Enjoyable Duo-Piano Concert At P.W.C. Hall

An enjoyable concert of two-piano music was given in the Prince of Wales College hall last night by two outstanding Maritime artists, Rosabelle and Kelsey Jones, D.Mus., in the P.W.C. Concert Series which has brought several noted musicians to Charlottetown in recent years. Dr. Jones and Mrs. Jones appeared in a recital here two years ago, and have since travelled widely as concert performers. Their programme last evening, comprising a variety of classical and modern works, was warmly applauded, and encores were responded to.

Of special interest was the performance of an original composition, Suite for Two Pianos, by Dr. Jones. The three short movements, Waltz, Interval and Pantomime are pleasingly contrasted and utilize effectively the resources of both instruments.

The programme opened with a selection from the works of the great Johann Sebastian Bach's eldest son, Wilhelm Friedmann (1710-1784), who by common repute was the most gifted of the master's children, but left little in the form of published material. The work chosen was the Andante movement from a Sonata for two cimbali — a term used originally for the dulcimer, but later applied to concerted composition for other instruments.

This was followed by two movements, Allegro molto and Rondo moderato, from a piano duet, Sonata Opus 6, by Beethoven, which were given a magnificent rendition, bringing out the full range of expression and sustaining quality of the work.

Another fine interpretation was that of the Sonata in B Flat by the 18th century Italian composer Muzio Clementi. The three movements, Allegro, Larghetto and Presto, were played.

Of Mozart it is said that in contrast to his concertos of the Viennese period his pianoforte sonatas do not represent him at his best. This is a matter of taste. Certainly the Mozartian magic was not lacking in the Sonata in D, K-488, as rendered last evening. The three movements were beautifully played, the Andante particularly so.

Among the moderns represented on the programme were Rachmaninoff, in a waltz from the Suite No. 2, Opus 17; the French composer Darius Milhaud in two numbers, "Chanson Creole" and "Biguine" from "Le Bal Martiniquais"; an Aaron Copland extravaganza from "Danzon Cubano," and a selection from Arthur Benjamin's "San Domingo."

Amendment To

man," said Mr. Bell, "might say, 'You can't do anything to me, I'm paying the bills and supporting my family,' and the judge would be powerless to discipline him in any way."

"Under the amended Act the wife of such a husband could be classified as a "deserted wife" said Mr. Bell "and the judge under such circumstances could compel the husband to pay a set allotment to her."

"Acts of cruelty" are described in the Act as conduct causing reasonable apprehension of bodily injury, or of injury to health, without proof of actual violence that renders the home an unfit place either for the wife or for the child.

In explaining this clause, the Premier pointed out that it was no longer necessary for a wife to give proof of bodily injury so long as she could show that she was living in apprehension of such injury from day to day.

"Deserted wife" is defined, "a wife who is deserted by her husband by any act or commission which would amount to desertion by the common law of England or if she is living apart from her husband, because of his assaults or other acts of cruelty towards her or the children; or because of his refusal or neglect, without sufficient cause, to supply her and her children (if any) with food, clothing or other necessities; or because of his being a person who, by reason of frequent drinking of intoxicating liquors, is incapable of managing himself and his affairs or is an unfit and improper person to have custody and control of his infant children; or, because of his having been guilty of adultery that has not been condoned.

A "destitute wife," under the Act is described as a wife who is in necessitous circumstances because of her husband's refusal or neglect, without sufficient cause, to supply her and their infant children (if any) with food, clothing and other necessaries.

Dr. MacMillan: "I welcome this bill. It is long overdue." Recalling his experience with the Children's Aid Society, he said that on many occasions there was not very much a judge could do in circumstances of broken homes, because they didn't have an act that would give them authority to deal with the offending parties. "I can see a hope in this Act that will give the judge a chance to apply remedial measures," he said.

Progress was reported in the reading of the bill before the House adjourned at 1.00 p.m. It will meet Monday at 3.00 p.m.

Urges Disaster Plans For All Hospitals In Canada

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — Canada's 1,300 hospitals all should have disaster plans to meet peacetime emergencies which could be quickly expanded if war comes, a top hospital executive said Friday.

Dr. W. D. Piercey, executive director of the Canadian Hospital Association, told a class of doctors taking a course at the Civil Defence College here that he would like to be able to say every Canadian hospital is ready. But that was not the case.

"However, we feel we are getting somewhere," he added.

Four plan - mapping meetings have already been held in Victoria, Hamilton, Montreal and Halifax to prepare hospitals in those cities for any disaster. Other hospitals were being encouraged to adopt such plans.

DOUBLE CAPACITY

Dr. Piercey said that under disaster plans hospitals should prepare to double their ordinary capacity in time of emergency and even more than double capacity in time of war.

The disaster plans should include provision for movement of probably 80 per cent of the ordinary patients out of hospital to make way for casualties.

There should be a "disaster cupboard" of reserve supplies of blood plasma, surgical dressing and other essentials.

In war three-quarters of Canada's hospitals would be in urban target areas. Emergency hospitals would have to be set up, possibly in sanatoria removed from the scene of bombing.

