St. John's Holds Earliest Boat Race In History Of Port

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The earliest boat race in this city's long history was held on nearby, Quidi Vidi Lake Monday as a highlight of St. Patrick's day celebrations.

Harry Summers' four-man trucking crew defeated a quartet from the CNR freight shed by four lengths over the 1.3-mile course. The unofficial time was a little over 12 minutes. The record set in the early 1900s was nine minutes, 12 and 4-5 seconds. Hundreds of spectators lined the snow-free slopes of the lake and battled freezing temperatures with hot dogs and coffee.

LITTLE REAL WINTER

Ordinarily, horse races would be held on the lake at this time of year. But despite a destructive four-day sleet storm that started Feb. 28, most sections of Newfoundland have had very little winter.

DOWN THE BACK STRETCH

Rockingham Park, Salem, New Hampshire, which opens for racing on or about the middle of April, has had a very satisfactory response to the advertised events which will be raced there. Ted Gibbons is the race secretary, and he has a splendid reputation for staging good programs. He believes that the present meeting will lead to greater ones in the future.

This winter has been one of heavy snowstorms, not only in the Maritimes, but also in the state of Maine. But notwithstanding (Continued on page 13)
