

PRINCE EDWARD — LAST DAY FOR "STABLE MATES"

WALLACE BEERY—MICKEY ROONEY OUR GANG COMEDY "Miracle of Salt Lake"

TWO DAYS ONLY! MON.—TUES. EACH DAWN THESE RECKLESS WAR-BIRDS CLIMB TO BATTLE! BUT—AT DUSK—ONLY SOME RETURN!

ERROL FLYNN "The Dawn Patrol" BASIL RATHBONE · DAVID NIVEN · DONALD CRISP · Melville Cooper Added—ROYAL VISIT PICTURES IN WESTERN CANADA SHOWS DAILY 3.15 — 7.00 — 9.00 — SATURDAY MATINEE 2.30

LAST TIMES THREE MESQUITEERS in "RED RIVER TODAY" "RANGER"—Comedy, Cartoon—Sat. Matinee 2.30

The Capitol Matinees at 3.15 MON. TUE. Evenings 7.00—8.45

ROSALIND... had her name in the social register! KATY... wasn't even listed in the telephone book!

But any girl can get her man... if she'll only do what Katy did! It's the laugh-and-love topper to "3 Loves Has Nancy!"

"Broadway BUCKAROO" "For Your Convenience" In Technicolor Floyd Gibbons True Adventure

Something for Scouts and Cubs to tell their grandchildren, I helped to guard the King and Queen, during their visit to Charlottetown, away back in 1929.

On the 14th the writer had the pleasure of meeting Scout McNeil, the "Ambassador" Magdalen, who is at present a member of 6th Charlottetown (Most Holy Redeemer).

Mr. Allan Hepper, the Executive Secretary, is to be congratulated on a fine piece of work in organizing the parade and various special parties in connection with the Royal Visit.

Former Provincial President L. D. Murray and Mrs. Murray, now of Halifax, N.S., are being greeted by many old friends.

Boy Scouts will take part in the Confederation Anniversary celebration, July 16th to 21st. The matter of arrangements has been left to the District Council of Queen's County, and a cordial invitation is extended to Scouts of Prince and Kent Counties to join in the celebration.

Special features for Scouts as follows: Monday, July 17th at 3.00 p.m. Grand Street Parade. Thursday July 20th at 8.30 p.m. Camp Fire by Girl Guides and Boy Scouts followed by fireworks at Victoria Park.

MR. HUGH HENNIGAR NOEL, June 14—The death of Hugh Hennigar, aged eighty-nine years, occurred Saturday morning at his home in Northfield, Hants County. He is survived by three sisters in the States, four daughters and three sons: Mrs. Tobias in Truro, Mrs. Gibbs in P.E.I., Mrs. Chalmers Anthony (Alma) in Kennebec, Mrs. Arthur Pratt (Alma) in Selma, Jeffus Hennigar in Stanhope, Mass., and Frank and Percy in Northfield. The obsequies were conducted Monday by the Rev. A.G. Bradshaw at the Anglican church and cemetery in Northfield.

SHOPWORD CONTEST In yesterday's issue of The Shopword Contest SHOPWORD NO. 4 should be "RICHER FURS"

Central Guardian

This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising in a new way may be inserted at 5 cents a word strictly payable in advance.

CRASWELL for Photographs. CONFEDERATION LIFE INSURANCE. L-9789-7-21-31.

GOOD USED STOVES at Holman's price $18.00 up. All reconditioned. Terms if desired. L-503-6-17-21.

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES.—Sunday, June 18th, Kensington 11 A.M. and 7.30 P.M. Freetown 3 P.M. L-488-6-17-11.

PARISH OF ST. JOHN, MILTON, Milton at 11 A.M. S.S. at 10 A.M. and Rustico at 3 P.M. Rev. W.J. Phillips. L-482-6-17-11.

ATTENTION ADVERTISERS—Advertisements for insertion the following day must be in this office not later than 11 a.m. 6-3-11.

THE SPECIAL CONSTABLES. Barrie, McNeil and Staff, Minister in connection with the Royal Visit will be paid at the City Hall to-day at 10.30 A.M. L-502-6-17-11.

RECITALS by pupils of Miss Lillian McKenzie, Tuesday afternoon and evening, Hearz Memorial Hall. L-481-6-17-11.

TRYON - BONSHAW UNITED BAPTIST.—Presbyterian service Tryon 3 P.M. Westmoreland 11 A.M. Eastlaw 7.30 P.M. Rev. S.D. Trues. L-405-6-17-11.

