THE TURKS RETALIATE.

They say Unpleasant Things About British Administration in India.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Telegraph sends the following translation of an article which has just appeared in the Turkish journal, Sabak, attacking the British administration in India:—

"From the information we have published from day to day our readers are aware that troubles have broken out in various parts of India, and that England has despatched troops for the purpose of suppressing the insurrection. According to the latest news furnished to us by the European press, the agitation is increasing in force and is taking a disquieting turn, and this situation is beginning to engage the attention of the British Government. All the organs of the press are unanimous in attributing the disorders primarily to the bad administration of the English authorities.

"As a matter of fact, if one is to judge these matters with impartiality, one must recognize that the system of government employed by the English has reduced the Hindoos to a state of almost complete destruction. The present agitation recalls the celebrated Sepoy mutiny, for it assumes an extent and a character more and more violent. The scourge which first commenced to rage in India was the plague. The British Administration, instead of coming to the aid of the victims, who constituted a major part of the population by measures recommended by civilized methods, has never, on the contrary, ceased to harass this population. A situation so compromising to the prestige of any Government, and so contrary to the principles of civilization and humanity, must if prolonged, bring in its train consequence unpleasant for England.

"Attempts have been made to accuse, with injustice, the Indian population of barbarism and ignorance. The British Government, in showing itself indifferent to the fearful misfortune which has fallen on the people, has been unable to measure the results which might accrue from its conduct. The Indians, who are accustomed to serve under a foreign yoke, who, under the system of law applied by the English, have lost their individual rights, and who groan under the imposition of a civilization unsuited to their condition, expect, at least, to see the administration taking measures to preserve the country from such calamities as the plague and famine, and to come to the help of the sufferers from these scourges. These hopes have been misleading.

"The heedlessness and unconcern displayed by the officials in the face of these misfortunes have simply served to make the situation worse. A native, for instance, who is by no means content to call himself the second-class subject of a western power (for the English regard the Hindoos as second-class subjects) which remain indifferent to all those points involved in the show of civilization that permits construction of railways, the opening of canals, and so forth, which would bring him more harm than good, and which possess no greater advantage than that of altering the face of the land—such a native would be justified in desiring, by way of compensation for so many evils, security for life, tranquility, and a certain degree of freedom. It is an admitted fact, confirmed by official proofs and by statements worthy of confidence, that railways and canals have been of incredibly slight use in fighting the scourge of famine.

"The officials of the local Government who are accustomed to vain words, incapable of forming any estimate of the situation, and of applying themselves to the mitigation of the misery of the people, have displayed none of that energy and zeal which, under similar circumstances, are wont to be awakened by the feelings of humanity, and have not given a thought to the provision of work and of food to the necessitous. These are the things which have led to the famine, and, as a corollary, the spread of the plague in India, reducing the people to an unbearable state of misery.

"Only a quarter of the receipts derived from subscription lists for the famine and plague have been devoted by the English to combating those scourges; the other three quarters have been spent in other directions, a fact which has not escaped the attention of the population. The British officials, it is true, pretend to justify this employment of the moneys by saying that they are obliged to conform to budgetary necessities, but the natives cannot recognize this argument when they find no means of safety, when they stare death in the face, and when they see their dearest ones perish under their eyes.

"It must be admitted, however, that moderation and reserve may, under certain circumstances, be a fault. The English civil servants carry no intrigues and their administrative work. As for the soldiers, they commit misdeeds which would be tolerated in no civilized country, and they allow themselves to do things utterly shocking to the usages, customs and religious sentiments of the Indian community. They have even gone so far as to assault the chastity of the women, which have exasperated the natives, and has forced them to abandon their passive attitude. At Poona the conduct of the soldiers who were charged with the carrying out of measures in respect to those who were dying of hunger and plague, and the incapacity of the officers, have been the cause of grave occurrences. These proceedings have been condemned by the entire press of Europe, and even by some of the English newspapers.

"England, who showed herself so indifferent, has now commenced to preoccupy herself with the future consequences of the situation, which has assumed a disquieting appearance. It is not yet known what line the Government intends to adopt, and the measures they will take in India. All politicians will await the decision with curiosity.

The Telegraph correspondent adds: I may point out that the real importance of this diatribe, the most violent that has ever appeared in the Turkish press against Great Britain, is to be found in the fact that it could never have been published without the consent of the censor, and that, therefore, it must be taken as having received the tacit approval of the Ottoman Government. It would appear as though the article were part of the anti-British campaign which is being carried on in certain quarters here, with a view to stirring up Moslem irritation against England.