In Memoriam

EDMOND MONAGHAN

Citizens of Kelly's Cross and surrounding districts were shocked and saddened to learn of the death of Edmond Monaghan in the City Hospital at an early hour on the morning of February 7th. He had undergone an operation about a week previously and was thought to be recovering favorably up until a few hours before his death when he took a sudden turn for the worse and in spite of the best of medical skill his did not rally and passed away peacefully fortified by the rites of his church.

Although Edmond had not been feeling well for the past few months neither he nor his friends considered his condition serious. His death therefore at the comparatively early age of fifty-one caused a great shock and deep sorrow to his numerous relatives, friends and acquaintances.

Edmond, who was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. Monaghan of Kelly's Cross and with the exception of five years while he worked in Trail, British Columbia, lived all his life in Kelley's Cross. He was of a cheerful disposition, a congenial companion and a kind and hospitable neighbour. He made friends easily and was ever welcome at any social gathering.

In 1927 he married Miss Clara McCardle of Tyrone, Lot 65, who now mourns the loss of a kind and loving husband. Among others left to mourn his passing are Charlie Gauthier who from a very small boy made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Monaghan, where he found a true Christian home and a real parental love from his foster parents.

Charlie came from Toronto to attend the funeral, and while in conversation with the writer said: "He was surely a good father to me." These few words of deep sentiment were as great a tribute as could be paid to the late Mr. Monaghan, and spoke well for his kind and benevolent character.

Others left are five sisters:—Mrs. Joe Kelly, (Margaret) Fort Augustus, Mrs. Louis Campbell, (Agatha) New Wiltshire, Mrs. Joseph Kelly (Loretta) Kelly's Cross, Sr. Mary Matthias in Westlock, Alberta, and Sr. Elizabeth James in Vancouver, B. C. Also two brothers, John Philip in Rosland, B. C., and Ambrose at Kelly's Cross. Two brothers, Cecil and Matthias predeceased him several years ago.

The funeral which was very largely attended, was from the home of his brother, Ambrose to St. Joseph Church, Kelly's Cross. Solemn Requiem High Mass was sung by the pastor, Rev. James Smith with Rev. Fr. Keefe, P.P., Rollo Bay as Deacon and Rev. Fr. Croken, P. P., Kinkora, as subdeacon.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Emmett McQuaid, James McMahon, Maurice Bradley, Stephen Hughes, Percy Woods, and Fred Bradley.

Interment was in the parish cemetery, where the committal rites were performed by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Smith.

May He Rest In Peace.

Cards of Thanks

Mrs. Clara Monaghan wishes to thank most sincerely the doctors, sisters and nurses of the Charlottetown Hospital; also all those who gave Mass Cards and Messages of Sympathy, and also who in any way aided her in her deep sorrow in the sudden passing of her late husba

Epidemic Is Distemper, Not Rabies

SEPT ILES, Que., (CP)— Efforts to wipe out an epidemic of distemper among sled dogs and animals continued Friday in isolated parts of the St. Lawrence gulf area.

Two provincial government veterinarians left here Saturday by plane for remote settlements, carrying serum and vaccine.

In previous reports from Sept. Iles, The Canadian Press erroneously referred to the epidemic in northeastern Quebec and Labrador as rabies instead of distemper. Epidemics in both areas have been officially identified as distemper.

Confirmation of the nature of the epidemic came from an official of the provincial agriculture department in Quebec, which sent $16,000 worth of serum and vaccine for 2,000 dogs.

Mrs. Dionne has been a patient at the hospital Notre Dame de l'Esperance in the Ville St. Laurent district. It is the hospital where two of her daughters, Cecille and Yvonne, are nurses in training.

After making provision for numerous bequests, the will, which called for the disposal of an amount slightly in excess of $200,000, made provision for the residue of the estate amounting to over $100,000 to be paid to the Scarboro Foreign Mission Society, Scarboro Ont., represented by Day, Wilson, Kelly, Martin and Morden, solicitors, Toronto, Ont.

Provide Higher

The government's proposed increases were expected to cost an additional $9,250,000 to $9,500,000 whereas the opposition proposals would increase these figures by a further $13,000,000.

The ceilings contained in the legislation, he said, were not adopted in any "haphazard fashion." The department decided on the proposed ceilings only after surveys in every district where veterans affairs officials were stationed.

"We beliee that the new ceilings are capable of allowing recipients to maintain a reasonable level of subsistence," he said.

CALLS BILL DISAPPOINTING

Col. A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal), chief critic for his party on veterans' affairs, said the bill is disappointing and three years too late. He said he does not find as much fault with the amount of the increases as with the small boost in the permissive income ceilings.

The Progressive Conservatives still would try to get the allowance for married recipients raised to $120 a month.

Mr. Lapointe also announced amendments to the eterans assistance fund under which men with war serice receive grants for food, rent, fuel and health and other lump-sum grants for emergencies. It now was proposed to authorize additions to the monthly allowance for clothing and personal care.

Another amendment to the Veterans Allowance Act would assist veterans who apply for allowance but die before a decision is made by the department. If there was a favorable decision on an application, it was proposed that the veteran would be deemed to have been a recipient at the time of death, enabling approval of a special award to his widow.

Mr. Lapointe said that in fixing the new rates the government attempted to maintain a proper relativity between single and married rates.
