Quebec Election Call Adds To Political Uncertainties

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Perhaps unwittingly, Premier Lesage of Quebec has added to the political uncertainties of federal politics by calling a provincial election for Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Political sources here are speculating about the impact the Quebec election may have in the Commons where the minority Progressive Conservative government faces its first parliamentary test since the June 18 federal election in the parliamentary session opening this Thursday.

The big question marks since Mr. Lesage announced Wednesday that he will stake his Liberal government's life at the polls are the positions of the federal Liberals under Lester B. Pearson and the Social Credit forces under Robert N. Thompson.

Mr. Pearson, heading a contingent of 100 MPs, had been pressing strongly for an early election. He climaxed his drive with a tough political speech in Toronto on the eve of Mr. Lesage's call for an election.

MAY EASE OFF?

On the surface it might appear difficult from an organizational standpoint, to have Quebec Liberals campaigning almost simultaneously for a provincial and a federal election. Thus some political authorities have been wondering whether Mr. Pearson may ease off his early-election drive.

But others, among them Liberals, take the view that Mr. Pearson now is too deeply committed to attempt a show-down with the government in Parliament, to tone down his campaign, although they also see organizational problems in fighting a provincial campaign for Nov. 14 and a federal one perhaps concluding only a few weeks later.

Concurrent federal and provincial elections aren't a new thing in Canadian politics, the most recent being in 1949 when a federal election was held June 27 and provincial elections held in Nova Scotia June 9, British Columbia June 15 and Newfoundland May 27.

There are plenty of other cases, notably in 1945 when a federal election was called for June 11, the same date picked for an Ontario vote. Ontario then moved its date to June 4.

MAY CONTEST

The effect on Social Credit centres on the question of Social Credit's participation in the Quebec campaign. Plenty of signs were evident last week that Social Credit will contest the provincial election.

But whether such a course would tend to make Social Credit reluctant to join an opposition combination to topple the Conservative administration in Parliament is open to question.

Mr. Thompson has said the party will not precipitate an election this year and will consider its position on an attempt to do so by the other opposition parties in relation to the adequacy of the government's plan to meet current economic problems and anticipated big winter unemployment.

This appears to leave Mr. Thompson a bit more room to manoeuvre than Mr. Pearson when it comes to the opening days of the parliamentary session.

Adenauer Retirement Seen As Growing Political Issue

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BONN (AP)—The question of when Konrad Adenauer should retire and who should succeed him is shaping more and more into a serious political dilemma for West Germany.

The question has been publicly debated off and on since 1959 when the chancellor said he would retire to run for the more ceremonial job of president, then changed his mind because of the ensuing feud over a successor.

When Adenauer's Christian Democratic party lost its parliamentary majority last fall, Adenauer said he would retire in time to give his successor a chance to learn the job before 1963's general elections. After this concession the Free Democrats joined a coalition that elected Adenauer for a fourth term.

Now Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats, has threatened to take his party out of the coalition unless the 86-year-old chancellor resigns in the fall of next year.

PLAYS WITH FIRE

"He can't attack government policy because his party has a hand in making it, so he hacks away at the old man," said one prominent Christian Democrat. "In doing this, Mende is toying with his own destruction."

Mende is indeed taking a chance. If he does carry out his threat it could mean the end of the Free Democrats' voice in Parliament, where they hold 67 seats out of 493.

Political experts argue that Adenauer would not be beyond forming a coalition with the socialists if he feels it will keep him in power. He needs only eight seats for an absolute majority.

Adenauer aides say the "old man" is by no means tired of his job and intends to stay on at least until the end of next year.

The men most logically in line for the job include:

The vice-chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard, 65, the Christian Democrat party's choice but Adenauer has many times indicated that he feels Erhard lacks the political ability.

Tough Defence Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, appears to have lost support since he was accused and exonerated of misusing his office for financial gain.

The young and energetic foreign minister, Gerhard Schroeder.

Foresters Official Dies In Amherst

AMHERST (CP)—E.G. (Ted) Drage, 62 of Victoria, B.C., and Brantford, Ont., collapsed from a heart attack in a hotel room here early Saturday and died later in the day in hospital.

Mr. Drage was fraternal director of the Canadian Order of Foresters and was attending a meeting here which organized a Maritime assembly of the order.

Missing Painting Found On Street

LONDON (AP) — A missing landscape painting by the famous French impressionist Auguste Renoir has been returned to its owner by a man who found it covered with grime on a London street and nearly threw it into the fire. The painting is valued at £5,000 ($15,000).

The picture was lost a week ago when it fell out of the trunk of the car of Peter Wilson of Sotheby's auction firm. It had been run over repeatedly by automobiles. But surprisingly, slight damage in three places and had one scratch.

Bus driver Martin Quinland, who said he never heard of Renoir, found it.

Third Body Found In Hotel Ruins

REDDING, Calif. (AP)—Firemen here found the body of a third victim in the ashes of the $500,000 fire that demolished the 74-year-old Golden Eagle Hotel Saturday.

Fire Chief Wilburn W. Grant said the fire probably started from someone smoking a cigarette in bed on the second floor.

Firemen were still searching through the charred remains of the hotel for at least two other residents who remained unaccounted for.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Dble	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♠	Pass	5♣
Pass	5♦

Opening lead — queen of spades.

This deal was played during the trials held in England in 1960 to select a British team for the forthcoming World Olympiad. The hand was played at six tables and is remarkable for the variety of bidding sequences it produced, even though the field included Britain's finest and they were all playing the same hand.

When Schapiro and Reese held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. Declarer had no trouble making eleven tricks.

At the second table, this was the bidding:

South's astonishing pass was not successful. West made one spade doubled against the opening lead of the king of hearts.

At table three, North-South got very ambitious. This was the bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Dble	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♥	Pass	5♣
Pass	6♦

South was reluctant to jump to four clubs or diamonds with a four-card suit so he responded to the double with a cuebid. Dissatisfied with hearts, he made another cuebid asking North to choose a different suit. However, North overshot the mark.

The bidding at table four went:

West	North	East	South
1♠	2♥	Pass	Pass
Pass

A diamond was led and North made nine tricks.

At table five, the bidding was:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Dble	Pass	3♣
Pass	3♥	Pass	3NT
Pass	4♦	Pass	5♦

South went down one against the spade lead.

At table six, the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Dble	Pass	2♣
Pass	3♥	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♦	Pass	5♦

North made eleven tricks. A summary shows that two North-South pairs arrived at the best contract of five diamonds, while the other North-Souths wandered far afield. It is obvious that even in expert company there is no unanimity in the approach to bidding.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
