The Devil and the Lawyers.

The devil came up to the earth one day, And into a Court House he wended his way, Just as an attorney, with very grave face, Was proceeding to argue the points in a case.

Now a lawyer his devilship never had seen; For to his dominions none ever had been; And he felt very curious the reason to know, Why none had been sent to the region below.

'Twas the fault of his agents his Majesty thought; Why none of these sharpers had never been caught; And for his own pleasure he had a desire To come to the earth, and the reason inquire.

Well, the lawyer who rose with visage so grave, Made out his opponent a consummate knave; And the devil was really greatly amused To hear the attorney so aptly abused.

As soon as the speaker had come to a close, The counsel opposing him fiercely arose, And heaped such abuse on the head of the first, He made him a villain of all men the worst.

Thus they quarreled, contended and argued so long, 'Twas hard to determine the one that was wrong; And concluding he'd heard quite enough of the fuss, Old Nick turned away and soliloquized thus:

"If all they have said of each other be true, The devil has surely been robbed of his due. I am satisfied now, 'tis all very well— For these lawyers would ruin the morals of hell."

"They've puzzled the Court with their villainous cavil, And I'm free to confess they've muddled the devil; Men are right to let lawyers alone,— If I had them they'd swindle me out of my throne."