CHURCH NOTICE.—Bread-bane Charge—Rev. E. Milley, Minister, 11, North Granville, 3, Bread-albana, 7.30, Rose Valley. The Ro.e Valley Service will be conducted by Rev. Angus Matheson. L-486-6-17-11.

WE HAVE just received fifteen hundred bushels of oats, Government inspected, No. 1, Price 70¢ per bushel; and 300 bushel of barley, Price 90¢ per bushel, Provincial Department of Agriculture. L-400-6-16-21.

CORNWALL PASTORAL CHARGE.—Services on Sunday, June 18th: Kingston, S.S. 10.15 A.M. Service 11 A.M. New Dominion, S.S. 2 P.M. Service 3 P.M. Cornwall: S.S. 11 A.M. Service 7.30 P.M. Rev. E. R. Woodside, Minister. L-492-6-17-11.

POLICE COURT.—At police court yesterday a man was fined ten dollars and costs or twenty days for being drunk and disorderly. John Carragher pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Excise Act and was fined $25 and costs or 30 days.

MURRAY HARBOR NORTH AND PETERS ROAD.—The services on Sunday, June 18th will be as follows: Murray Harbor North 11 A.M. and 7 P.M. and Peters Road 2.30 P.M. Rev. D. J. Gillies of North River, Cape Biston, N.S., will conduct the services. L-487-6-17-11.

NORTH RIVER UNITED BAPTIST PASTORAL.—Rev. J. M. Blesdel, Pastor, Sunday, June 18th the churches worship thus: North River 11.00 A.M. Cl de River 3.00 P.M. Kingston 7.30 P.M. "Alliance to the welfare of the best patriotism." L-485-6-17-11.

HEAR DR. CARLETON STANLEY, President of the Canadian National and Her Place in World Affairs" at the Women's Institute convention in Prince of Wales College Hall, June 21st, 8.00 P.M. L-478-6-17-31.

"SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH SERVICES.—Young People's Meeting, Sabbath School at 1.45 p.m. on Saturday and preaching services at 8.00 o'clock, Sunday evening at 8.00 o'clock. Evangelist Toop's subject will be "The Sin That Cannot Be Forgiven." How may we now be committed to? Hear this sermon! L-507-6-17-11.

SACRED BAND CONCERT.—His Honor, Lieutenant Governor DeBlois has arranged for a sacred concert, to be given by the band of the Prince Edward Island Light Horse Regiment in the Gardens of Government House on Sunday afternoon June 18th from 3.30 to 5.30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to view the gardens and enjoy the music. L-494-6-16-21.

VISITING IN FREDERICTON.—Mrs. C. Ray Morris, of Granville, P.E.I., motored to St. Andrews, N.B., on Saturday, June 10, where she will spend a few days at the home of Rev. and Mrs. George Morris. After motoring to Fredericton for the visit of the King and Queen, she expects to spend the rest of the month in Livermore Falls, Maine, as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John E. Murray, before returning to the Island.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.—The morning sermon by the Rev. Harvey L. Denton, B. D. will be "Character or Character in Religion." The Church School meets for summer session, with the Beginners to Juniors at 11.30 A.M. The senior classes and groups will meet immediately at the close of the morning service 12 to 12.30 P.M. At the evening service 7 P.M. the Rev. Harvey L. Denton will deliver a sermon on "Some Little Things That Count." The choir will render Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory" at the morning service and Walmley's "From All That Dwell Below the Skies" at the evening service.

Use Minard's for bites. GANNING I wish to announce that I will be in a position to take care of the canning of your surplus garden vegetables and fruits at reasonable rates.

GULF GARDEN CANNING EDWIN H. COOK Proprietor

Canners of Cook's Pork & Beans & Boston Brown Bread L-497-6-17-19-22-24-26-21

What Women Like Best To Read In Newspapers

By DOROTHY DIX

The following talk by Dorothy Dix, a well-known writer in the Guardian, was delivered before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington.

I have many curious questions asked me, such as: What happens to the soul immediately after death? Will I marry and if so, how many children will I have and of what sex? Please tell me which apple tree my uncle buried some money under in the Summer of 1925, just before he died? I was born on the 28th of April and my wife or born on the 19th of November. Are we congenial? What is the best way of getting rid of a wife of whom you are tired? Do you think I should kill my husband's mistress, or would it be best to act indifferent? What shall I name my twin boys? What shall I call my new house, dog, cat, literary club? How can I keep my coat from looking too white I keep cool? Would you marry a poor girl because you are in love with her, or a rich one whose father would give you a job? Both of them are in love with me and get about the same salary. Do girls with blue eyes or black eyes make the best wives? And so on and so forth.

