Our Idols.

We fashion still our idols—not of stone,
Nor beaten gold, nor costliest Indian wood;
Ah, no! our idols are our loved, our own,
In whose sweet veins runs only human blood.

Yet round their brows we see celestial light,
And dream them glorious as the angels are;
Their very presence fills the gloomiest night
With tender radiance, like some wondrous star.

On their dear shrines we lay our chicest gifts,
Devotion, faith—aye, oftentimes a life—
Oh, consecration sweet that strongly lifts
The soul from self through love's divinest strife!

God pity those who live too long and see
That light celestial slowly fade away,
And, like some hideous midnight phantasy,
Their idols crumble into common clay!

His Experience with Gould.

"Gentlemen," says he, as he heaved a sigh like a tired horse, "there was a time when I swore by Jay Gould. I named my baby after him, I got my son to name a steamboat after him, and I crossed a Hubbard squash with a Jersey watermelon and named the new vegetable Jay Gould. If he had said the sun set in the north I'd have licked my best friend to prove it."

"Well?"

"Well, along came a man who wanted my farm, and I sold it."

"Yes."

And when I had the cash in hand I put it into Wabash stock. Jay Gould said that——'

"Yes, I know—go on."

"I invested $10,000 in Wabash and Jay Gould,—and—'

"That cured you?"

Exactly. I've killed the baby, shot the horse, blown up the steamboat, rooted up the vegetable, and got enough out of the crash to pay for a rope and a cheap coffin. Gentlemen, farewell. I'm going to a hotter land."—Wall Street News.

Something In It.

"What, another cup of tea, Mr. Dumley?" exclaimed the landlady, as he passed his cup for the third time. "I am delighted to see that you are enjoying your supper."

"Yes," responded Dumley, "I was quite hungry to-night, and the tea tastes unusually good."

"Not very complimentary to me," went on the landlady, with a sort of second-class genteel little laugh. "I generally make the tea myself, but to-night I was busy about something else and the cook made it. I wonder what she could have put in it."

"Well," responded Dumley, as he stirred it gently with his spoon, "I should judge from the taste that she must have put some tea in it."—Philadelphia Call.

A fop took a seat in a car beside a young lady, but on perceiving her dog, moved off with an air of trepidation. "Don't be afraid," she said, with a reassuring look, "Jip won't bite you; he does not like veal."

"Don't you think you have a good mamma, to spread such nice large slices of tread and jam for you?" said an old lady to a little boy, who was enjoying his tea. "Yes," was the reply, "but she would be still better if she'd let me spread on the jam myself."

"Do you doubt my love?" asked a fortune hunter of a Gotham heiress. "Impossible," she replied, firmly. "Why do you say impossible?" "Because my father has a six-figure bank account," she said, with a meaning smile.

MRS. SOPHIA POTTER'S

Bone Rheumatic Liniment

IT is a fact worth knowing that Mrs. Sophia Potter's Bone Rheumatic Liniment cannot be excelled for removing pain and soreness. It is no worthless trash, as some may suppose, simply because they have been imposed upon by others but is positively the "King of Pain." Sore throat cannot stand before its power.

All we ask is a trial that you may be convinced of the truth of our statement. Our experience is that one bottle tried also sells many more.

☞ See circular for particulars and testimonials, and try a bottle—it will not fail to do all that is promised.
