VALUABLE DISCOVERY.—A late notable discovery is that of a process for transforming plaster of Paris into marble, pure and white, or of whatever grain, and scarcely varying from real marble in weight, while it is impervious to wet and cold, and is susceptible of the highest polish. This discovery has been made by one of our New York artists, Mr. Wallace Waterhouse, the landscape painter. It has (in its products) been critically examined by leading builders and workmen, and pronounced the desideratum. Waterhouse conceived his idea while sojourning in Italy, and after several months' chemical experiment, has fully realized it. It will give the sculptor a means of carving his work or statue in the most perfect corner of marble, while it is adapted for walls and ceilings of dwellings, and will give the builder power to put up with most elaborate marbles and other ornaments at a third of the cost of real marble. In truth, plaster of Paris marble promises, like faxation, to create a revolution in a branch of trade and industry.—New York Mirror.

AMERRET OF THE SULTAN.—A Story is told, which I cannot vouch for as being more than a report. It is said, that the Sultan has been so struck with the fact of English ladies charitably devoting themselves to the good of the soldiers as they have done here, that he came to the conclusion it must be "their Book," which made such a difference between them and the Turkish females. He has therefore ordered the Bishops to order to compare its teaching with that of the Koran! Whether this be the true version or not, it would certainly be matter of considerable importance, if English Christians out here were to be seen and noted as epistles of Christ indeed. Very quick to do this, perceive the difference between the Old and New Testament, and those Armenians who are truly converted by the Protestant missionaries. Very soon, too, will they observe and appreciate, as the case may be, the character of English Christianity; and much must, therefore, depend on the specimens which may now be exhibited hereabouts in samples of the material.—Eccegenial Christianian.

POLITENESS FOR LADIES.—Ladies complain that gentlemen pass them by in the streets unnoted, when in fact the fault arises from their own breach of politeness. It is their duty to do the ladies first, for it is a privilege which the ladies give of choosing their own associations or acquaintance. No gentleman likes the risk of being cut in the streets by a lady through a premature salute. "Too many ladies in world sense," don't know their trade" of politeness. Mowing ladies in the streets' whom one has casually met to company, they never bow, unless they bow first, and when a gentleman never departs from the rules of good breeding except occasionally by way of experiment, his acquaintance do not multiply, but he stands probably charged with rudeness. This rule is plain. A lady must be civil to a gentleman in whose company she is casually brought, but a gentleman need not upon this to presume upon acquaintance the first time he afterwards meets her in the street. If it be her will, she gives some token of recognition, when the gentleman may bow; otherwise he must pass on and consider himself a stranger. No lady need hesitate to bow to a gentleman, for he will promptly answer in return. He has forgotten his fair salutor. None but a brute can do otherwise—should he pass on rudely, his character is declared and there is a cheap ridicule. Politeness and good breeding is like law, the reason of things.

ALONE WIT.—There is a tradition that one of the old engineers in Malden, Massachusetts, had a slave who had been in the family, until he was about 70 years of age. Perceiving there was a man in the family who had been in the family, he said to one of his sons, "I would like to see you one day, and make him a somewhat pompous address, to the following effect:—'You have been a faithful servant to me and my father before me, and you have long been thinking what I should do to reward you for your service. I give you your freedom! You are your own man, and you shall be so. You shall be a free man, and with a slight glance, showing that he said through the master's intentions, quietly replied, "No, no, massa; you eat de meat, and you now must pick de bone!"

THE WIFE.—That woman deserts not a husband's generous love, who will not greet him with smiles as he returns from the labors of the day—who will not try to clean him, to his home by the enrichment of a cheerful heart. There is not one in a thousand so unfeeling as to withstand such inducements and break away from such a home.

RIGHTOUS RETRIEVAL.—The Journal de Constantinople says—"It was on the 8th September, 1851, that the Russians entered Warsaw, and it was on the 28th September, 1855, that the allied armies entered Subotopol by the Malakoff Tower. There are thus great expiations in the history of nations."

NOTICES.—The use of national seals would seem to be of English origin. The French, like the Spaniards, have adopted in their stead, a parchment of the ordinary method of authenticating public documents, so has the "paraph" in France, with this difference, that the difficulty of communicating the latter affords a greater security against any attempt at forgery. "Paraphes" are now commonly used throughout the Continent, not only by notaries and public men, but by persons of all ranks and conditions, even the ladies seldom sign their names without attempting a "flourish" of some sort. With a foreigner, the "paraph" is as necessary an appendage to his signature as the moustache is to his face.—Notes and Queries.

TRANS-ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.—We have heard of people endeavoring to move Heaven and Earth to accomplish an object. Precisely in this condition are our friends in the neighboring Republic. They want an Electric Telegraph from Europe to the United States, independently, if possible, of passing through British territory; to which they contemplate the circuitous route of Greenland, Iceland, and the Faro Islands. Brother Jonathan is neither turn to the right or the left but he finds Old BILL in his way. Now these confounded Colonies, embracing Nova Scotia and New Brunswick stand directly in his road hence he seeks a route through dreary and savage regions, whose eternal snows and savage Eskimoes, set bounds to his aspirations. What a pity it is, that the Great Republic, when it new-modelled the Constitution of the Mother Country, had not been vouchsafed the privilege of passing through the British Islands. Precisely in this condition are our friends in the neighboring Republic. All would have been perfect, but, as it is, our younger brother must content to play second fiddle to the Old Gentleman across the water, for a few Centuries more; he can't fix it just yet.—St John Chronicle.

THE LATE MAJOR WELSFORD.—The following letter was written by this late lamented officer within an hour of being blown to atoms from the cannon's mouth at Camp, Sept. 18. "This accidental day to some of us, as we are to return the Redan, the French the Malakoff, and, as you say, 'I would it were but time, Hal, and all were well.' But I trust in Providence, all will be well, and that I will be instrumental in making her Majesty a present of the Redan, as you say, 'I would it were but time, Hal, and all were well.' If God spare me, I will be the first in and first up. This is to be done by escalade. I am glad her Majesty has seen my photograph, for I am sure you would like me like them. No time for writing more, as the drums are going. Remember me to Lady— They asked me if I liked the panorama of the Light over. God bless you, my dear B—, Believe me truly yours, A.F. WELSFORD."

A GEM FROM AN OLD BOOK.—It has been eloquently and truly said, that if Christianity had not been introduced into the minds of the great, the academies of philosophers, the halls of legislators, or the throngs of busy men, we should find her last retreat with women at the bedside. There is a gem in an old book, which is gathering round the knee of a mother; the last sacrifice, the secret prayer, occupying in silence from her lips, and heard, perhaps, only at the throne of
