Former Naval Officer Charged With Spying

(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) WASHINGTON, July 14.—John S. Farnsworth, a former lieutenant commander in the United States navy, was held under $10,000 bail tonight on charges of selling confidential naval information to an agent of the Imperial Japanese navy.

Appearing before United States Commissioner Needham Tamm, Farnsworth, who had been shadowed for more than a year before his arrest last night—pleaded not guilty and told newspapermen the charges were "hoax."

The former naval officer was unable to furnish bond and was taken to the district jail to await a preliminary hearing July 20.

Later high ranking naval officers said that while Farnsworth, who was arrested by justice agents and naval intelligence officers last night, was not believed to have sold any vital information, they were deeply concerned because it emphasized the seriousness of espionage activities of foreign powers in this country.

Recalling that Harry Thomas Thompson, a former enlisted man, had been convicted of selling fleet secrets to a Japanese naval officer only ten days ago, navy officials said there was no doubt there was much spying activity in the United States.

The navy press office said Farnsworth and Thompson were the first navy men ever to face charges of disposing naval secrets to a foreign power. Farnsworth was discharged from the service nine years ago on charges of conduct prejudicial to the navy.

A complaint against Farnsworth charged that on May 15, 1935, he did "with intent and reason to believe that the same was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a certain foreign nation, communicate, deliver and transmit to an officer and agent of the Imperial Japanese navy a certain document and writing relating to the national defense."

The "Service of Information and Security," a confidential publication of the United States navy.

Navy officers said the volume contained confidential instructions on scouting, screening of ship movements, disposition of ships, and manoeuvring of tactical units.

DEALERS COMPLAIN AGAINST INTRUSION

NEW YORK, July 14.—Representatives of the dress suit rental trade have voiced a complaint against the practice of prospective brides accompanying their future husbands when they rented formal attire.

The consensus was that women were outside their field when they took a hand in this time-honored, pre-marital problem which should be settled among men and among men alone.

Picture, they said, a satisfied customer in a cutaway with a cooling dove standing by urging him to try on another just to see how it looks. It is a difficult situation to cope with, and causes considerable masculine suffering, they said.

Personal remembrance almost invariably results in loss of business and sometimes gives rise to torrents of humiliating invective.

The situation is graver at present because the Jung wedding business is about 10 per cent above last year's. This result in about 10 per cent more female domination.

One dealer in the business 28 years has not become resigned to this form of intimidation.

"You might hit 'em with the very first suit," he said, "and fit 'em perfectly, but the bride wants to see how they look in some more. They'd like 'em to look like Clark Gable in spite of the fact that they don't. And they don't know anything about this business. That makes it worse. If they're going to crab too much, I'll take a walk. You can't make every man look like John Barrymore."

Another dealer said he sometimes had bride difficulty even though he carried a large stock of shorts,

Rain Brings Relief To Central Michigan

DETROIT, July 14.—Sweeping rainstorms drenched central Michigan late today, sending the temperature tumbling from record highs to the low 60's and bringing relief from a heat wave which counted 500 deaths in a week.

Detroit was expected to share in the relief from a cooling wind. Rain fell within 50 miles of the city.

Port Huron, Bay City and Saginaw were spared a seventh day of the sweltering weather when a 20-mile breeze swept in from Lake Huron to drive the mercury down.

At Port Huron the temperature dropped to 79. Bay City had 82 and Saginaw 88 at mid-afternoon.

In Detroit today's top was 106. Mid-afternoon high recorded in the region included record 108 at Adrian; 104 at Battle Creek, 106 at Mt. Clemens, 106 at Jackson and 101 at Grand Rapids and Pontiac.

On the seventh day of the state's unprecedented heat wave, its death toll stood highest in the United States.

A Third of a Mile of Peonies

"About an infant's neck hang Peonie. It cures Aloydes' cruel malady," said Joshua Sylvester, the 16th century English poet, with reference to the ancient belief that the seeds of the peony work against the neck aches as charm against the powers of darkness. Traditions gathered around the peony both as a talisman against evil and as a cure for many illnesses. In eastern Europe, the origin of the name with many variations in the fabled Peon, or Palon, or Pacon, who cured the wounds of the gods in the Trojan war, as mentioned in the Iliad of the ancient Greek poet Homer.

