A MARVELLOUS STATEMENT.

The Oldest Merchant of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., Speaks of Paine's Celery Compound.

An Astonishing Victory Over Disease.

Every man, woman and child in and around the pretty town of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., knows Mr. W. H. Crysler, the deserving and successful merchant. Hundreds of families in the district are already aware of the fact that, by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, Mr. Crysler was raised up from a condition of utter helplessness, misery and weakness to a new life, and is now in such a healthful condition that he is perfectly able to look after the details of his flourishing business.

Mr. Crysler's story of his long fight with the worst form of rheumatism, his failures with useless medicines, and his grand triumph with Paine's Celery Compound, are given to the public as follows:—

"About four years since I had a severe attack of grippe, followed by rheumatism, for which the local physician prescribed the usual remedies, which helped me at the time, but did not eliminate the disease. Becoming gradually worse, I finally became discouraged and began using 'proprietary' medicines without any benefit. Then I went to 'Clifton Springs,' took the treatment, and felt somewhat better; but after coming back I became very much worse, and was confined to bed for a time. I then went to 'Preston Springs,' and really improved; but after returning home I got worse, and was a perfect martyr for more than two years, often confined to bed and gradually becoming worse.

"I was then induced to try Paine's Celery Compound, and have gained in health and strength up to the present writing. I now walk from my house to the store, a distance of one quarter of a mile, daily, and to church Sundays. Paine's Celery Compound has done all this for me. My friends are surprised and astonished to see me able to attend to business again. I might add that I have been in business in Niagara for 41 years, and was 70 years old on 7th January last.

"Believing that it is my duty to let other sufferers know of the great benefit I have received from Paine's Celery Compound, I cheerfully send this letter."

"THE BRANK."

A Collar of Torment for Scolds.

Among the curiosities of the London Tower is a collar of Torment which used formerly to be put about the necks of women who were noted scolds.

This collar or bridle for scolds and gossips was called the "brank." It seems never to have been a legal punishment, as the ducking stool was, but, nevertheless, it was used extensively, and there are several branks still preserved as curiosities in different districts of England. Waldron thus describes it:

"I know nothing of the many statutes or punishments in particular but this, which is that if any person be convicted of uttering a scandalous report, and cannot make good the assertion, instead of being fined or imprisoned, they are sentenced to stand in the marketplace on a sort of scaffold erected for that purpose with their tongues in a noose of leather; and having been exposed to the view of the people, on the taking off of this machine they are obliged to say three times, "Tongue, thou hast lied.'"

The brank was commonly made as a sort of cage of hoop iron, going over and fitting fairly to the head, with a flat piece projecting inwards which was put in the mouth, thus preventing the tongue from moving. It was then padlocked, and the scold was either chained up or led through the town.

The earliest dated brank is preserved at Walton on-Thames, and bears the date 1633, with the inscription:

"Chester presents Walton with a bridle
To curb women's tongues that talk to idle."

There is a grotesque scold's bridle at Doddington Park, Lincolnshire, which is a mask having eye holes and a long funnel-shaped peak projecting from the mouth; there were some cruel ones with gags, but these can scarcely come under the head of scolds' or gossips' bridles.

There was one at Forfar with a spiked gag that pierced the tongue, and an even more severe one may be seen at Stockport, while those at Ludlow and Worcester are instruments of torture.

A contributor to Ram's Horn was once on a time sitting across the street from a chapel of colored people in Jacksonville, Florida, and heard the following unique and original exposition, by the preacher, of the parable of the rich man and Lazarus:

"An' now, bredren, an' specially you, sisters, why do ye s'pose de rich man wanted de water on de tip of de tongue only, and not all ober de hull body? I will tell yer. Mind now, an' specially you, sisters. Because de sins ob de tongue are so much wuss dan all de oder sins of de body, dat dis tongue burned so much mo' dan de rest of him dat he forgot ebrything else in its fire. Ah, sisters, t'ink ob de words dat are running off yo' tongue continually, an' look out for de tip ob fire in de nex' world."

Evidently the colored preacher's conviction that the sins of the tongue were wicked in the extreme and deserving of severe penalty was in a measure the belief of the old English law-makers.

Queen In Peasant Dress.

Having donned the costume of a Tuscan peasant, in which she looks remarkably well, Queen Margherita of Italy has been climbing the mountains around Gressoney. The costume consists of a short, full petticoat of the brightest scarlet, a close-fitting black velvet corsage with braces across the shoulders arranged over a snowy chemisette, and large sleeves of cambric. Black silk stockings are worn and low shoes with handsome silver buckles, while a heavy chain, also of silver, hangs around the neck and down to the waist. The unrivaled headdress of white linen falling on to the shoulders and fastened to the hair by large silver pins, which is now, unfortunately, so rarely seen in its native home of Italy, rested on the Queen's beautiful hair, and completed as charming a costume as any painter might wish to depict.

An Aeronautic Terrapin Alights.

A terrapin about as large around as a silver dollar was the subject of a good deal of talk in Valdosta the other day, and the same terrapin has come near settling in the minds of some people the theory that fish, frogs and the like are often rained down in severe storms. During the heavy rain recently in Macon the terrapin fell in the street. It was seen to strike the ground by two men and a little boy. There is no explanation as to where it came from except on the theory that it rained down, and the question now is: Was that really the case?

