Opposition Leader Charges Premier Ridiculed Farmers

A well attended Conservative meeting was held at Hampton on Thursday evening. A goodly number of ladies were present to hear Miss Hesson of Winnipeg who gave an interesting address on organization and arrangements were made for further meetings.

Mr. Bell presented a copy of the brief as presented and read, dated March 14, 1950. The brief stated that "We are representing here today all our provincial rural organizations and the farm people in practically every rural school district in the province."

Mr. Bell also charged that the Premier was giving out altogether incorrect and unfounded statements as to the public debt and interest payments.

The force now is scattered through seven camps across Canada. Of the three infantry regiments in the brigade, the Royal Canadian Regiment is at Petawawa, Ont., the Royal

Community Party For Poplar Minister

There was a large attendance at the community party on Wednesday night, Oct. 18 at the O'Leary School when the residents of O'Leary said "farewell" to a popular minister and his family.

Rev. Mr. Burges thanked his friends in a few well chosen words. Delicious refreshments were served and this happy function concluded by all wishing the guests of honor every success in their new sphere of labor.

feed wheat, on their hands. However, the Agriculture Department, which administers the subsidy, said so far it has received no orders to withdraw the subsidy.

One official said that the future, however, was not clear and that it would be up to Cabinet to decide what course to follow.

"The freight assistance was a war measure," the official said. "The Cabinet may decide that since the war is long over, it should discontinue with the subsidy as an economy measure."

Started in 1941, the payments have averaged between $16,000,000 and $17,000,000 a year.

FORMER SECRETARY

southern district of New York from 1903-06. He ran for governor of New York on the Republican ticket in 1910 but was defeated.

The next year, President Taft called him to Washington as Secretary of War and launched him on a career that was to bring him international attention.

In 1927 he was named Governor-General of the Philippine Islands. Stimson returned to the Cabinet in 1929 as President Hoover's first and only Secretary of State, serving in that post until Franklin D. Roosevelt became President in 1933.

Roosevelt called him back to service in 1940 as a Republican Cabinet Minister - to his old post of Secretary of War. He held that position throughout the Second World War.

Stimson stayed on briefly when President Truman took office in April, 1945, at Roosevelt's death, but retired in September of that year.

Last July 16, Stimson fell at his Long Island home here and broke his left hip. He was in hospital for a month.

He celebrated his 83rd birthday Sept. 21.

LINK WITH

Pyeongyang. The newly landed paratroopers were reinforced by leading elements of the South Korean 6th Division. The South Korean troops linked up with the Americans at 8 p. m. (6 a. m. EST) Friday at Suncheon only six hours after the chutists made their drop.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the 6th Division's rapid move probably cut off many enemy troops and set the stage for a South Korean drive to the Manchurian border.

After watching the first airborne operation of the Korean war from his constellation plane, MacArthur said:

"I didn't see any opposition. It looks like it was a complete surprise. It looks like we closed the trap. Closing that trap should be the end of all organized resistance. The war is very definitely coming to an end."

It had begun June 26 when the North Korean Reds invaded south Korea and almost succeeded in overrunning the whole peninsula before the American-led United Nations forces could concentrate the power for the present successful counter-offensive.

AP observers said the only Red troop movements they could see after the drop were north of Suncheon and Sukchon.

They saw none between the drop area and Pyongyang to the south. Thus the Reds may have succeeded in pulling out all but last-ditch defenders from their one-time capital.

Weather Delayed Drop. Bad weather forced delay of the airborne operation from Thursday.

AP correspondent Leif Erickson reported from U. S. 8th Army headquarters in Seoul, the southern capital, that if the drop could have been made Thursday it would have trapped a much greater bag of Chinese Reds.

North Korea's Red Premier, Kim Il Sung, apparently escaped to Manchuria or Siberia. His Soviet-trained general staff and political advisers also have fled, probably to wage mountain guerrilla warfare against U.N. mop-up forces.

The delay of the drop also may have cut the chances of the paratroopers to achieve their second goal - the rescue of American prisoners of war.

Some captured Americans had been prodded out of Pyongyang toward Manchuria by the Reds just before American, British and Australian forces stabbed into the city.

Three hungry, bearded and lathered survivors of a death march from Seoul to Pyongyang told the story. They had escaped their captors and rejoined American forces in Pyongyang.

Report Death March. They said the group sent north and themselves, survived a "death march" of some 300 American prisoners from Seoul to Pyongyang in late September and early October.

During the march, they said, Americans died "like flies" from starvation, cold, pneumonia and dysentery.

Those who fell down were beaten and bayoneted by their Red guards. How many died they did not know.

The three survivors had dropped through a trap-door into a Pyongyang schoolhouse basement and hidden there since Saturday.

The paratroopers began moving immediately toward Suncheon, 30 miles northeast of Pyongyang, and Sukchon, 28 miles northwest of Pyongyang. By road, the towns are approximately 35 miles from Pyongyang.

Rotary Essay Contest Winners Are Announced

Yesterday morning the results of the essay contest sponsored by the Summerside Rotary Club, "Why I Should Support The United Nations," were announced during the Summerside High School assembly broadcast over the local radio station.

The judges of the contest were J. Watson MacNaught, M.P., Walter E. Darby, Attorney General, and Mr. Elmer Pineau of the Academy teaching staff.

First place winner was Eric Perry of the Summerside High School commercial department. Second, Betty Tobin, St. Mary's Academy, grade 10. Third, Janice Morrison, grade 10 Summerside High. Fourth, June Geddes, grade 10 Summerside High. Fifth, runner up for fourth, Marie Gaudet of St. Mary's Academy.

On Monday, October 23rd, the winners will be the guests of the Summerside Rotary Club at their weekly dinner meeting and at that time the prizes will be presented to them. The guest speaker at the banquet will be Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, who will speak on the United Nations.

MM Howitzers, special types of 90-MM guns, jeeps and trailers. It was the heaviest equipment ever dropped in combat.

American fighter planes rocketed and strafed the jump site in the broad Taedong River valley for 45 minutes before the men began to leap.

The United Nations commander returned to Pyongyang airfield after watching the drop, returning to Toyko after a 35-minute stay there.

In Pyongyang, Red troops were surrendering singly and in groups. AP correspondent Tom Lambert reported from the captured city that the Red Korean Government had fled.

American troops are committed to remain in Korea until that job is over. But apparently neither they nor the British Commonwealth troops assisting them will go to the touchy Manchurian and Siberian borders.

MacArthur has indicated South Korean troops will be used for any operations necessary near the borders.
