Editorial Notes.

Woman is not only asserting herself in politics, but also in religion. In Finland a sect has been established the adherents of which term themselves the Pure by Excellence. They believe that woman is so far superior to man that she must control the family and affairs generally. In each household a woman is elected and invested with a governing and chastising power over her companions. All persons, and especially the men, must confess their sins to certain women weekly. The members of this new religion are said to be very active propagandists, and it might not be amiss to encourage some of their missionaries to settle in Utah.

The Montreal correspondent of the Toronto Mail writes as follows: A new market for Canadian manufactures has been found at the Antipodes, and cheering hopes are entertained that it will be a profitable one. On Friday last, for the first time manufacturers at Montreal shipped consignments of woven wire beds and the celebrated barbed wire to New Zealand, where the goods will compete successfully in price and workmanship with English and American productions of a similar kind. It is expected that the demand for other Canadian manufactures will develop immensely for export. Canadian sewing machines are also being sent to the same quarters of the British possessions.

For years, says the Toronto Mail, the Australasian Colonies have been desirous of bringing the Western Pacific Island and the Eastern portion of New Guinea within the dominion or protectorate of England. This question has of late occupied the more serious attention of the Colonial office and an adjustment will likely soon take place. It is argued that such an amalgamation will both strengthen the Australasian Colonies, and open up additional channels for English commerce. Besides, it is part of the French policy to use some of the Pacific islands for criminal colonies, which would be decidedly to the injury of Australia, and to prevent this an annexation of the islands is of great importance.

The great telegraphic strike is now virtually over, and as was anticipated by those who watched the struggle between the operators, and the wealthy monopoly who employed them, no practical advantage whatever has resulted from it. On the other hand when the collapse becomes complete, many of the strikers will find themselves without employment, without an opportunity to procure employment, and altogether in a very much worse position than they were before the strike began. The defections from the brotherhood are daily growing more numerous. From every side report comes that so many here and so many there have returned to work, under the same conditions as before the strike, not a few being re-engaged at less liberal salaries than was formerly paid them. From no less an authority than Master Workman Campbell come the intelligence of the total failure of the strike. To all the assemblies the following telegram was sent: "Executive Board Brotherhood regret to say that the strike is a failure. All the members who can may return to work immediately. (Signed) JOHN CAMPBELL."

The reasons given for this action may be briefly summed up as follows:—The knowledge that the Western Union would never concede the demand of the strikers, that constant defections from their ranks had weakened them so that further resistance was seen to be useless, and that the chances of those who remained out of regaining their position were daily becoming less. The effect of the order was as may be supposed electrical. Hundreds of the striking operators immediately began to pour into the Western Union offices seeking to be re-installed, numbers of them only to be disappointed, by finding that their services could be henceforth dispensed with.

Silver Currency in the United States.

Business men in the United States are being troubled with the "silver inflation." There is an immense and increasing amount of silver in circulation, and in the Treasury department, of which the real value is less by fifteen per cent than the face value. If silver were only used for change, and the quantity of it were not in excess of what is required for that purpose, there would be no objection to so much token money. But the excessive quantity, above what is required for change, causes the difficulty. Practically there are two standards instead of one, which is the same as having no standard at all; one recognized, the other unrecognized, in theory, but causing great perplexity and disturbance in practice. The danger feared is that, from this state of things, a recurrence to the double legal standard will result. And if every one were at liberty to pay a debt in either of two currencies, he would naturally select the cheaper. Contracts made in gold would be satisfied in silver, and the creditor would lose fifteen per cent. But perhaps even now sales are being made on credit, with an eye to the cheaper currency, and a larger price exacted, whenever it can be done. Anyhow this state of currency is a source of great perplexity.—Monetary Times.

The Fall River Regatta.

Below we give fuller particulars of the professional race at Fall River on the 20th. In it there were thirteen starters, Hanlan, Elliott, Lee, Ten Eyck, Hamm, McKay, Hosmer, Ross, Driscoll, Teemer, Riley, Plaisted and Gaizel. Soon after 6 o'clock the men were in line, and at 6.14 the word was given to start, Riley, Plaisted and Gaizel were not up to the line when the word was given. Plaisted was backing to his buoy and Hanlan and Elliott had started before he heard the word. The referee shouted to the men to come back and the steamer's whistle blew the signal to return. Gaizel, Plaisted, Riley, Hosmer and Hamm came back, the others kept on, Hanlan well ahead. There was not much doubt on the referee's boat that all men understood the signal to return, but the starters kept on and rowed over the course, coming in with Teemer leading, Driscoll, second; McKay, third; Hanlan away behind and the others struggling in the rear. There was much growling when the referee declared no race.

AND ORDERED ANOTHER START.

