THE STORY OF OIL.

THE duty on coal oil, and the high price prevailing for that article, were most violently denounced by the Grits when in Opposition, and by none of them more violently than by Sir Louis Davies. Any one who had the slightest respect for Sir Louis' word believed that, with a change of government, the oil duty would disappear and the price diminish. Well, the duty was reduced to the extent of about one (1) cent per gallon,—which change was accompanied by an increase of about four cents in the price of the oil; and the Canadian oil interests have fallen into the hands of Rockefeller and his gang.

Here is the story of how the job has been done. In order to get the run of the Dominion, Rockefeller's emissaries had made an offer to the Conservative organizers that for a reduction to three cents a gallon $100,000.00 cash would be paid while for a change in the law, so as to allow importation in tank steamers, an annual payment would be made for campaign or other purposes. The Conservatives were not selling legislation, and refused to comply.

The present Government were not long in power when they legalized the importation of oil in tank steamers,—the very thing for which it was well known Rockefeller had been willing to pay an enormous bribe.

This concession gained, the oil magnates commenced their game in earnest. The Canadian refiners were quietly told that they might as well surrender first as last, as the tank steamer legislation enabled the Standard Oil men to put the oil down so low in price as to ruin their competitors. The Canadians made a virtue of necessity and sold out to Rockefeller, who had now full command of the Canadian market.

The next move on the part of the combine was to notify the railways that they must give a different and a lower rate to them, as against their U S competitors, or they would adopt transportation by water, and divert an enormous business from the railways. The railways were compelled to surrender, and the Standard Oil Company had it all its own way from one end of Canada to the other. It controlled all the refining, and absolutely regulated the price of transportation, and had nothing to do but fix the price, which became over Canada as a whole about five cents per gallon higher than when Fielding reduced the duty by one cent a gallon and permitted importations of oil in tank steamers.

It is estimated that 20,000,000 gallons of coal oil are consumed annually in Canada. The increase of 5 cents per gallon amounts to $1,000,000. That is what the people of Canada are paying annually and being squeezed into the standard oil magnates by the legislation of the Laurier Government.

Instead of this enormous loss to the Canadian consumers, Sir Louis Davies solemnly promised a reduction of 12 cents a gallon on coal oil amounting to a total gain of $2,400,000. That is about the usual difference between his promises and performances.

RECIPROCITY.

Here is Sir Louis Davies' promise:

"It is quite possible for the honest man with a sincere desire to negotiate a fair treaty, to negotiate one in a very short time."

Here is the Hon. Mr. Fisher's promise:

"If my leader comes into power, it would not be a rash prediction to say that within six months from that day, by the scratch of a pen, a treaty of Reciprocity would be put in force between Canada and the United States."

Here is the Hon. David Mills' promise:

"If the honorable gentlemen on this side of the House cross to the Treasury Benches, I can promise there will be no difficulty in establishing trade with the neighboring republic."

How far Reciprocity has progressed:—

(1) The Government has given the Americans a free market here for Indian corn and got nothing in return.
(2) The Canadian people have paid a bill of $34,000 for the High Joiners' big time at Quebec and Washington.

How the High Joiners spent the money:

A QUESTION.

BEFORE the Tarte-Laurier Administration began, Sir Louis (then Mr. L. H.) Davies appealed to the people of West Queen's, time after time, on the ground that the Liberal-Conservatives were extravagant in the use of public money,—and upon that ground he was always successful in his elections.

There were other questions introduced as for instance, Unrestricted Reciprocity the "elimination" of Protection, the lowering of prices—particularly those of binder twine and kerosene, etc,—but the foundation of his appeals to the farmers of West Queen's was always that the Liberal-Conservative Government had spent too much public money and added too much to the taxes and the public debt.

Now we point to these undoubted and admitted facts: The expenditures of the Government have in the last four years been increased beyond all precedent. Under the Laurier-Tarte administration an unprecedentedly large amount has every year been taken out of the pockets of the people; and the public debt has been increased by nearly $8,000,000; all kinds of works are going on, just before the election, which the people will have to pay for after the election—witness the unauthorized hole that is being dug at Skinner's Pond for the purpose of securing the defeat of Mr. Hackett.

If, then, the elections of West Queen's always elected Sir Louis Davies on the ground of the extravagance of the late Government, ought they not, now, to reject him on the ground of the still greater extravagance of the present Government? We pause for a reply!

ROBBERY IN BINDER TWINE.

THE jobbery in binder twine by the Laurier administration involves transactions of the most shady character, by which the farmers have been most severely bled. Including a million pounds on hand at the change of administration, about four millions pounds of twine made in the Kingston Penitentiary, were disposed of without public competition at a good deal less than cost. The twine, was thus sold by the Government to grocers, soap manufacturers and hardware men—all active partisans of the Government—at an average price of 4½ to 5 cents per pound. The farmers know that during these years they were obliged to pay from 11 to 14 cents per pound for the same twine. Allowing a reasonable sum for transportation, etc., it may be conceded that from $150,000 to $200,000 clear profit was made out of this transaction. How much of this money found its way into the "reptile" campaign fund, is a matter about which, naturally, there are many surmises.

Gentlemen,—While driving down a very steep hill last August my horse stumbled and fell, cutting himself fearfully about the head and body. I used MINARD'S LINIMENT freely on him and in a few days he was as well as ever.

AN ATHLETIC LADY.

The above picture is of Miss Dollie Carlon, of the famous team of acrobatic performers known as the Carlons, who are now appearing with the Ravel Humpty Dumpty Company in their novel acrobatic act entitled "The Texas Girl and Circus Man." Miss Carlon is a native of Texas, being born near the City of Austin where her father is a large ranch owner, and spent her early life roaming over the plains on the back of her favorite broncho, as pictured above. While accompanying her father or brothers in galloping over the large cattle ranch she learned to perfection the cowboy's art of roping a steer or breaking a broncho and was also a crack shot with rifle or revolver. At the age of twelve she entered the Baldwin Seminary for young ladies at Galveston, Texas, the city of the recent disaster, from which she graduated four years later. When attending school Miss Carlon was known as the athletic girl, and having inherited that strength, quickness and agility characteristic of the natives of that State, was wont to carry off the highest honors in all athletic competitions with the young ladies of her classes and wears with pride on her breast several handsome medals won on these occasions. Miss Carlon is also an accomplished musician, performing the difficult feat of playing the mandolin while standing on one foot on top of her partner's head. To the writer Miss Carlon appeared a pleasant, modest little lady who reluctantly speaks of her own accomplishments. She is of fine figure, and constant practice has developed a set of muscles that many a man would feel proud of. Two things she abhors, corsets and high heeled shoes. She says she is in the business because she likes it and also likes to travel.

There's a Certain Look of Newness
