Repercussions From Death Felt Strongly In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Repercussions from President Kennedy's death, while world-wide, will have a more fundamental domestic application to Canada than any other country outside the United States, is taken for granted here.

The reason lies in the geographical, economic and other factors which inextricably link Canada with the U.S.—from decience to comic books and cattle.

President Kennedy's decision to make Canada his first foreign port of call in 1961 after his election victory was a recognition of that fact.

So was Lester B. Pearson's visit to Hyannis Port, Mass., last May 10-11 for talks shortly after he had gone to London in his first trip as prime minister.

UPS AND DOWNS

Canadian-U.S. relations had their ups and downs in the Kennedy years, and had been under considerable pressure after the Hyannis Port meeting, which was noted at the time for its cordiality.

The U.S. had figured in both the 1962 and 1963 general election campaigns in Canada, amid charges and counter-charges that the Progressive Conservatives under John Diefenbaker were anti-American and conversely that the Liberals under Mr. Pearson were dominated by U.S. influence.

The final paragraph of the Hyannis Port communique had said "The prime minister and the president look forward to a period of particular activity and productive co-operation between the two countries."

That was true in some fields —but there were also some testing issues that arose in the six months ending in the president's assassination, sometimes with harsh words publicly on both sides.

COUNTER ALLEGATIONS

The Conservatives and Mr. Diefenbaker, countering earlier allegations that their term of office coincided with a breakdown in goodwill with Washington, said the spirit of Hyannis Port had speedily evaporated.

The question now is the impact that the New Frontier—as interpreted by Lyndon B. Johnson—will have on the fundamental fabric of the Canada-U.S. relationship, its strains and stresses of tempor.ry or longer nature and the path of efforts to resolve them.

What about Canada's determination to discourage a continuing dominance of American investment capital in some industri l sectors, as reflected in the special withholding tax?

There is the Canadian program—at a time when the U.S. has its own balance-of-payments problems—to boost sales to the U.S. and help trim a chronic payments deficit of $1,000,000,000 or more annually. Much of this is due to imports from the U.S.

There is the Canadian scheme to get larger entry to the U.S. market in autos and ports, while cutting such imports from the U.S.

There is the Great Lakes labor war, with most U.S. marine unions dedicated to frustrating Canadian trusteeship of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and four others.

Virtually on a day - to - day basis, government decisions must be made that arise from direct or indirect factors emanating from the huge nation to the south.

Mr. Pearson and others had insisted, in the face of criticism that relations with the U.S. had deteriorated since Hyannis Port, that that meeting merely established a "continuing dialogue" rather than any formula to guarantee sweetness and light.

That was the theme he had sounded in recent speeches in New York and Halifax, where he repeated his view that the era of automatic accord with the U.S. was gone forever.

"We can build up our made-in-Canada shock absorbers but we cannot secure immunity from the impact of anything you can do," he said at New York Nov. 6.

The president had been scheduled to introduce Mr. Pearson at a dinner in New York Dec. 4.

New Freight Rate Agreed On For Frozen Food To The U.N.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A new ocean freight rate for transporting certain frozen food products from Canada to the United Kingdom was agreed upon here Friday at a meeting of exporters. Representatives of shipping lines, and government officials from New Brunswick and Prince Ewdard Island.

The new rate was not announced following the meeting.

Craig S. Dickson of Moncton, executive manager of the Maritimes Transportation Commission, said a satisfactory rate for carrying frozen french fried potatoes was found.

A proposed increase in the rates was announced previously by ocean conference lines. A brief prepared on behalf of the exporters by the Maritimes Transportation Commission said imposition of the proposed increase would seriously hamper the export of frozen french fried potatoes.

Several spokesmen for the governments of the three Maritime Provinces and the federal department of trade and commerce expressed concern about the proposed increase in ocean freight rates and urged that some reasonable solution be found.

Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae of Prince Edward Island congratulated the exporters and the representatives of the shipping companies for their "willingness to understand each other's problems."

Also attending the meeting were representatives of the Saint John Port and Industrial Development Commission and the Port of Halifax Commission. John A. Paterson of Fredericton, New Brunswick's deputy minister of finance and industry, was the chairman.

Lord Hailsham Drops His Title

LONDON (Reuters) — Colorful Viscount Hailsam has officially buried his title in rites at the House of Lords.

The science minister will be known as plain Mr. Quintin Hogg — his name before he inherited his peerage — so he can return to the House of Commons.

"I hope I may be forgiven for saying 'Lord Hailsham is dead—God bless Quintin Hogg'," he said following his act of renunciation.

Hailsham, who was a challenger for the premiership won by Sir Alec Douglas-Home last month, is considered certain to win a Dec. 5 byelection as the Conservative Commons member representing London's St. Marlebone district.

He is the fourth man to shed his title following recent government legislation enabling peers to renounce titles for their own lifetime so they can be admitted to the House of Commons.

REMAINS IN CABINET

As "Mr. Hogg" he will continue to be a senior member of the cabinet as lord president of the council, a non - departmental portfolio, and science minister.

Tass Carries Death 'Flash'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass carried this as a "flash" on its international English-language radio-teletype cricuit at 3:48 p.m. AST Friday:

"It has just been officially announced that United States President John F. Kennedy has died in hospital after an attempt was made on his life by persons, as believed, from among the extreme right-wing elements."

Pope Deplores Kennedy Death

ROME (Reuters)—Pope Paul Friday night deplored the assassination of President Kennedy and praised him as a "great statesman."

The pontiff declared:

"We are strongly shocked by the tragic and sad news of the killing of the president of the United States of America, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, and of the grave wounding of (Texas) Governor Connally.

"And we are profoundly grieved by this wicked crime, by the mourning that strikes a great and civilized country in its leader and by the pain afflicting Mrs. Kennedy, her children and all her family.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

Here is an exceptionally fine hand once played by Helen Sobel. It occurred during the Vanderbilt in 1958.

Mrs. Sobel was declarer at four hearts and West led a club. She took the ace and cashed the A-Q of hearts, West showing out and discarding the eight of diamonds. Had the trumps been divided 2-2, the hand would have presented no specia l problem, since the lead now of the ace and another diamond would have provided a parking place for the four of spades and the only losers would have been two clubs and a diamond.

But with West showing out on the second heart, a serious problem arose. One conceivable line of play was to draw another trump and then either finesse in diamonds, hoping East had the king, or else play the ace and another diamond on the assumption that West had the king.

But this last line of play was bound to fail if the defense shifted to a spade. The spade loser could be saved by entering dummy with a trump to cash the queen of diamonds, but a second club trick could not then be developed in time because of a shortage of trumps.

Another method of play was to lead the A-10 of diamonds before drawing the third trump. This method would have failed because West would win with the king and return a di mond for East to ruff with the jack.

Mrs. Sobel solved the problem in simple but convincing style. At trick four she led the ten of diamonds.

West took the king, but the defense was now helpless. He did as well as he could when he led a spade, but Mrs. Sobel took the ace, cashed the ace of diamonds, and entered dummy with a trump.

After discarding a spade on the queen of diamonds, she led a club. When a spade was returned, she ruffed and was then able to build up her tenth trick by playing another club.
