

Good Manners.

A FEW THINGS ONE SHOULD OR SHOULD NOT DO.

The following sensible hints on etiquette are taken from Good House-keeping.

A first call from a new acquaintance should be speedily returned.

Great pains should be taken by a hostess to introduce her people.

A mistress should inform her servants what they are to do at all corners.

One card a year left at the door, or one sent in an envelope, continue the acquaintance.

In calling on the son or daughter, every visitor should have a card for the father and mother.

Introducing should not be indiscriminately done, at home or in society, by an, lady however kind-hearted.

If one lady desires to be introduced to another, the hostess should ask if she may do so, of course inobtrusively.

There is no necessity of calling after a tea or general reception, if one has attended the festivity or has sent a card on that day.

No gentleman should ever be introduced to a lady unless her permission has been asked, and she be given an opportunity to refuse.

In her own house a hostess should always extend her hand to a person brought to her by a mutual friend and introduced for the first time.

Strangers staying in town, who wish to be called upon, should send their cards by post with address attached to those who they would like to see.

"Not at home" is a proper formula if ladies are not receiving; does it involve a falsehood. It merely means that the lady is not at home in company.

Cards of condolence must be returned by a mourning card sent in an envelope at such a reasonable time after the death of a relative as one can determine again to take up the business of society.

A lady who is fully aware of her own respectabilities, who has always lived in the best society, is never afraid to bow or call first, or to introduce the people whom she may desire should know each other.

Careless visiting is the machinery by which an acquaintance is kept up in a circle too large for social visiting, but every lady should try to make one or two informal calls each winter on intimate friends.

In America it is the fashion to shake hands, and most women, if desirous of being cordial, extend their hands, even on a first introduction, but it is perhaps, more elegant to make a bow only at a first introduction.

A lady has a right to leave her card without asking for the lady of the house, if it is not her day, or if there is reason—such as bad weather, pressure of engagements or the like—which renders time an important matter.

A disagreeable woman can always find precedents for being formal and chilling; a fine tempered woman can always find reasons enough for being agreeable.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Send a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sent at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada.
