Andrew MacRae Points To Loans

Three million dollars have been loaned to young Island farmers by the Shaw government, through a plan that did not even exist under the former Liberal government.

The Conservative incentive has provided the aid to 875 young farmers to establish themselves in this province, young men who might otherwise have been lost to other parts of Canada", agriculture minister Andrew MacRae said last night.

This is the sort of opportunity the Shaw government means when it pledged itself to build an Island of opportunity.

Mr. MacRae and his Conservative teammate in third Queens J. Russell Driscoll were speaking at a meeting in Mount Ryan.

FARM INCOME

If this province were still to be plagued with the desponding and despair of 10 years ago we would never have seen the 70 per cent increase in farm income chalked up last year over 1958, he continued.

New programs of the Shaw government will increase income to farmer and supply our new industrial developments with the products which will in turn help them to expand.

The 20 per cent fertilizer rebate will give our farmers an opportunity to increase their productivity. If we can help the farmer to increase his grain yield by 10 bushels per acre then we will no longer have to import western grain and improved pastures will allow our farmers to increase their dairy and beef herds said the speaker.

The Liberals propose grants for the construction of silos, he continued. This was experimented with in Nova Scotia and found not to be practical. Instead we propose to provide 10 per cent grant for the group purchase of forage harvesters so that forage can be put to the best use by groups or individuals.

The record of the Shaw government in agriculture is not one to be ashamed of, he stressed. Alleged Liberal agricultural experts in the Legislature, men from every profession but farming, sought to condemn our policies but it is gratifying to note that not one farmer among the Liberals in the house spoke against our farm measures.

Anderson, Sigsworth Cite Financial Farce

"No one in Second Kings is so gullible as to fall victim to the ill-conceived and artlessly contrived Tory campaign attempt to dupe the people into accepting as a reality the entertaining fiction they are currently publishing concerning the financial success of their industrial development farce. A mink ranch that vanished, a foreign industrial adventurer that charges the taxpayer upwards of seven millions of dollars to employ less than three hundred Islanders, and a second mink ranch that will employ three persons—one for each Tory cabinet minister who met the foreign mink breeder at the Charlottetown airport.

Fish plants. ship-yards and mink ranches may or may not be good for the Island. But there is one certainty. Under the inefficient financing to which they have currently been subjected, of anyone on the Island stands to reap any form of lasting benefit from them, it is not those who most need it. There are many in Second King's who can verify this—ask some of the deserted wives, widowed mothers or needy blind or disabled people. They give a somber answer that burns the tory face with the blush of shame as the tories carry on their election trafficking in the uncertain security of these people," Don Anderson and Frank Sigsworth, Liberal candidates in Second King's, told a meeting in the Byrne Road school last night.

"Few are really taken in by the Tory attempt at progress. The realistic fact of dismal failure is always there, said Frank Sigsworth. "With money for industrial development borrowed at six per cent and loaned out to foreign interests at four percent, who but a frantic and bewildered Tory minister in an election campaign could term this sound financing," the thirty-seven year old lawyer asked.

"We in Second King's will not be under sold. We know when our affairs are being mis-managed, and we know when we are being manipulated as pawns in the game of petty politics," said Don Anderson. "And louder and louder the people are speaking out against this cruel game that has been played with our taxes with our future security as its stakes. This is just another reason why the swing to the New Liberal Government of energetic young Alex Campbell becomes more and more pronounced as election day draws nearer and nearer", the thirty-eight year old St. Peter's farmer said.

Window Will Honor Memory Of Beaverbrook

LONDON (CP) — A heraldic stained-glass window in memory of Lord Beaverbrook will be unveiled and dedicated today in the parish church of Micklehame, in the Surrey countryside where the Canadian-born publisher made his home.

The ceremony at Cherkley Court takes place on Beaverbrook's birthday. The Canadian, who became one of Britain's press barons, died June 9, 1964, aged 85.

Beaverbrook's widow and his son, Sir Max Aitken, who now heads the Beaverbrook press empire, will attend the ceremony along with a number of the publisher's friends, including Lord Thomson, another Canadian who became a press lord and professional rival of The Beaver.

The window, designed by Francis W. Skeat, bears Beaverbrook's coat of arms—a silver shield barred with blue and surmounted by two red maple leaves with crest of a red cock atop a drum. It is a companion piece to a similar panel installed in the chapel of the north nave in 1953 in memory of Viscount Bennet, Canadian prime minister during the 1930s.

