall School have presented their teachers, Mr. S. F. Hodgson and Miss Maria Lawson with complimentary address and some nice presents. Mr. Hodgson was the recipient of a very beautiful inkstand and Mrs. Lawson of a handsome Lady's Companion.—Patrol. SACRED CONCERT.—On Tuesday evening last a Sacred Concert was given in St. Peter's schoolroom. Mrs. Nicholson certainly deserves the thanks of the community for her enterprise, and the talent she displayed, in organizing and conducting the entertainment. No lover of music could fail to appreciate the selections. They were of a much higher class than those ordinarily presented to a Charlotte town audience. The manner in which they were rendered was very creditable, not only to Mrs. Nicholson, but also to each of those by whom she was assisted. The following is the programme, as rendered:— PART I. Instrumental Duet, "Le Prophete," Mrs. Nicholson and Master Watson. Chorus, "Let all the nations of the Earth Rejoice," Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Peake, Mrs. Strickland, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Newbery, and Miss Etta Howard. Song, "O Thou that Tallest," Mrs. Nicholson, Vocal Duet, "Withered Flowers," Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Strickland. Song, "Hallelujahs," Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Peake, Mrs. Strickland, and Mrs. Newbery. Part II. March, "War March of the Braves," Mrs. Nicholson and Master L. Watson. Vocal Duet, "The Colors on the Mountains," Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Smith. Song, "He shall Feed his Flock," Mrs. Newbery. Pianoforte Solo, "Adagio Cantabile," Prof. Estie. Vocal Duet, "What do the Angels dream of Mother," Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Peake. Song, "Angels ever Bright and Fair," Mrs. Strickland. Trio, "Prophet's words through the coming Night," Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Newbery, and Mrs. Strickland. Song, "Nativity," Mrs. Nicholson. Instrumental, "Haydn's Surprise," Professor Estie. The instrumental music was very fine. Our youthful friend, Master L. Watson, promises to be a first-class pianist. He acquitted himself exceedingly well in the splendid instrumental duets which Mrs. Nicholson and he played together. It is hardly necessary to say that Prof. Estie's rendition of Haydn's "Adagio Cantabile" and "Surprise" was very brilliant and expressive. The vocal music was generally well given. The Chorus "Let all the Nations of the Earth Rejoice," "Trio 'O Thou that Tallest,'" "He shall Feed his Flock," and the Song "Nativity," were each worthy of special mention. The music of the last song was unusually deep, powerful, and feeling. Mrs. Nicholson succeeded in giving full effect to all these qualities; and was rapturously cheered. Meetings will be held on Sabbath, 3rd January, in the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, at a quarter before four, and at eight o'clock, p. m.; and also in the same place each morning during the week of 9 o'clock. On the "reverse" is the Dufferin arms, surrounded by the inscription:—"Presented by His Excellency the Governor General," and on the rim are the words "Hillsborough Boating Club." CHRISTMAS MARKETS.—The Christmas markets here were well supplied, and the prices ruled unprecedently high for the time of year. Of the butchers' stalls, that of Messrs Blake Brothers was the great center of attraction. The carcasses of the oxen imported by them last summer was the largest ever exhibited in our market. Dressed and ready for use, it weighed 1665 lbs. In the stall of the same firm, were the carcasses of five or ten beavers, weighing in the aggregate 1226 lbs. Their beaver had to do with 20 cents per lb. Other butchers' stalls also presented an exceedingly fine appearance. The prices of turkeys, geese, etc., was very large. MARRIED.
