Mail Flights To Gulf Shore Inaugurated 35 Years Ago

By FRANCOISE COTE

OTTAWA (CP) — It was 35 years ago this Christmas that a pioneer aviator broke the traditional winter's isolation of settlements along the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

These are still lonely places in the best of weather. Septiles, 325 miles northeast of Quebec City, has no rail link with the province's main centres of population and the only road to Quebec City isn't paved entirely.

For people scattered along this shore, it was a "breakthrough" of historic importance when Romeo Vachon brought the mail into Sept-Iles Dec. 25, 1927 by airplane.

This first air-mail flight into the region started early that morning from Murray Bay, 80 miles northeast of Quebec City, and Vachon had 753 pounds of Christmas letters, cards and parcels aboard.

Mail for each community was dropped by parachute until he reached the end of his run at Sept-Iles.

WON TROPHY

As a prelude to this flight, Vachon dropped mail into Quebec City by parachute four days earlier. It was the first time mail had ever been delivered this way in Canada.

Envelopes dropped on that occasion are considered collectors' items today.

For his exploits in 1927, Vachon won the McKee Trophy, awarded for his "important contribution to the development of aviation."

He was flying for a Quebec firm, Canadian Transcontinental Airways, to which the post office department had just given the first contract for air-mail delivery to the north shore of the Gulf and Anticosti Island. The estimated volume was an average of 1,500 pounds a week.

In the House of Commons recently Maurice Sauve, member for the Magdalen Islands, recalled that the same company inaugurated an air-mail service between Moncton, N.B., and the Magdalens Jan. 11, 1928. It made nine round-trips that year between Moncton and the little islands clustered together in the southern part of the gulf.

Even today, Mr. Sauve said, one of the islands still receives its mail by parachute.

HELPED FORM TCA

Vachon, who later was to play a part in the organization of Trans-Canada Air Lines, didn't content himself with flying mail along the lower St. Lawrence north shore. He set up weather-reporting and communications posts along the route and had radios installed in company aircraft.

At the time of his death, in 1956 in Ottawa, he was a member of the federal Air Transport Board.

Cuban Blockade Called Top Story

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Blockade of Cuba was the world's top news story of 1962.

President Kennedy's Oct. 22 announcement of a "quarantine," an action that led to withdrawal of Russian nuclear weapons from the Caribbean republic, was picked as story of the year by telegraph editors of daily newspapers in a Canadian Press poll.

In second place they put the Sept. 30 riots accompanying Negro James Meredith's enrolment at University of Mississippi.

Third spot went to Red China's invasion of India Oct. 20, leading to the ousting of Krishna Menon from Prime Minister Nehru's cabinet and Nehru's appeal to the West for help.

Top Canadian story was the Saskatchewan struggle between doctors and government over a compulsory medical health plan, climaxed by compromise July 23.

The editors were asked to pick the top six world and Canadian news events of the year.

They chose forays into space for fourth and fifth spots in the world news: Russia's team effort in August in which Nikolayev and Popovich circled the earth 64 and 48 times respectively; and John Glenn's three-round trip Feb. 20 as the first American to travel in orbit.

Their choice for sixth place was the Aug. 5 suicide of actress Marilyn Monroe.

ELECTION SECOND

As a close second in news impact in Canada the editors picked the Dominion election of June 18. Their choice for third spot was the austerity program announced by Prime Minister Diefenbaker six days later.

They saw the story of the deformity - causing drug thalidomide as ranking fourth, with the May 3 devaluation of the dollar next. The fantastic fog - enshrouded Grey Cup game, preceded by months-long argument over TV rights, ranked sixth.

The selections:

World: 1. Blockade of Cuba; 2. Mississippi riots; 3. Invasion of India; 4. Russia's space team; 5. Glenn in orbit; 6. Marilyn Monroe death.

Canadian: 1. Medicare; 2. Dominion election; 3. Austerity; 4. Thalidomide; 5. Dollar devaluation; 6. Grey Cup game.

Other world stories rated high included Algerian independence, launching of Telstar, the Iranian earthquake Sept. 1, Eichmann's execution, the ecumenical council, President Kennedy's fight with steel companies, Common Market developments, last May's sag in Wall Street, and Sonny Liston's one-round victory over Floyd Patterson.

In Canada stories rated after the top six included Hazen Argue's bolt from the New Democratic Party, the Ontario crime investigation, the Son of Freedom march, launching of a Canadian-built satellite in California and the September Commonwealth conference in London.

Jobless Rates Recommended By Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—Rates of unemployment insurance benefits by earnings classes on a weekly basis proposed by the special Gill committee compared to present rates and classes:

| $51-$56.99 | 33 | 28 |
| $57-$62.99 | 36 | 30 |
| $63-$68.99 | 40 | 33 |
| $69-$79.99 | 44 | 36 |
| $80 or over | 48 | — |

The Gill committee report said the proposed rates of benefit are in line with increases it recommended but added that they should be taken as illustrative only and subject to such minor changes as may be required for convenient administration.

Interest Payments On Outside Bonds Doubles Since '55

OTTAWA (CP) — Interest payments by provincial and municipal governments on their bonds held outside Canada have doubled since 1955, the Commons has been informed.

In addition, earnings on direct foreign investment in Canada increased almost three times since 1946 while there was a smaller rise in dividends paid non-residents and interest paid by corporations to non-resident investors in Canadian bonds and debentures.

Figures on these subjects were tabled in the Commons by Trade Minister Hees for Gilles Gregoire (SC—Lapointe).

Interest on provincial bonds held abroad totalled $34,000,00 in 1955 and $68,000,000 in 1961.

On municipal bonds, the figures were $16,000,000 in 1955 and $47,000,000 in 1961.

Interest on federal government bonds held abroad remained relatively stable, totalling $17,000,000 in 1955 and $25,000,000 in 1961.