In the Far East, the peony with its glorious colours was an inspiring sight to the poets of China in the misty past, while the common people were of a more practical turn of mind. As they do to-day, the inhabitants of northern Asia boil and eat the roots of the peony. The tubers of the common peony are also used as an internal medicine, being credited with wonderful properties for the cure of internal troubles, biliousness, colic, dropsy, convulsions, and hysteria. An infusion of the dried leaves is used successfully as an agent for the relief of internal complaint.

Whether or not the old-world wonder of the hanging gardens of Babylon were made glorious by the splendor of the peony is unimportant, because the beauty of the peony has been recognized for a long time in the fact of its being one of the most important perennials for the Canadian garden.

There are many amateur gardeners in Canada who justly boast of the length and beauty of their perennial borders of peonies. Thirty feet of glowing bloom in a garden makes a rare and imposing show, and one worthy to be proud of. But what can be said of a third of a mile of the most beautiful peonies ever seen in Canada—50,000 blooms in a breath-taking colour riot of ever-changing shades, white flecked with crimson, bronze and gold, red, dark red, pink, madder, flesh white all blended into one glorious June kaleidoscope.

longs, regulars, stouts and short stouts ranging in size from 32 to 52.

His biggest job recently when 21 men, including the bridegroom and best man, walked into his establishment at one time to be fitted. They were accompanied by one woman, the bride.

The average rental price for an afternoon outfit, or a full dress suit is $5, with $1 extra for a high silk hat. Tuxedos, in demand at this season for graduations, run from $3 to $4. In a busy establishment a suit lasts only about a year before being replaced. The worn ones are sold to waiters or to second-hand dealers. New styles also make it necessary to restock from time to time. Each suit is cleaned after each renting.

Active Year For Women's Institutes

work which should be continued but several clubs seem to have given the matter deeper consideration. I shall quote from a few of their reports. "We teach our children obedience to their teacher and fairness to their fellow pupils." "We get acquainted with the school work through the report cards and discuss it with the teacher." "We take interest in pupils' work, thereby making them interested and we get acquainted with the teacher." "We have had meetings in school by ratepayers, teacher, and inspector where questions were asked and answered."

Headteachers reports having held a discussion on "How can parents and teachers co-operate to give the child the most good out of the school year?" and one on "Is home work necessary for school children?" I could quote many more but those are enough to show that the idea of closer association between home and school seems to have made a definite hold on the minds of most of our members.

In addition to this all the branches are introducing educational features into their regular meetings. Roll calls are answered by Current Events, Canadian Authors, and quotations from their works, etc.; questionnaires are discussed and papers dealing with them prepared by the members or secured from the Supervisor's office and demonstrations and debates are held. Altogether it would appear that the foundation for the proposed work on Adult Education has already been laid throughout the province.

In closing I wish to impress on you the importance of providing adequate play-grounds for the school children. School gardens have their value for beauty is something they must be taught to appreciate but recreation is a necessity and it is very essential that they have ample space for games at a safe distance from the highway.

Respectfully submitted,

bec women have been trying for the franchise but it has been refused them again this year.

My questionnaires are the next subject on hand. They have been very well answered. I tried to make them as simple as possible knowing what a bother they seem to be at the monthly meetings. My first dealt with the schools. They were one in thinking that all women were more interested in children and in school than most men. Most of them found that the institute was the link between home and school although some had found a woman trustee was quite successful. It really depended upon the woman herself.

A great many hoped the Government would see fit to take over the Carnegie libraries and we still hope that some way may be found to carry it on. A very large number of institutes answered that they have enjoyed the boxes of books and we hope that this branch of library work may go on another year even if a small fee were asked.

A few have taken up the idea of short talks by each member in turn but I am afraid most of us are a little backward when it comes to public speaking.

We all agreed that our prohibition laws should be better enforced and we all pray that the law as it is will continue. Conditions in the other provinces are even worse than here. Also the traffic laws were mentioned a number of times. We all know that there is room for improvement there. Again the law concerning unmarried mothers needs revision.

A great many Institutes have taken incorporation papers within the year which gives them greater independence.