THE PARK ROADWAY

SIR,—I would like to ask what this roadway was made for. It seems to me and scores of others; that the name ought to be changed to that of the "Charlottetown race track." From Battery Point to the Drill Shed is the favorite run, night after night, any pedestrians or lady and gentlemen; bicyclists are liable at any moment to be dashed into eternity. Attention has been called I learn more than once by the city press. But nothing has been done or will be done until one or two persons lose their lives. Have we any police? Are there no authorities? If there are what are they doing? Such a state of affairs in any other civilized country would not be tolerated.

Authorities have respect for your city as well as those who visit your shores. If you have not, the town will not gain anything by this raffish behavior.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS

THE WEATHER.—Moderate to fresh north west and shifting to south winds. Fair and moderately warm.

HOP BEER ANALYZED.—At the request of License Inspector Jones, some samples of hop beer have been examined by W. F. Best. They were found to contain considerable alcohol, and prosecutions may result.—St. John Sun.

MILITARY FUNERAL.—Mr. John H. Dover was a member of the Engineer Corps, and his funeral on Sunday next will be under military auspices. Mr. Dover was in the employ of Mark Wright & Co., and his death at an early age is deeply regretted by all who knew him.

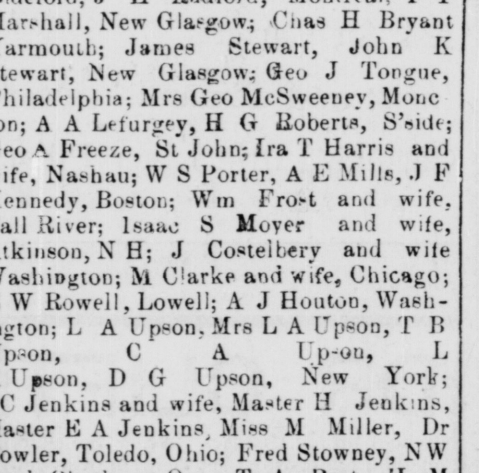

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.—The Church of England's Missionary Conference for the diocese of Nova Scotia will meet in Charlottetown on Sept. 15th and 16th. This conference is held every two years and is attended by the clergy and lay delegates of the diocese. The proceedings will be opened on Tuesday evening, Sept. 14th, by service in St. Paul's Church. On the mornings and afternoons of Wednesday and Thursday prayers and addresses will be given on the following subjects:

- 1st. Apostolic missions and their methods.
 - 2nd. The missionaries of Iona and Northumbria.
 - 3rd. European missions to the continent of North America.
 - 4th. Missionary work of the nineteenth century.
- On Wednesday evening there will be a missionary meeting and on Thursday evening the closing service will be held in St. Peter's Cathedral, when the sermon will be preached by the Provost of Trinity College, Toronto. It is expected that there will be about sixty visiting clergy. The railway and steamboat companies are issuing return tickets for a single fare for all wishing to attend the conference. Hospitality will be provided for the delegates by the church people of the city.

THE RAILWAY CONFERENCE.

There is very great interest shown at the meetings of the railway men which opened in this city today. Several items of business were transacted and officers were elected. A Bible reading was given by Mrs. Gunn, of Belmont, N. S., one of the best and most impressive that we have ever heard. There are about 40 delegates in attendance and others are expected tonight. The presence of a number of ladies adds much to the cheerfulness and success of the meetings. The welcome meeting will be held tonight in Zion Church. Don't miss it.

The following are the officers elected:—
President—T. W. Prince, St. John.
Vice Presidents—George Story, Moncton; Harry Craswell, Chitown; C. W. Jones, St. John; Allison Stevens, Truro; Conductor Upham, Halifax; D. McLeish, Sydney; James Cameron, Campbellton.
Secretary Treasurer—Robert Wisn Truro.
Assistant—Secretary— I. Buchanan, Truro.

It's the best thing for the hair under all circumstances. Just as no man by taking thought can add an inch to his stature, so no preparation can make hair. The utmost that can be done is to promote conditions favorable to growth. This is done by Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, cleanses the scalp, nourishes the soil in which the hair grows, and, just as a desert will blossom under rain, so bald heads grow hair, when the roots are nourished. But the roots must be there. If you wish your hair to retain its normal color, or if you wish to restore the lost tint of gray or faded hair use
