Seek Permission To Seek Snowman

KATMANDU, Nepal, (Reuters) —An Australian expedition has applied to the Nepalese foreign office for permission to "seek out and identify the creature known as the yeti, or abominable snowman" of the Himalayas.

The application was signed by Peter Byrnes, a Sydney journalist. It is being considered.

Byrnes and his expedition hope to visit Nepal in January to hunt yetis in the Sherpa district of Sola Khumbu, near Mount Everest.

According to Nepalese folklore the yetis are large, semi-human gorilla-like creatures, fierce and man-eating.

Eric Shipton, the British climber, photographed footprints of a large creature like the yeti on the slopes of Mount Everest in 1951.

Output of canned dog and cat foods rose to 54,521 tons last year from 51,701 tons in 1953.

When the Associated Press 60-stock average was up 80 cents to $181.50 at noon it had erased the estimated $13,000,000,000 loss in the quoted value of securities listed on the New York stock exchange in the sharp break of Sept. 26 following news of President Eisenhower's heart attack.

The AP averages closed at $181, however, only 30 cents higher than Tuesday. Industrials were up 40 cents, rails 20 cents and utilities 10 cents.

Canadian issues were mixed. Canadian Pacific and International Nickel both added ⅝. Dome Mines and Distillers Seagram both fell ¼ and Hiram alker slipped ⅛. McIntyre remained unchanged.

Two Canadian Novelists Define Purpose Of Art

TORONTO (CP)—Two successful Canadian novelists Monday defined the purpose of their art as the creation of international understanding and of a national literary heritage.

Quebec-born Roger Lemelin and Lionel Shapiro of Montreal were speaking at a literary luncheon. Mr. Lemelin is the author of "The Town Below," "Les Plouffe," "In Quest of Splendor" and the CBC television series "The Plouffe Family."

Mr. Shapiro also has written three novels, "Sealed Verdict," "Torch For a Dark Journey," and "The Sixth of June."

Speaking of the last book, Mr. Shapiro said:

"It is Canadian in its understanding of both the British and the Americans and writing, in the last analysis, is—or should be—the highest form of understanding."

Mr. Lemelin said television could play a big part in developing Canada's literary heritage.

NO "TROUBADORS"

"We have had no troubadors. So this channel of communication, TV, can play this role in our country. Bring to Canadians drama, comedy, reflecting their habits, their characteristics, bring them shows where they will recognize themselves, and you will see it won't be long before they recognize their writers as their loudspeakers and will be proud of them."

In an interview, Mr. Lemelin said he hopes to produce a new play in Paris next fall with the cast of his television series. Setting of the play, not yet written, would be in French Canada. The situation, he said, will be similar to that in "In Quest of Splendor."

"It will be a co-operative project with the company," he said. "My players are making good money now."

Mr. Shapiro said he sails for Europe from New York Dec. 9 to work on a new novel and to gather material for magazine articles. The new book would be set in Western Europe, Britain, Canada and the United States.

Mr. Shapiro, who makes his home mainly in New York, said:

"I hold that a Canadian novel is one written by a product of Canadian education and upbringing; others hold that a Canadian novel is one that deals with Canada and Canadians.

CANADA IN MIDDLE

"There's a great deal to be said on both sides of the subject, but in my view, culture is not limited by geography—it is enhanced by geography. And the fact that Canada is sitting, so to speak, on the 50-yard line between the United States and Britain gives her writers a special view not easily afforded to others who have to observe our common civilization from the sharp angles of distant parts of the world."

Mr. Lemelin said:

"One of the dramas of Canada is that its writers, its intellectuals, are unrooted individuals; they are not the loudspeakers of the soul of their country, of their people, they look at it with superiority, and almost nobody reads them or listens to them."

HARD TO IDENTIFY

LIVERPOOL, England (CP) — Artist Arthur Ballard's entry was hung upside down in an exhibition of "highly abstract painting." An official explained Ballard "paints emotions, and it's difficult to tell one end of the picture from another."
