DURABILITY OF THE CYPRUS.

Instances known to which it lasted for a long time.

The Cyprus is a notoriously slow-growing tree, and its wood just as notoriously durable. It is capable of not only resisting the action of the weather in a manner totally different to the other woods, but is wholly uninfected by immersion in water over a long period of years. It has many curious chemical properties, which hold its fibers and other constituents together so indissolubly that the ordinary changes which break down the tissue of ordinary woods are in Cyprus wholly resisted.

Instances are known where the wood of the Cyprus has endured for more than 1,000 years, leaving it still in a solid condition, subject only to the attrition of the elements, such as the gradual wearing away of the surface by the rocks. In the lower valley of the Mississippi a species of Cyprus is extremely abundant. And in New Orleans lately, while some men were excavating a trench, a Cyprus stockade was found which was erected in 1780 by the French as a protection against the Indians. Some of the pieces measured twenty-two inches in width, with a thickness of about twelve inches, and though it had been buried for so many years, it was in perfect condition when examined, even the sharp marks being still clearly visible.

By a series of experiments extending over many years it has been found that the Cyprus wood endures the varying conditions of greenhouses better than any other wood. Greenhouses exposed to all the vicissitudes of heat, moisture and changes of temperature, show the Cyprus timber used in their construction to be practically unaltered after more than 30 years of use; and, being sufficiently tough for the purpose, it is probable it will come more generally into use for building where a wood of great resistance is required. Many old doors made by the early Spaniards in America are still as serviceable as ever, although exposed to a most trying climate.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphia?

Do You Know that opium and morphia are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

your child

You note the difference in children. Some have nearly every ailment, even with the best of care. Others far more exposed pass through unharmed. Weak children will have continuous colds in winter, poor digestion in summer. They are without power to resist disease, they have no reserve strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, is cod-liver oil partly digested and adapted to the weaker digestions of children.

THE STORMY PETREL.

He Follows Vessels Across the Ocean as a Means of Livelihood.

During a recent trip across the Atlantic the passengers on one steamer had a vivid illustration of the character of this stormy petrel. Shortly after the ship left the Irish coast two or three of these birds were sighted at the stern of the ship. One had been caught at some previous time and its captor tied a bit of red flannel around its neck and let it go. The bit of red made the bird very conspicuous, and it could be easily identified.

That bird, with others that could not be so easily distinguished, followed the ship clear across the ocean. Rarely, during the day, did it come within sight, and, if for an hour or two it was lost to view, when feeding on the refuse cast overboard, it soon reappeared, and the last seen of it was within a few miles of Sandy Hook, when it disappeared, perhaps to follow some outward-bound steamer back to Ireland.

Precautions About Milk.

Milk is liable to be affected by the health and food of the animals supplying it. Frequently happens that the animals can eat certain herbs which, apparently, do not injure them, yet which poison the milk.

If a cow drinks polluted water her milk will be contaminated, although the animal may not seem to be affected. Under certain conditions, bacteria develop very rapidly in milk.

If vessels in which the milk is kept be not perfectly clean, or if the room, or refrigerator, contain any decaying substance, the milk will quickly be affected.

Soft Silk for Upholstery.

A great deal of soft silk is now used for upholstery, and it takes the form of draperies on chairs, flower-pot covers, cushions and curtains. These can all be washed if care is taken in the process. In the first instance, all grease spots should be removed with a little benzine, and any stain taken out, if possible, Wash in a thin lather of good soap, rinsing in tepid water, in which a pinch of gum arabic has been dissolved, and rapidly iron while quite wet.

A perplexing question.

Mr. James Payne, the novelist, tells of an amusing question put to him very seriously by a little boy of his own. The family were being driven out of their London house to make way for the painters, cleaners and whitewashers.

"Papa," said the child, who had evidently been thinking of the matter over in his own little head, "where do the people in heaven go when the spring cleaning begins there?"

The problem was too perplexing, even for Mr. Payne.

Deception.

The fortune teller tells Amanda: "The card says that a gentleman will call on you. He has light hair and has great deal of money." Leopoldine, Amanda's companion breaks in: "That is humbug. My experience has been that gentlemen with a great deal of money have no hair at all."

Scott's Sarsaparilla his Salvation.

Nothing blights existence like the knowledge that our appearance is repellent to those with whom we come in contact, nor is there any relief like that of feeling that the disgusting causes have been removed. My face was a mass of blisters, some of which were constantly full of matter. I run a bake shop doing my own business, and my face got so bad that customers drifted away. Then I tried Scott's Sarsaparilla and was recommended to buy a man and went to a doctor. He said my blood was in a horrible condition. I sold my business and moved to the city where Scott's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me. The first bottle did me much good, and after taking five bottles my skin is as clear as possible, and my face got so bad that customers drifted away.