But I have never been asked to unride the one you propound to me to-day when you ask me what women like best to read in the newspapers. Not one of you knows for certain, for the feminine mind works in a mysterious way its wonders to perform, and no one can foretell which way the cat is going to jump.

Yet this problem of what women read in the papers is what turns editors old and gray before their time, because the favor of the sex is the real circulation builder and, in nine families out of ten, it is the Little Woman who decides what paper shall come into the home. Of course, this was not always thus. In the days of a time when the head of the house monopolized the paper and after he had devoured it along with his coffee and eggs of a morning he put it in his pocket and carried it downtown with him, on the theory that it was of no possible interest or use to his wife except to put on the kitchen shelves and waste or twenty days for being drunk and disorderly. John Carragher pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Excise Act and was fined $25 and costs or 30 days.

But all of this changed when the modern woman is an avid newspaper reader, and without doubt the increase in divorce is largely to be attributed to the "weakable scraps" over which one man grab the newspaper and have the first peep at the bloody murders and juicy scandals and the radio program and the comic strips. In fact, it may be said with truth that there is no better test of a happy and successful marriage than the ability of a husband and wife to split the paper between them in peace and amity.

Furthermore, it is important for editors to know what women like to read, because if any paper could assert that it was the Ladies' Favorite and read by all the women in town, it would be sitting pretty on top of the world, with advertisers eating out of its hand and sending on broadcast notices for space. For every woman who reads a newspaper spends little money. Women are the great distributors of wealth. Most that hard-working fathers and husbands and brothers and sons earn goes into the arms of the bars on the wrists of both wives and daughters and sisters, and it is simply pitiful to think that they would never know how many things they need if they didn't read about them in the papers.

Of course, one might answer the question about what women like to read in the newspapers by saying, "Everything." For "everything" is an epitome of the gossip of the world, and women's curiosity is insatiable about what goes on everywhere, and their taste in news is as varied as it is in food and runs all the way from caviar to chocolate sundaes.

There is feminine intelligence which is strong for heavy editorial and Walter's woman can simply eat up foreign and political information and tax reports, and is so primed with current events and facts and figures, derived from its perusal of the papers, that it is a fearsome thing to encounter at a dinner party. And there are others whose daily diet is the society columns and the birth and death notices, and who cannot begin the day until they know which cinema star is getting a divorce, and why.

Set the newspaper, like the good restaurant, must not only have a varied menu to meet the appetites of its clientele, but must throw in a few extra frills for its feminine customers, for what a choosy about what they read as they eat about what they eat and wear. You can't set them down to a roast-beef-and-mashed-potatoes-and-apple-pie menu, and the best of us and domestic news and Associated Press dispatches and editorials about what they are doing in Washington and stock market reports and anything else as you can name. They want all of that, and some glamor and sentiment and romance thrown in besides for good measure.

Speaking broadly—and that is the only way one can speak about women, for every woman is one per cent fact and ninety-nine per cent contradiction—I think that the most interesting feature in the lives of readers, and that they like to read, is the news of the kind that hit you in the eyes and make you buy the paper. After that, they like to read about the lives of the rich, most of them get their politics from their favorite Washington columnist instead of wading through dreary pages of Senatorial debates and Congressional wrangles. Also, they skim lightly over the account of foreign affairs unless there is a Duke and Duchess of Windsor romance on the carpet or war is imminent. And even that doesn't excite them very much until it gets close to home.

But almost all women are avid readers of anything that has human interest, such as crimes and divorces and scandals and murders, and of the events that touch real life and that they can visualize as happening to themselves or the people they know. Almost every woman, after a brief glance at the headlines, turns to the vital statistics, whereas a man seldom does. It is, for instance, to women readers that the quintuplets owe their fame and fortune. You will recall that even the doctor who kept informed about the latest things in vitamins and how to keep her husband soothed and livable by administering them to him in his vittles. And, last, but not least, among the things that women never fail to read in newspapers are the advertisements which they peruse as the old woman did her Bible, from cover to cover. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns; the bungalows of which she has dreamed; furniture and glass and china and silver; magic ice-boxes and washing machines and pots and pans, all that the heart of woman craves and that makes even readers of them almost a debauch of excitement. They are her daily and especially her Sunday, adventure. In them she takes a flight into a world where her Fairy Godmother shows her all the things she would like to have—jewels and furs; gowns fit for a princess and shoes for Cinderellas and hats for clowns;