The bidding:
West North East South
1♥ Pass East 2♥
Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥

Opening lead—king of diamonds. There is no harm in losing a trick that has to be lost in any case. But it is sometimes possible, while losing a trick, to gain one in its place. When this happens, the trick initially lost turns out to be no loss at all. South showed a strong hand by skipping to two hearts. North raised to three and South naturally went to four. West led a diamond, received the three from East, and shifted to the queen of spades, on which East signaled with the seven. Declarer could count four losers, since the club finesse, on the bidding, was practically certain to fail. Starting with nine sure tricks, the problem was to develop a tenth. There was no possibility of an elimination play or a throw-in, since there were too many safe exit cards West could have. So declarer simply went about the process of manufacturing the tenth trick without benefit of any kind of endplay. He took the spade with the ace and entered dummy with a trump. The jack of diamonds was led and South discarded his spade loser. This play didn't gain or lose a trick, but simply substituted a diamond loser for a spade loser. West won with the queen and continued with a spade which South ruffed. A trump to dummy enabled declarer to lead the ten of diamonds, and this time South threw away a club loser. West took the ace—his third trick—and led another spade which South ruffed. By this time declarer's work was done. His purpose in giving away some of his losers early in the hand was by now accomplished. The eight of diamonds had developed into a trick—the important tenth trick. The queen of clubs was discarded on the good diamond. All South had done throughout the play was simply to change the identity of the sure spade and club losers into diamond losers. The substitution enabled him to gain a trick. The three tricks he lost turned out to be, peculiarly enough, the A-K-Q of diamonds.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
