Progressive Conservatives Make Bid For Fresh Ideas

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party is looking for ideas which are both progressive and conservative.

A call has gone out from party headquarters here to 5,000 workers across the country for platform policy ideas and proposals to make the structure of the party more effective.

The suggestions, in the form of resolutions passed by local groups, will be studied by two committees scheduled to meet here Dec. 15 in preparation for the party's annual meeting, which is to take place in Ottawa Jan. 18 and 19.

Both the senior party organizations and groups in the women's, youth and university organizations, are being canvassed.

About 1,500 delegates and as many alternates, guests and observers are expected to be accredited for the annual meeting.

The platform and constitution committees of the party will meet in advance to collect and collate the resolutions.

MORE MEETINGS LATER

While the party hopes to have all local suggestions filed by the Dec. 15 meeting, further meetings of the platform and constitution committees will be held later for late proposals for the annual meeting.

At an executive meeting last August, which decided to call the annual rally next January, it was agreed that the party needed new ideas if it is to survive the next general election. The government's 208 members elected to the 265-seat House of Commons in 1958 were reduced in this year's general election to 116—lacking a majority but still the largest group in the House.

Trend of thinking at the executive meeting was generally along three lines:

1. More effort must be made to tailor party platform to the needs of eastern farmers, who have turned in large voting numbers to the Liberals in Ontario and to the Social Credit party in Quebec.

2. There should be a pause in the rapid expansion of welfare benefits until the pace of business and other factors essential to increase tax revenues can be built up.

3. Ways should be found to emphasize "small C" Conservative principles to show the distinction between the party of the right and the Liberal and New Democratic parties on the left.

PEARSON TO SPEAK

HALIFAX (CP) — National Liberal Leader Pearson will address a provincial leadership convention of the Nova Scotia Liberal party here Nov. 3, it was announced Friday. Some 657 delegates will be eligible to vote.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
2♥	Pass	2NT	Pass
4♥

Opening lead—nine of clubs.

You get to bad contracts from time to time, even with good bidding, but when you do, you still go all out to try to make them.

Declarer got to four hearts on the bidding shown and West led a club. East took the ace and returned a spade. West cashed the A-Q and led a third spade which South ruffed.

Thinking that his best chance now was to find the Q-J of hearts alone, declarer led two rounds of trumps: West eventually scored the jack of hearts and South went down one.

But actually, South could have made the contract. Superficially, it would seem that declarer cannot avoid losing a trump trick, but yet, if South plays correctly, he wins ten tricks to make the hand.

After ruffing the spade at trick four, he trumps a club in dummy and cashes three top diamonds. Then he ruffs the nine of diamonds, bringing about this position:

North

West

East

South

Declarer leads the queen of clubs. West's play at this point does not matter, but let's assume he discards a spade, in which case dummy does also. South then leads the jack of clubs.

If West trumps low, South has an easy time making the rest of the tricks. If West trumps with the jack instead, he may cause declarer some worry, but the result comes out the same. South overruffs with the ace and leads the ten of hearts to trap East's queen.

This method of play has a far greater chance of avoiding a trump loser than playing for the Q-J to drop. Of course, it still requires some luck to succeed, but that's what you need plenty of when you get to a bad contract.

Canadians Build Nuclear Blast Detection Tool

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian scientists hope that a powerful seismological tool being built in northern Canada will be able to detect almost any kind of underground nuclear explosion set off anywhere in Russia.

The mines and technical surveys department has announced that the new sensitive seismological array is being developed in co-operation with Britain at a remote site just west of Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories. It is expected to be in operation early in December.

"We hope the station will be able to pick up any underground nuclear explosions occurring in Russia," Dr. W. E. van Steenburgh, the department's director-general of scientific services, said in an interview.

However, Dr. van Steenburgh emphasized that while there was this hope, the seismological array is association with similar systems elsewhere still remained an experiment to determine whether a network could detect nuclear blasts anywhere in the world with complete accuracy.

House Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will spare no effort in seeking to bring about the end of nuclear testing, External Affairs Minister Green said in a Commons reply.

"Canada's position has been made abundantly clear," Mr. Green said.

Transport Minister Balcer said he will make an announcement within a week on the proposed general inquiry into pilotages of ships.

He said the government still intends to appoint a commission of inquiry into all matters affecting ship pilots working on the St. Lawrence Seaway and The Great Lakes.

The pilots' associations have been pressing for higher fees and the hiring of additional men, contending pilots have been overworked since the seaway opened.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said there are indications Russia will "shortly precipitate a new, if not grave, crisis" on Berlin.

He added that Western policy on Berlin has not changed. There must be allied rights of access to the city and presence of allied troops in Berlin as well as freedom for West Berliners.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
