The Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CANADA BEING ADE-QUATELY REPRESENTED. SIR CHARLES TUPPER'S ADDRESS.

On Thursday last Sir Charles Tupper visited the Toronto Industrial Exhibition and addressed the 30,000 exhibitors and spectators, inviting the sympathy of the exhibitors in the coming Colonial and India Exhibition. Sir Charles Tupper said:— "He had witnessed with immense pride and satisfaction a portion of the magnificent exhibition made under the auspices of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition. (Applause.) He congratulated them from the bottom of his heart on what they were able to present for the consideration of the people of Canada. He could say without hesitation that there was no other thing which he could possibly conceive would be of greater advantage to the people of Canada than that of visiting the Colonial Exhibition should see a similar display from this country. (Applause.) Such a spectacle would give the world convincing proofs that Canada instead of being a few acres of snow as a King of France once thought, had a soil and climate and resources equal to that of the most favored land. The display would show something still more important, that Canada possesses among her people the INTELLIGENCE, INDUSTRY AND VIGOR necessary to turn the natural resources and advantages of the country to good account. (Applause.) He proceeded to point out the importance of Canada being well represented in her exhibits at the Colonial Exhibition. It was to be held in London, the heart of the British Empire—the emporium of the commerce of the world, with its five millions of population. Hundreds of thousands of people from foreign countries would visit this exhibition for the purpose of studying what the resources of the colonial empire of Brittain actually were. Canada would then have a grand opportunity of indicating her claim, already conceded, to be Britain's premier colony. He showed that all that Canada required to become a great nation was that the world should become possessed of accurate knowledge of her resources, Government, and institutions, and no better means could be devised of spreading this knowledge than the projected exhibition, if Canada would avail herself of it to the fullest extent. Once the knowledge he had alluded to was given to the world there would be an inflow of capital and population to the Dominion which would develop the country with marvellous rapidity. To the overburdened tenant farmers of England and Canada offered advantages which could not be surpassed by any other country, and the exhibition would help to make this fact patent. In order to induce such people to make Canada their home, it was necessary to satisfy them that their children could get here a first-class education, and he felt that this duty would be safe in the hands of the Ontario Government, as they had a deep interest in the stake and would see that the educational facilities of Ontario were properly set forth. He would be able to point with pride to the magnificent evidences which the Ontario Government would furnish him of the unequalled facilities the provinces offered for obtaining education both in the primary and higher grades. Every child who attended the Colonial Exhibition would receive a memorial certificate, while a committee of experts appointed for the purpose would give to the world an exhaustive report upon the goods and articles shown. He knew well that we could avail with confidence what the report of the committee would be in regard to the excellence of our educational system. We had to show, moreover, that young as the country was, Canada, while cultivating the mind, had not neglected the arts, and this brought them to the question of art. Mr. O'Brien, who as an artist had made Ontario

KNOWN ALL OVER THE WORLD, would give his co-operation in connection with the Government in getting up by loan and collection such illustrations of our art as would be a credit to the country. (Applause.) After enumerating the various ways the Colonial Exhibition would promote Canadian interests from a purely commercial point of view, by creating a demand for our products both in England and Australia, he pointed out that in doing justice to the resources of the country, by our representation at this exhibition, the people would be only doing justice to themselves and to the world at large. He expressed regret that, considering there was such a demand for petroleum and its products in Europe, Canada had not been represented at the Antwerp Exhibition by a single entry in this article, and hoped that the defect would be remedied at the Colonial Exhibition. Such an exhibit as he had seen there that day of petroleum and its products would in London be worth thousands of dollars to us. Canada had never such an opportunity of making known what her resources were as the exhibition offered, and was not likely to have it again for a long time. He could not therefore impress upon them too much the importance of turning it to profitable account. In conclusion, he reminded them that all good representation at the exhibition would be carried across the Atlantic free of cost to the exhibitor, and would be either sold at the most profitable rate or returned free at the option of the owners. (Applause.) The only exception to this rule would be in the case of cattle, because considering the demand for fat cattle in England, he presumed that if these were carried free the Government would have to charter a fleet of vessels to carry the number which would be offered. Living animals would, therefore, have to be sent under the care and at the expense of the owners.
He did not think that they could be sent to a better market than to the Colonial and Indian Exhibition." (Cheers.)

Address.

To J. M. MARTIN, Esq., Teacher, Park Corner.

DEAR SIR.—As you are about to leave us, after five years of faithful service, we feel that we cannot allow you to go away without some token of our esteem.

In the discharge of your duties as teacher you have merited our sincere regard; and those whom you have taught, will never forget that they owe you a debt of gratitude.

As a friend to all good works, you have always been ready to lend your assistance in every effort to promote the general welfare of the whole community. In the Sunday School, your earnest benefit, we have no doubt, will prove a lasting benefit. As President of our Literary Society, your labors have been highly appreciated. Your success as a teacher, if not all that you may have desired, has been sufficient to win the hearty approval of all.

You leave us carrying with you the best wishes and esteem of the whole community, and we sincerely hope that in whatever sphere of usefulness your lot may be cast prosperity may attend you, and that your life may be long and happy, as well as useful.

REPLY:
To Wm. Ramsay, J. P., Anthony Stewart, Wm.
Donald, Rev. W. A. Mason, B. A., Rev. T. B.
Reagh, Charles A. Crosby, Esq., Capt. George A. McLeod, John McLeod, Senator Montgom-

DEAR FRIENDS.—It has been very gratifying to me through all the years I have been with you, to know that my humble efforts to perform my duty have been so heartily appreciated. I cannot conceal the fact that the consciousness of my merit being over-estimated, was an incentive to me to attain, if possible, that eminence to which your indulgent disposition so early assigned me.

My efforts in the Sabbath School, I trust, will be attended with good results, although I come far short of what a Sabbath School teacher ought to be. I feel, however, that I have incultured in my class a love for Scriptural study, which, if properly followed up, will be attended with blessed results.

My connection with your Literary Society has been a source of pleasure and profit to me, and I will not soon forget the many pleasant evenings we spent together at its meetings.

Your kind wishes for my future welfare are in perfect keeping with your conduct towards me in the past. The height of my ambition in society is that my lot may be cast among people possessed of as many social virtues, as appreciative and indulgent as those whom I now regretfully leave behind.

A HALIFAX GIRL'S DEATH-BED STORY—A MOTHER'S HIDDEN SHAME—REFUSING TO ACKNOWLEDGE HER ILLEGITIMATE CHILD, BUT THE TRUTH REVEALED AFTER MANY YEARS.

The Halifax Chronicle contains a harrowing tale, disclosed on the night of the 22nd inst., by a young girl on her death bed. A little over fifteen years ago a young woman, now the wife of a Dominion Government official in Halifax, and related to a family of well known and respectable people, was delivered of an illegitimate child, a girl. The child was placed in a city orphanage, where it remained until three years ago, when she was taken out by a family in need of a maid servant. For some time the girl lived with these people, but the latter removing to San Francisco left her to shift for herself.
In searching for a new situation, she happened to visit the home of her mother's sister, who, recognizing the family resemblance, and aware of the episode of many years before, made inquiries which RESULTED IN THE GIRLS IDENTIFICATION beyond a doubt. The aunt undertook charge of the girl for the time and made the latter's mother acquainted with the discovery. The mother, respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, became terror-stricken that her husband, who was in ignorance of her early disgrace, should learn the terrible story, and threatened, if the affair was disclosed to him, to kill herself. In conjunction with the sister, who first made the discovery, the homeless
