Boston Markets.

SIR,—The past week has been a fairly successful one with the fish trade. Prices in some lines have, however, suffered; with prospect of a heated term, dealers are not disposed to operate freely.

Our shore mackerel fleet continue to land large quantities of mackerel and, as they all come of small size, prices are lower, trade being well stocked on them. They are selling mixed at $3.50 to $4.50 per barrel. Large mackerel are much wanted at $8 to $10.50 per barrel.

Some receipts of Nova Scotia mackerel selling at $6 for mediums, and $7 to $7.50 for large.

What Island mackerel are coming to hand, being of fair size and quality, are selling at $11 to $12 for unculled fish. No sales yet reported from boat arriving 18th inst.

The hot weather is having its effect on dry fish, making dealers very timid about taking on any lots. Would quote large pickle cured Shore Codfish, heavy salted and white at $4.25; mediums, $3.00 per qtl.; large Shore (ketch cured) $4.50; large dry Bank, $3.50; mediums $3.00; Hake, $2.25; Haddock, $2; Cusk, $2.20. Cod oil 40 to 42 cents; Herring oil, 30 cents per small gallon.

Demand for barrel herrings is light, and is apt to continue so until cool weather sets in; large Nova Scotia Shore splits $4.75, round $1.50 gibbed $2.45, Bay Shore, gibbed, $2.25 to $2.50, Bay Shore, split $2.50, Bay of Islands, splits, $2.25, Ale-wives, $3.25 to $3.50, Salmon, in good supply and very quiet at $14.00, with prospect of lower prices.

Eggs quiet at 19 cents for best marks of Island and Nova Scotia. Canned lobsters, 1 pound talls, labelled, $1.55 to $1.60 per doz. Blueberries, one and half pound cans, labelled, $1.30 per doz. wanted.

Yours truly,
EDWARD T. RUSSELL & Co.

The Queen's Estate.

HER IMMENSE FORTUNE AND WHAT SHE MAY DO WITH IT.

London Truth, referring to the announcement made that the Queen is about to make a new will, says:—"Her Majesty possesses an immense fortune. The estate of Osborne is at least five times as valuable as it was when it was purchased by the Queen and Prince Albert about forty years ago. The Balmoral property of Her Majesty now extends over 30,000 acres.
Clarendon was granted to the Queen for life in 1866, with reversion to the country; and Her Majesty purchased the property outright three years ago for £78,000. Probably its market value is not much under £150,000. The Queen also possesses some property at Coburg, and the Princess Hohenlohe left her the Villa Hohenlohe at Baden, one of the best residences in the place. With regard to personal property Mr. Field left the Queen over £500,000, and the property left by the Prince Consort is believed to have amounted to nearly £600,000; but the provisions of his will have been kept a strict secret, and the document has never been proved. The Queen must also have saved a vast sum out of her income, which has always been very well managed. Since the death of the Prince Consort the general administration of the Queen's private affairs has been confided to Lord Sydney, who is a consummate man of business.

"I have reason to believe that in due course, application will be made to Parliament on behalf of the children of the Prince and Princess of Wales. Indeed, there is to be a royal message on the subject of Prince Albert Victor's establishment next session.
The country will not, however, be asked to provide for the younger members of the royal family. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh are already wealthy, and on the death of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, they will migrate to Germany; but the Connaughts, Albanys, Christians and Battenbergs will look to the Queen for provisions, and so also will any of the younger children of Princess Alice, who may happen to make poor matches. It will be seen, therefore, that the Queen will have plenty to do with her fortune, large as it undoubtedly is, and although in the event of Her Majesty's death the country would be asked to provide for Princess Beatrice, yet she would naturally occupy an important place in her mother's will.

The "Mistral's" Sanative Effect.

The "mistral," a strong and dry northerly wind, is again blowing at Marseilles, as a cable message informs us, and the health of the city is said to be consequently improving. At all other times than during a cholera epidemic the mistral is in bad repute, and according to an old Provençal rhyme is one of the three plagues of the country. The fluctuation in the death rate on the Mediterranean coast now during the prevalence of the mistral shows that it is a sanative agent, not less propitious than the "Favonian breeze" so often lauded for its similar virtues by the classic poets. One excellency of the mistral at this juncture is that, while in several respects disagreeable, its temperature is quite regular and free from sudden changes. Next to the bad effects in the cholera epidemics of intense heat combined with great humidity and sultriness, excessive range of temperature in short periods must be most deprecated; and this happily is not one of the attendants of the mistral.

Advance proofs of a portion of Julian Hawthorne's biography of his father have been seen by some of the leading literary critics of London, and they say that it is likely to prove one of the finest of modern biographical works.

CURRENT NOTES.

The Mousseau-Mercier commission reopens on the 25th inst.

There were 44 deaths from yellow fever at Havana during the past week.

Lord Granville has advised China to pay the indemnity demanded by France.

A debt repudiation resolution has been introduced in the Virginia legislature.

Brigandage is again rife in Italy. The government is adopting energetic measures to suppress it.

It is thought Ferry would give up the French claims in Newfoundland in return for the Leeward Islands.

Ottawa Sun: "Bismarck is itching to pick a quarrel with England. If he succeeds he will probably wish he had never been born."

The British ambassador has assured Turkey that Lord Northbrook's mission does not indicate a change in England's Egyptian policy.

The mistral winds have set in at Marseilles, and are having a good effect on the health of the people, though in other parts of France the cholera seems to spread.

The Bible Christian Church authorities in England have accepted the proposals of the branch in Canada regarding the funds of the society in regard to the Methodist Union scheme.

Three deaths of a remarkable character, have occurred near St. Petersburg. They were caused by blood poisoning induced by the stings of flies which had been in contact with cattle infected with the rinderpest.

Foreigners are looked upon with much suspicion in beautiful Leipzig. As an example of the officiousness of the police, it is related that an American student at the conservatoire was lately arrested for "stealing wood," and was condemned to twenty-four hours imprisonment and payment of all expenses. He had, in reality, picked a small sprig of lilac, weighing about one-quarter of an ounce, from a tree which overhung the street.

Great fears are entertained that the hack-matack trees will finally succumb to the attack of the industrious saw-fly, which has been at work for several years. This year they have been more destructive than ever, the trees having been entirely bereft of foliage in July. A new growth is now appearing on the limbs, only to furnish succulent food for the second crop of larvæ which will make its appearance shortly.—Bangor Commercial.

Princess Louise left England on Saturday to spend the autumn in Germany. Lord Lorne is yachting with his father and mother in the Hebrides. It is reported he will succeed his brother, Lord Campbell, in Argyleshire at the next election to the House of Commons as the liberal candidate.
His book, Canadian Pictures, by pen and pencil, is just issued, and lavishes praise upon the Dominion. He waxes enthusiastic over her democratic institutions.

July 28 was the anniversary of the deplorable mistfortune which befell the Island of Ischia last year. It had been resolved to celebrate it with religious ceremonies, and four steamers laden with the friends of the victims went over from the mainland on a sad pilgrimage. Four altars of wood draped with black were erected, and two bishops celebrated a pontifical mass for the repose of the souls of the dead. At the cemetery, which was visited by a large crowd, a priest delivered a touching address, in which he alluded to many of the incidents of the terrible catastrophe.

The great Duke of Wellington was most punctilious in all matters of etiquette, and his son once aroused his ire, by neglecting to show him the courtesy he demanded of others. When the late Duke was stationed at Dover with his regiment, all the officers left cards upon the hero of Waterloo, with the exception of his own son. At a great dinner given at the Walmer Castle
