Island Men Get Intensive Week of Training

Utopia, N. B., Army Camp: Members of the Prince Edward Island Regiment (armoured) recently carried out an intensive training program at this big Reserve Army summer camp and took every opportunity to try out on the ground lessons learned in the classrooms.
Led by Lt. Col. A. W. Rogers, ED, Charlottetown, Commanding Officer of the unit, the battalion arrived in camp on a Saturday and commenced serious training bright and early Monday morning. Since then each day had been the same. Rain or shine the men were out in their tanks, driving over the rough terrain, practising maintenance and repair or firing on the tank range. This summer training lasts only for one week and in such a short period of time every moment was of value and Col. Rogers saw that none was wasted.