Don't Make Any Mistake

When you are threatened with consumption or lung troubles and get the wrong kind of emulsion. There is only one perfect, pleasant and effective preparation of that life giving substance and it is Miller's Emulsion. There is no bad taste to this preparation. It is compounded on an entirely new principle, by which the vital energy of the liver of the Norwegian codfish is retained and incorporated with the hypophosphites of lime and soda, making the most potent blood maker known to science. It has saved thousands of young lives, and is revolutionizing the old methods of consumption treatment. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.

Counterfeits

A few years ago a great discovery was made.

Unprincipled persons are trying to prey upon and dupe people who are led to ask for kidney treatment.

Some of the methods adoptee by imitators are as follows:

First—To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by count.

Second—To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to be offered at the same price.

Third—To hook on the work "kidney" in naming cathortic pills so as to increase sales of mere physic.

Fourth—To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.

Look out for such dodges. When you want kidney medicine you want the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.

So beware.

HABITUAL DRUNKARDS.

The Plan Followed in Austria in Treating Such Cases.

The Austrian Government has prepared a bill for the treatment of habitual drunkards. The measure proposes to empower the authorities to open retreats for inebriates, and distinguishes between the voluntary and the compulsory detention of drunkards in these establishments. Those who enter voluntarily will be able to leave at will, but are to be treated exactly like the compulsory inmates. The latter class may be sent to the retreat of the respective districts, either by the order of a magistrate or on the petition of the parents or children, or of the husband, or wife, or trustee, or of the chief of a lunatic asylum in which the drunkard may be detained.

Inebriates may further be assigned to retreats by the action of the public prosecutor, or by the mayor or burgomaster of the town or village in which the habitual drunkard resides, whether he belong to that place, district, town or province or not. In all four classes of cases the detention of the inebriate must be preceded by an ordinary judicial action before a court of first instance which is bound to hear witnesses, including the drunkard himself, as well as the doctors, more especially experts on mental diseases.

The term of detention will be generally for two years, but the "patient," as the inebriate is constantly called in the bill, may be released on leave after one year, but will be confined again in case the trust reposed in him should prove to have been ill-placed. After the two years' term he must be released, but if he should afterwards come under the provisions of the measure he may be sentenced again and again for fresh terms of two years, and eventually given over to a lunatic asylum or to a hospital, as the case may require.—New York Post.

The Treatment of Sprains.

The extremes are the best remedies for a sprain—either hot or cold applications. As quickly as possible after the injury place the part—hand, wrist, foot, ankle—whichever it may be, in a vessel of hot water; keep the water hot (this is best accomplished by adding more boiling water from time to time, instead of emptying the vessel each time) and do not remove the part for several hours. The steady heat reduces the inflammation and greatly favors a more rapid cure. If the injury is at the knee, it can be more easily treated by the continual application of cloths, flannel or sponge wet with hot water. Have a new wet cloth ready to put on the instant the other is withdrawn. This, like the bath, must be kept up for two or three hours. After the heat apply a bandage, not tight enough to bind, merely close and firm enough to make gentle pressure. Do not upon any consideration attempt to use the member until the swelling and pain have subsided; then begin gradually. First accustom the member to movement by carefully rubbing it and very gently lifting it.

If one is injured when far removed from a place where hot water can be secured, cold treatment may be employed, and the after treatment conducted the same as when heat is used.

Anecdote of Wendell Phillips.

In 1833 I happened to meet Wendell Phillips in the streets of Boston.

He was walking faster than usual.

"Where are you going, Mr. Phillips?" I asked.

"I'm hurrying to Faneuil Hall. There's a meeting there. President Grant has called out troops in New Orleans to suppress the riots, I must be at the meeting!" and away he went.

I followed the eloquent man, then in his prime. At Faneuil Hall there was a great Democratic crowd. The Democrats were indignant at the Government and it was dangerous for a Republican to speak. I entered in front, and just as I cast my eyes on the platform I saw Mr. Phillips begin to ascend it from the speaker's entrance. A Democratic orator was speaking, but no sooner had Mr. Phillips' head appeared above the platform than the people began to shout "Phillips, Phillips!" Very soon he was addressing the audience, and endeavored to conciliate and pacify his hearers.

"In all cases where great peril to citizens exists," he said, "it is the duty of the Government to protect them." No sooner had he finished the sentence than a number of men began to hiss.

"The great orator paused a moment and then an inspired wrath took hold of him, his great eyes gleamed, and in a blast of irony he exclaimed:

"Truth thrown into the cauldron of hell would hiss like that!"—Boston Post.

Sterilized Milk.

The advantages of obtaining milk in a form in which it will not go bad, which obviates the necessity for making the day's consumption fit the day's supply, and, above all, the advantage of knowing that the milk is safe without any further boiling, are so great that those who understand the importance of these things are surprised that sterilized milk has not come into greater favor than it has. The substance which goes by the name of sterilized milk is somewhat different from ordinary milk. The albumen is converted into peptone, and the relation of the fat to the other constituents is in some way changed, so that very little fat separates from the emulsion. The nutritive properties of the milk are not interfered with. In England, where the work of sterilization is carried on on a large scale, the milk is placed in bottles, containing each one-third of a liter, and submitted to steam at a temperature of 103 degrees C., the bottles being agitated all the time to prevent separation. These bottles are sold at 2c. each.—Hearth and Home.
