Malaysia Federation Sparks Bitter Views

By JOHN T. WHEELER

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—"Malaysia!"

Indonesian President Sukarno, shaking his gold-tipped swagger stick, virtually spat out the word at a function in his Jakarta palace.

The word touches off contempt, distrust and fear within the ranks of Indonesia's ruling elite.

On the surface Indonesia's bitter opposition to the proposed Malaysia federation under Malayan leadership seems little more than a nasty regional quarrel.

But elbowing in from the sidelines are the Communists, who could be the winners if the cold war between Jakarta and Kuala Lumpur turns hot.

A sure loser would be the Indonesian people with their poverty.

There have been some signs in recent days that Jakarta, which has takn most of the initiative in the war of words, may be ready to turn the heat off or at least down.

BACKED BY BRITAIN

Under the Malaysia plan, Malaya, Singapore and the Borneo territories of Sarawak, Brunei and North Borneo are to be brought together by Aug. 31 in a strong anti-Communist buffer stretching across the South China Sea. All the proposed partners are, or were, British colonies. Britain is backing the federation scheme and will guarantee its defence.

Indonesia has denounced the plan as a threat to Indonesian security. Foreign Minister Subandrio has said border fighting probably would result if the federation goes through amid the present hostile attitudes.

Indonesia's population is 100,000,000. Malaysia would have 10,000,000.

Jakarta views the Malaysia plan as a British plot to maintain economic and political interests in Southeast Asia.

There is also fear in Jakarta that Malaysia's prosperity may act as a magnet for nearby Sumatra, whose reserves of oil and other resources make it the wealthiest island in the Indonesian archipelago. Sumatra has made one abortive attempt to throw off Jakarta's rule. It has strong historical, cultural and religious ties with Malaya.

ECONOMY SHAKY

Some political observers in Indonesia believe Sukarno would like to keep the Malaysia pot boiling in an attempt to distract Indonesians' attention from threatening economic chaos at home.

If such is the plan, it is not working. The government has failed to whip up much support for tough action against Malaysia. The average Indonesian is much more concerned with the question of where his next bowl of rice will come from.

A laborer earns less than five cents a day. That is about the price of one pound of black market rice, a package of moderately good Indonesian cigarettes or two bottles of orange soda for his children.

One Western diplomat in Jakarta makes the appraisal:

"If President Sukarno gets into a shooting war with Malaya and Britain, it would be a disaster for Western interests in Southeast Asia. The United States would be forced to withdraw its financial support which provides Sukarno with his only hope of staying nonaligned. Indonesia would have nowhere to turn but to the Communists. And they would made certain that the price wasn't cheap."

Hopes Of U.S. Fade On Task In S. Korea

By CONRAD FINK

SEOUL (AP) — The United States has given heavily in blood and dollars to try to bring stability, anti-communism and democracy to South Korea. Now, 18 years after the massive aid program began, American hopes are dwindling.

South Korea has neither stability nor democracy. Bitter political battling between its military government and civilians diverts the watch on communism.

After the liberation of this barren land of 25,000,000 from Japanese occupation after the Second World War, two choices seemed available to the United States: Go home and let Korea drift into communism, already gripping the northern half of the peninsula, or stay and build.

Washington decided to try to build and the cost has been mounting ever since.

COST ENORMOUS

The bill for helping beat back a Communist invasion in 1950-53 was 20,617 dead and 103,284 wounded. Financial aid now totals $3,500,000,000 or $5,400,000,000 depending on whether military assistance is called aid.

When Dr. Syngman Rhee was elected president in 1948, things were going fairly well. The U.S. military government had kept the nation on its feet and there was talk that perhaps South Korea could be a "showcase of democracy" contrasting with Communist North Korea.

War came in 1950 and almost everything the United States had invested was left in a rubble heap extending across the devastated country.

After Rhee went into exil in 1960, following street demonstrations, John M. Chang became premier. Though dedicated to democracy, he wasn't tough enough. Battles again began in the streets.

However, there were young colonels and generals who were more than willing to crack down.

They struck May 16, 1962, seizing Seoul.

NEW PARK EMERGES

Gen. Chang Do - young, army chief of staff, was the front man. But it soon became clear that Gen. Chung Hee Park and Col. Kim Chong-pil were the new regime's master strategists. Chang was imprisoned in July, 1961, charged with being a counter - revolutionary. He later fled to the United States.

Chung Hee Park, with Kim Chong-pil at his elbow, took over the "revolutionary government."

Park personally assured President Kennedy he would return power to civilians in the summer of 1963.

First, he said, the military must deal with what he called corrupt and efficient politicians.

On March 16 Park reversed course and declared that only four more years of military rule could save the country from chaos.

The politicians took their fight to the streets, kicking and shoving in scuffles with Park's police. At week's end, it appeared that in the streets the issue would be settled.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Dble	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Let's say you're playing in a rubber bridge game and hold the East hand. Much to your surprise South opens the bidding with a spade, West doubles, and North bids two spades.

You restrain yourself and pass, whereupon South bids three spades, which comes around to you. You can't keep on passing forever with this hand, so naturally, you double.

Well, that's exactly how the bidding went when the East hand was held by Al Sobel, the League's top tournament director. As he relates the story in the ACBL Bulletin, his partner was a super-sound bidder not given to fooling around, so Sobel had reason to sit back after doubling and wait for the shekels to come rolling in.

The only trouble was that the dividends never did materialize. West certainly had his values when he doubled the opening spade bid, but they all came to nought. West didn't take a trick, despite his 17 high - card points, and South made three spades doubled.

Declarer ruffed the diamond lead, cashed the ace of hearts and ace of clubs, and rufffed a club in dummy. Then he ruffed a diamond, a club, a diamond, and his last club.

By this time eight tricks had been played and South had won them all. When declarer led the fourth round of diamonds, Sobel, with the A-Q-J-9 of spades left, could not prevent South, who had the K-6 left, from scoring his ninth trick.

You can chalk up the outcome of this hand to the power of distribution or, as Ely Culberton used to say, "the hand was wrecked on the rocks of distribution."

That doesn't mean you shouldn't double on similar hands— you have to pay off to freak deals once in a while in order to show a good profit over the lng run.

Of course, Sobel got credit for the 100 honors he had in spades, which may possibly have brought him some consolation. Just the same, that's what he got buried with—honors!

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
