

MR. AND MRS. D. E. GLOVER

Lovely Summer Wedding Is Held At Zion Church

Zion Presbyterian Church, Charlottetown, was the scene of a beautiful summer wedding on July 2, at 2.30 p.m. when Jessie Arline, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rendle Larter, Charlottetown, became the bride of Donald Everett, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Glover of Norboro.

The guests were ushered to pews marked with orange blossoms and white satin bows, by Arnold MacCaull and Ailyn Harding.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, masterfully rendered by the church organist, Mr. John Lea-Morgan, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father.

The bridal party took their places before the altar which was decorated with baskets of beautiful summer flowers.

The bride's gown, designed and made by the groom's mother, had a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace over taffeta with scalloped neckline, closing down the back with tiny covered buttons, long sleeves of lace tapering to points over the hands. The circular skirt of nylon net over taffeta was appliqued with sequin-embroidered lace medallions.

The chapel length veil of nylon tulle was held in place by a petal headpiece. The bride wore a double strand of pearls, gift of the groom. Her bouquet was American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Arnold MacCaull, the bride's sister, as matron of honor, wore ballerina length gown of coral lace and net over taffeta with matching coronet headpiece and mitts. She carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations.

The groom's only sister, Grena Glover, as bridesmaid, wore a ballerina length gown of heavenly blue lace and net over taffeta, with matching headpiece and mitts. She carried rose carnations.

MARY HAWORTH

Can Feel Abandoned By The Whole World

Dear Mary Haworth: As a child I was given minimum care and affection and felt guilty being an extra burden to my widowed mother. I was often scolded by teachers for failing to study, neglecting my homework, etc.

Even the kindest schoolmates didn't like to be seen playing with me, despite my over-eagerness to please; and when mother gossiped confidentially, I thought she was talking against me.

Around age 10, I began waking mornings with severe chest pains; and a decade later I went to a specialist, who found no physical cause for them. As I grew up, I took no interest in anything—except myself and good times—to escape my misery, dejection and spiritual poverty.

I tried keeping mother completely out of my private life, and she turned into a domineering virago. I needed help to change, but her sharp tongue drove me deeper into utter wretchedness. However, unlike my two older plain sisters, who were confined to a mental hospital with schizophrenia in their early 20s, I married and began feeling loved and wanted for the first time.

FEELS ABANDONED

Away from mother, the chest pains lessened, occurring only after dreams of being home with her. I am married six years now, and in this time she has been nicer to me, though still somewhat domineering. I like seeing her occasionally, for a few days' visit, then suddenly I just have to get away—the urge is overwhelming.

Another dilemma is that whenever my husband and I have a big quarrel—which isn't too frequent—I go all to pieces and cry like a hysteric, jumping to the conclusion that I am no longer wanted or needed by him, my one true friend. I feel abandoned by the whole world, really scum of the earth, after all.

Then I fill up with intense bitterness and hatred not only of him whom I am fighting, but also of everyone else who ever turned their back upon me—especially my mother. I can't help feeling that they helped to make me the way I am.—M.R.

Dear M.R.: It appears that a bias towards emotional illness runs in your family. And this is something that can be counteracted, by straightforward, intelligent, courageous endeavors to find right remedies.

Your mother's difficult behavior, your two sisters' hospitalization, and your own travail much of the time, suggest that you shouldn't be too harsh in judging your mother. Or in judging others quite to your needs of help.

It is important, rather, to try to understand the nature (and cause) of your suffering; and what, if anything, it has in common with your mother's tensions. It is important also to experiment, intelligently, with potential correctives.

This is making rational use of yourself. It is doing something constructive, instead of yielding blindly to symptoms—such as wild fears, despondency, hate, etc.—and assuming mistakenly that they are the problem.

TWO PATHS TO HEALTH

Now, to steer you in the direction of constructive action, I advise you to read the following:

1. Dr. E. M. Abrahamson and A. W. Pezet's book Body, Mind and Sugar (Henry Holt and Company), which concisely establishes the connection between blood sugar starvation and personality disorders (of psychotic proportions in some cases). The authors outline diagnostic procedures available, and list the simple diet that rectifies the terrifying condition.

2. Dr. Abraham Low's book Mental Health Through Will Training (Christopher Publisher, Boston, Mass.—which is a textbook of instruction and case histories, coaching emotionally sick persons in the techniques of behaving in a truly self-helpful way.

As patients learn to face their fears and direct their action by the light of reason, even though they feel acutely uncomfortable

American Lady Visits Mother's Home Province

Mrs. Toff Abbott, Norridgewock Maine, and her two daughters, Mrs. Fred Wilson, R.N. Rochester, New Hampshire and Mrs. Marion Chapman, Fairfield, Maine left a few days visit with their cousin Mr. Roland Buchanan and Mrs. Buchanan, New Haven.

Mrs. Abbott's maiden name was Bessie Ross, the daughter of the late Mary Buchanan, Elmwood, P.E.I. She was born and lived all her life in the States. Her father and mother both passed away with the grippe at the age of 29, also a sister. Mrs. Abbott was only four years old when her parents died.

It is 50 years since Mrs. Abbott's last visit to the Island. At that time she was married in Summerside by Rev. Hammond Johnston to Mr. Toff Abbott of Milton, P.E.I. They have a family of eleven children, eight girls and three boys, all living. Mr. Abbott has made several visits to the Island but was unable to come at this time.

ELMIRA C. W. L.

Members of the sub-division of the C. W. L. met in the side chapel on August 10th. The meeting was opened by prayer by the Rev. Director.

The president called for the minutes of the organization meeting, which were read by Mrs. D. A. McEachern in the absence of the secretary. The minutes were adopted as read.

Fr. McDonald then read a letter from Diocesan president asking for the appointment of nine conveners.

The following were appointed with the approval of the present Spiritual convener, - Mrs. Francis Rose; Citizenship and Legislation, - Mrs. Bernard Ryan; Press and League Magazine, - Mrs. Ernest Rose; Social Action, - Miss Florence McDonald; Membership, - Mrs. Joseph Harris; Resolutions and Reports, - Mrs. John B. Fay; Finance (W. & S. and Means), - Mrs. Daniel J. McDonald; Radio, T.V. and Films, - Mrs. J. S. Jarvis.

It was decided that each unit should appoint its own Spiritual convener. This will call for three, as the head convener shall act in her own unit. Helpers to the membership convener will also be appointed in each unit.

The annual fee will be forty-cents. The League Magazine will be subscribed to, for each unit from the fees collected before organization of the League.

Fr. McDonald stated that all officers should meet every three months. The president is to attend the annual convention in Charlottetown.

Meeting closed with the Act of Consecration.
