Khrushchev Makes Threats Of Nuclear Destruction

LONDON (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev in a magazine article Wednesday raises the spectre of nuclear destruction for any West European nation allowing American atomic bases on its territory.

At the same time he says he wants meetings of Soviet and American leaders to "discuss conditions of coexistence."

The Soviet Communist party chief says countries which accept American atomic bases face "shattering retaliatory attacks" in the event of a war launched against Russia as a result of a misunderstood order or at the discretion of some American officer.

LEADS TO WAR

"The cold war and the arms drive will lead to a new and very bloody war," Khrushchev warns a letter published by the New Statesman, a left-wing weekly review.

"Nuclear weapons brought from across the ocean, are imposed on West European member states of NATO under the guise of defence against aggression.

"In reality, the deployment of nuclear weapons on the territories of these countries is a mortal blow to their security.

SHATTERING RETALIATION

"If an aggressor breaks the peace, then, in accordance with the inexorable logic of war, shattering retaliatory attacks on the terorities of those countries in which atomic bases are situated will be inevitable."

Khrushchev wrote to the New Statesman in reply to an open letter by the British philosopher Earl Bertrand Russell.

Russell, who addressed his open letter both to Khrushchev and President Eisenhower, had appealed for a U.S.-Soviet accord based on a declaration that neither power would seek to spread its creed by force.

Khrushchev says he supports the idea that "the leaders of the Soviet Union and the United States should meet and frankly discuss conditions of coexistence."

But much of his letter was devoted to warning Britain against letting herself become "the main American medium rocket base" in Europe.