Campbell Says Gov't Pushing Panic Button

SUMMERSIDE — "Prince Edward Island needs a government which is less satisfied with conditions here on the Island", stated Alex B. Campbell in his address to a Liberal rally held here Saturday night.

"The Shaw government has been pointing with pride to the general prosperity and economic boom which it claims to have sponsored here on the Island", he said.

"The Liberal party, and I am sure, most Islanders, are not satisfied to only share the "fringe benefits" of an expanding Canadian economy.

More has been accomplished for senior citizens, farmers, fishermen and wage earners since the Conservatives adopted our platform 10 years ago, then was done for them during the last seven years of Conservative administration", he said.

Mr. Campbell pointed out several instances where the government is now pushing the panic button on the eve of this election— in recognizing the usefulness of subsidies for agriculture which it previously denounced in sending our social assistance and welfare cheque to people who had suffered substantial hardships for as long as two years waiting for help. He quoted one of such letters sent by the government to a friend of his in Tignish— "It has been decided that a cheque for $30 be sent to you for now and that a further review of your situation will be made later". Mr. Campbell asked "Why has this person had to wait for an election for assistance?"

The leader of the opposition read a telegram from the office of the federal minister of agriculture re-affirming that there is a federal milk subsidy applied to milk delivered for the manufacture of evaporated milk. This had earlier been denied by Mr. MacRae, provincial minister of agriculture.

Other speakers included Mrs. Aiden Mulligan, Max Thompson, Frank Jardine, Earle Hickey, Leonce Arsenault and Billy Burns. Following the speeches entertainment was provided.

Car Sales Show Climb In Mid-May

DETROIT (AP) — Mid-May new car sales bounced back from an early slump although they still ran behind comparable 1965 totals.

Preliminary sales reports Tuesday showed 242,407 new cars were sold in the U.S. in the May 11-20 period, about 50,000 above the opening 10 days of the month.

Industry joy at that figure was tempered, however, by the additional note that sales for the period just ended ran about 33,000 behind the corresponding 10 days last year.

The sales pattern was the same throughout the industry. General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors sold more cars than they did in the opening 10 days of May, but they fell short of the sales totals they chalked up a year ago.

The sales figures were the first compiled since Henry Ford II said May 13 that the auto safety issue had hurt sales. He predicted 1966 car sales would total about 9,000,000, about 300,000 under last year.

GM AGREED

GM President James M. Roche said later he thought 1966 sales might not equal those of 1965, but he made no guess on how big the loss would be. Chrysler President Lynn Townsend and AMC President Roy Abernethy made no revisions in their original forecast that auto business would be as good as it was in 1965.

The preliminary sales reports, subject to later revisions, gave these totals for the two May 11-20 periods and for the early May sales this year:

	1966	1965	1966
GM	122,122	148,880	97,075
Chrys	41,233	44,051	30,994
Am Mot	7,245	11,033	5,759
Ford	71,807	71,951	59,224
Total	242,407	276,915	193,052

Ontario Moves In Auto Safety

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government moved Tuesday to give itself the necessary legislative powers to force auto safety measures if car manufacturers don't institute them voluntarily.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett introduced a bill in the legislature that would empower the provincial cabinet to require "the use or incorporation of any device in or on any vehicle, which may effect the safe operation of the vehicle. . . ."

The government could also set out standards and specifications for auto tires Mr. Haskett said this would prevent manufacturers from using Ontario as a dumping ground for substandard tires if other jurisdictions bring in tire safety legislation.

He said the cabinet has no intention right now of drawing up new auto safety rules based on the legislation but merely wants to arm itself with the authority to do so if manufacturers don't go along with its wishes.

Search Ends For Package

VICTORIA (CP) — The search has ended for an alleged booby-trapped package believed to have been mailed by Paul Chartier, who died when a bomb blast ripped a washroom near the Commons chamber Wednesday.

RCMP Superintendent G. R. Engel, head of the civil investigation bureau here, said Tuesday "unfounded confusion over names caused people to think" the package had been mailed to Chartier's wife, who lives under another name at Salmo, B.C.

"We've called off the hounds." Another RCMP spokesman said, "our original information was at fault. There was an error in names."

The search for the parcel was cancelled Monday after a number of cross-checks established Chartier had not sent any packages to his wife.
