YOUNG REDDY REMEMBERS

A lesson learned, a wisdom earned.

—Reddy Fox.

That is very true with Reddy himself. He never forgets, and that is one reason why he is one of the smartest of all the Green Meadow and the Green Forest folks. He sometimes makes mistakes. Everybody makes mistakes. But from his mistakes Reddy learns what to do and what not to do, and doesn't make the same mistake twice.

Young Reddy Fox was his father's own son. That means, he was just like his father. He looked like him, he acted like him, and he was smart enough to have learned a lesson twice.

The young Fox had just had a lesson it was a painful lesson. He had made the mistake of trying to catch someone about whom he knew nothing. It was Quawk the Night Heron. Young Reddy didn't catch him. Instead, he was now imping with a lame shoulder, and with another very sore place, made by the big pointed bill with which the Heron had struck him.

He had taken his father's advice and had gone home to lick his wounds, and to do some thinking while he licked. You know, licking his wounds is the best treatment that folks in fur, who have been hurt, can give them. The young Fox lay quietly until he became so hungry, he just had to go out to get something to eat. With that in mind, getting something to eat was his first thought. He had to eat what he could find, and he was not fussy. After a bit, he found he could run very well as three legs, but when he wanted to pounce on a Mouse, he wanted both front feet. He couldn't use that hurt leg, so more than one Mouse got away from him.

The young Fox began to steal forward toward the stranger. The latter went on his business, as if there was no such thing as danger; as if there were no enemies to watch out for. The young Fox crept nearer and nearer until at last he was within jumping distance. He prepared to spring, and suddenly he remembered. Yes, sir, he remembered. He didn't know a thing about this stranger. He looked perfectly harmless. He didn't look big enough to put up much of a fight. Still, that Heron had looked harmless.

"I don't believe he can fight at all," thought the young Fox, and once more he prepared to leap. Once more he hesitated. "That big bird looked harmless, too," thought he. The small stranger didn't look around, paid no attention to him whatever. Instead of springing on him, the young Fox lay down in the grass and watched him. It was queer that anyone should be so quiet in the open, and never look around to see if there was danger. Yes, sir, it was very strange. "I'll just watch him awhile," said the young Fox to himself.

EDMONTON (CP) - Nineteen cars of livestock—largest exhibit Alberta has ever sent to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto—will include 12 cars of beef cattle, two cars each of dairy cattle, horses and sheep, and a car of swine.

When the milkmaids returned, they poured the white fluid into shallow pans and it was carried to the cellar to cool. Then the whole family gathered outside the kitchen door where the morning clean-up act got underway. Now we see them seated in respectful silence around the table while father opens the Book of God and reads a chapter from its Holy pages. That reading, followed by a prayer and grace, ended the solemn moment and all were ready for the simple, yet wholesome meal.

ST. MARK'S A.Y.P.A.

The regular meeting of St. Mark's A.Y.P.A. was held in the hall, Oct. 10th with twenty-six members in attendance. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by prayer led by the Rector. The scripture lesson was read by Bill Pigeon. The treasurer gave his report. It was moved by Frances Jollymore and seconded by Bill Pigeon that the report be adopted as read. A discussion was held concerning the Corporate Communion to be held Oct 18th at 8.30 o'clock, followed by breakfast and installation of officers at the 11 o'clock service. A committee consisting of Isabel Cotton, Lauretta Mill, and Don Casely was appointed to make preparations for the breakfast. All were asked to attend the services. Collection and membership fees amounted to $4.05.

A Bible was presented to Lyman Moase and his bride. The meeting adjourned. Rev. Mr. Ingraham asked members to take pledge and receive My Plan and membership cards. Lunch was served by committee in charge.

CALGARY (CP) — Dr. P. S. Brown proudly displayed a ripe, red tomato weighing 1 1/2 pounds. It was picked from his greenhouse plot where he also cultivated orchids. "Next year," he said, "I may have a three-pound specimen."

Samuel, whose age was ten, had to be shaken awake, for like all boys of his age, he was a great sleeper. Lazily he crept from under the blankets and raced off to the pasture to bring home the milk cows.

Mabel and Hannah helped their mother prepare breakfast. Susie's duty was to make the beds and tidy up the rooms. Annie washed and dressed the younger children; everything about the house, now took time out to scald her churn, back with the cows and the two eldest girls put on their great sunbonnets and with pails in hand, started for the cowshed. The youngsters were sent to fill the large wood-box by the chimney corse, with fuel for that day's use. All the children went about their various tasks, and refueled and only in winter did pioneer children wear shoes.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By Josephine Culbertson

POST-MORTEM ON BIDDING

A READER requests comments on the bidding of the following interesting deal:

South dealer. North-South vulnerable and 60 on score.

♠ K J 8 ♠ A 7 4 ♠ A Q 6 5 ♠ A Q 3

♠ 10 7 6 ♠ N ♠ Q 9 4 ♠ 5 2 ♠ 3 ♠ J 6 2 ♠ 9 ♠ J 8 4 3 ♠ K 10 2 ♠ J 10 9 ♠ 8 6 5

This was the actual bidding: South West North East 1♥ Pass 3♦ Pass 3♥ Pass Pass

Obviously, North-South were not pleased at their failure to bid the ironclad slam—hence the following letter from the player who sat South:

"My partner left me in the three-heart contract because (he said) my non-jump rebid of the same suit was discouraging. Actually, I was interested in a slam, but I felt that no other bid was logical—at least until I knew whether we could agree on a suit.

Who was to blame for missing the slam?"

North was to blame, because he did not make a great enough effort to investigate the situation. His jump to three diamonds, though showing a big hand, was not specific enough to bring the needed cooperation from South. North should have chosen one of two courses, particularly at the score: he should have jumped directly to four notrump, announcing an extremely powerful hand and starting an inquiry for aces and kings; or, having made his three-diamond bid, he then should have carried South's response of three hearts to at least four hearts. Surely, with South rebidding the suit there was little or no danger that a four-heart contract could meet defeat, and if South chose to pass at that point, at least North would have fulfilled his duty.

It is quite true, from North's point of view, that South might have a hand that would not offer a good play for a slam, but the cards would have to be carefully chosen to build up such a possibility. It would have been far more logical for North to leap straight to six hearts over three than to pass at such a level—with or without a partner's score.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