A wait of ten minutes was granted and there was then some further delay and it was 6.57 o'clock when the word was given for the start. The men got off this time pretty well, Hanlan shooting to the front on the east side of the course, with Elliott close behind, and Lee and Hamm several lengths behind and close together. The rest of the men were in a bunch on the west side of the course, with Plaisted ahead and not far behind Hanlan, who was away over on the other side still leading. Plaisted was forcing him for first place, and the race for the first half mile was a pretty one. The men on the west side of the course were out of their water and fowls were feared, but none were made. Hanlan made the turn first with Ross and Hosmer close behind, and turning near together. Hanlan had the inside of the course, the hardest to row as the water was rough. At the start of the race the steamer Canonicas, Capt. Orswell, of Providence, went up river. As Hanlan turned the buoy she came down again, paying no attention to the oarsmen, and causing a heavy swell, which swamped Hanlan, Elliott and Hamm. Hanlan was then practically out of the race and pulled with difficulty, his boat being full of water. Darkness fell rapidly, and before the finish was reached it was almost impossible to distinguish the men from the referee's boat. Lee upset after crossing the line and Driscoll drew out half a mile from the start. At the close of the race half a dozen of the rowers surrounded the referee's boat, and several claimed first prize. The judges' decision was—Teemer first, time 18m. 28s.; Hosmer second, in 18m. 30s.; Ross third, 18m. 35s. The crowd at the garden numbered about 2,500, and probably 2,000 more viewed the race from other points. When the oarsmen returned from the first start many thought the race was over and left.

The close of the race was rowed in the dark, and it was impossible for spectators to distinguish the men after the first three-quarters of a mile. The prizes were: $500 to 1st, $225 to 2nd, $125 to 3rd. Distance, 2½ miles with turn.

A Brother's Vengeance.

LORD HARTINGTON RESPONSIBLE FOR CAREY'S DEATH—SENSATIONAL STATEMENT BY A LEADER OF THE REPUBLICAN BROTHERHOOD.

Captain P. J. Coleman, who was one of the principals in the attempt to blow up the Mansion House in London, makes the remarkable statement that the information which led to Carey's death was furnished to the agitators by no less a person than Lord Hartington, under Secretary of State for India, and a brother of the murdered Lord Frederick Cavendish. Captain Coleman says his information comes directly from one of the executive leaders of the Irish Republican Brotherhood, and he does not doubt its accuracy.

He says: "Lord Hartington has been the very apotheosis of revenge. He was determined to bring his brother's alleged murderers to trial, and when Kelly, Brady, and Curly expiated their alleged crimes on the gallows, Hartington, with fiendish delight, gloated over their portraits. He was enraged when some of the men escaped the disgrace of the noose to undergo the miseries of penal servitude. His cup of revenge was not full, and he determined to sacrifice the informers who had been implicated as well. It was Hartington who gave us information of Carey's release from Kilmainham jail, of the fugitive's trip to England and of the steamship by which he would sail for Cape Town.

"Lord Hartington asked us to kill the man whom the British Government had saved, but who, above all others, was primarily responsible for the tragic death of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Under-Secretary Burke. It was he who gave information of the sailing of Hanlan, Kavanaugh and Smith, three other informers, and it was through him that they were not allowed to land in Australia. He will save O'Donnell, who killed Carey, as you will see."

Captain Coleman insists that there cannot be a doubt of the authoritative character of the sources whence this information comes.

JAY-EYE-SEE'S FEAT.

At Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16th, J. L. Case's Jay-Eye-See was called to beat, if possible, the best five year-old record of 2.15, and he was greeted with cheers as Bither drove him up in front of the judges' stand. In the first end off he broke at the first turn and reached the quarter in 37. Bither then jogged him around. At the next trial he left the wire on an even and excellent gait, reaching the first quarter in 32½. A thousand watches were held on him, and it was easy to see great interest pictured on every face. Up the back stretch he went with the same fast clip and even, steady manner, reaching the half in 1.05, thus making the second quarter in 32½ the exact time of first. Then he seemingly slacked a little as he reached the up grade on the third turn, and, after passing that point, picked up again, getting to the three-quarter pole in 1.40, making the third quarter in 35 sec. When he came down the stretch the immense audience rose to its feet, and it was plain that he was going to make a fast heat, for he was doing fast work. Inside the stand Bither clucked and touched him with the whip, and the great animal went under the wire in 2.14, making the last quarter in 34 seconds. Case was in the stand above the judges, and smilingly raised his hat as the crowd lustily cheered the successful effort of his horse. Betting was even up. The last event of the day was the free-for-all, with Fannie Witherspoon, St. Julien, and Edwin Thorn starters. St. Julien won in three straight heats. There was a fine contest between the other two horses, especially in the second heat. Fannie Witherspoon broke at the first quarter badly, but coming down the home stretch made a wonderful burst of speed and secured a dead heat with Edwin Thorn.

A SUCCESSFUL FEAT.—WALKING ON THE DELAWARE RIVER.—An invention for walking the water was recently tried on the Delaware River. The invention consists of two miniature scows, made of cedar, square at the end, and slightly bevelled on the under side for a short distance from each end. They were fitted with supports for each arm, which also answered the purpose of assisting in preserving an equilibrium. They were also fitted with brass rods, which were used as propellers, and to one was attached a short rudder, with a cord reaching to the hand of the pedestrian, by which the course could, in a measure, be regulated. These shoes or floats were seven feet in length and fourteen inches wide, and one was attached to each foot. When the adjustments were made, the man stepped into the water, and started on his journey. On account of the strong tide running at the time, very slow progress was made by him, but he finally succeeded in accomplishing the feat. The apparatus used by him is the invention of Professor Rowland, of San Francisco, who claims that he succeeded in walking across the bay at that place, a distance of three miles.
