I. O. O. F.—The committee of the Natal Day Celebration, beg to tender their sincere thanks to the following gentlemen for their valuable assistance at their entertainment on the evening of the 26th, viz:—Messrs. W. H. Hill, A. Hermans, Cosgrove, Walker and Crowley; also the gentlemen composing the Orchestral Club.

The plankway on Dorchester street below Hillsborough Street is, at present, very dangerous to the pedestrian. The contractor, last fall, neglected "planking" it, and plank are now loose and sometimes thrown out of place, making it very dangerous to those passing after night. We direct the attention of the Street Committee to the matter.

LAST NIGHT, shortly after 11 o'clock, Private Watchman Cusack discovered that the warehouse of Messrs. McEachern & Co., on Dorchester street, was burglarized. He reported the matter to the police, who, after a diligent search, succeeded in arresting two suspicious persons named Patrick McKenna (sailor) and Patrick Lamb (truckman), on Lower Water street, near the head of Peake's No. 3 Wharf, at 2 o'clock this morning. One of these had on his person a large bottle of whisky. Shortly afterwards the police found a case of whisky in a lane near the burglarized warehouse. It was marked "M. & C." and the bottles in it were similar to the one found on the person of one of the prisoners. They were examined before the Stipendiary Magistrate this morning, who, after hearing the evidence of Mr. McEachern, the watchman and police, remanded the prisoners for eight days.

YESTERDAY, about ten o'clock, a young woman named Catherine McKinnon entered the Post Office and enquired for letters at the wicket. There were but four persons present—prominent among whom she noticed a young lad named Herbert Harris. She had in her saccque pocket at the time a purse containing $8.50. While at the wicket she felt some person thrust their hand into her saccque pocket, but not thinking of the purse or that there were thieves present, she paid no attention to it. Leaving the Post Office, she proceeded to the store of Geo. Davies & Co. to purchase some goods. There she found herself minus her purse and contents. After a diligent and unsuccessful search, her memory became refreshed with the thought that it was taken from her pocket while in the Post Office. She made known the facts to the police, and said she suspected Harris. He was arrested on the Market Square a short time afterward; and, when on his way to the station in charge of officer Chandler, a boy named Hughes, who was standing a McKenzie & Stumble's door, saw something drop from his (the prisoner's) person. A few minutes afterwards a boy named James Waddell, who was passing in the footsteps of the officer and the prisoner, picked up what Miss McKinnon identified to be her purse, and also what the boy Hughes says he thought dropped from the prisoner's person. Harris was tried before the Stipendiary Magistrate this morning. He says that while Miss McKinnon was in the Post Office there was a boy named Bell standing at her left side. He protests that he did not steal the purse; and as there is a possibility that Bell might steal the purse and lose it while crossing the Market Square, the prisoner was remanded until to-morrow.

THE SITUATION.

The Tension in Roumania.

Rumored Closing of the Baltic

(Special Despatch to Examiner.)

LONDON, April 29.

The tension in Roumania has been greatly relieved by a circular of M. Bratino, President of the Roumanian Ministry, to the Prefects, cautioning them against the assumption that the military convention with Russia has expired, and enjoining courtesy and forbearance towards the Russians, and calmness and firmness in the discharge of their duties until the questions at issue are submitted to the judgment of Europe.

A Bucharest correspondent says: "If this document had been promulgated when the Bessarabian and other questions were first broached, it might have prevented an enormous amount of violent and exceedingly impolitic agitation."

Negotiations between the English Commissioners and the insurgents, for cessation of hostilities in Thessaly, are progressing.

M. Treppoff, whom the woman Vera Sasablitch some time since attempted to assassinate, has been relieved of his functions as Prefect of St. Petersburg and of the Police.

A rumor comes from Vienna that Count Von Moltke, the well-known German strategist, who is visiting Copenhagen, is commissioned to negotiate a league between Denmark, Russia and Germany, for the closing of the Baltic. This rumor is probably based on a statement of the North German "Gazette" of Saturday, that it would not conceal its opinion, that the despatch of a British fleet to the Baltic, where many neutral interests might be affected, would render the situation more immeasurably complicated.

The Vienna "Montags Review" yesterday, published a Berlin letter believed to be semi-official on this subject. The letter said that it could hardly be expected that a foreign fleet would make its appearance in the Baltic against the wish of Germany.

The "Pail Mall Gazette" of Austria and Italy to prepare a plan of their own, amounts to neither more nor less than a verbally modified offer of the principle of equivalents, as the basis of a settlement of the Eastern question. That offer has been made again and again to Her Majesty's Government during the recent war; and we have no fear of their accepting it at a time when they would incur more conspicuous discredit by so doing, than on any past occasion.
