Horses Others Can't Handle Bring Jockey Ribbing Of Fans

By BOB TRIMMER EDMONTON (CP) — Art Stein has built himself a reputation on the Prairie circuit as a jockey who can boot home longshots and horses other riders can't handle.

And such mounts bring ribbing, longer than any other rider, had another reason to remember the day.

He was the first rider to win a pair of golden spurs, denoted annually by jockey Johnny Longden, the rider aboard the winning horse in the Derby.

Stein didn't begin to ride until he was 21. It's rather odd, but I got my high school education, which is important once I quit riding.

"Too many youngsters forget their education. In four or five years many have to give up riding because they can't make the weight. Then they have no future at all and can get hooked up with the wrong characters and talked into doing anything."

HURT IN 1959
Only once has Stein, a steelworker in the off-season, been injured seriously and it shattered what potentially was his best year as a jockey.

It was only to a fast start in 1959 with 12 winners. In a feature race at Winnipeg it was aboard Beauty Boy and leading the pack coming home. The next thing I knew the horse stumbled and I ended up in hospital.
