

Peace On Earth, Goodwill To Men

The Guardian, Charlottetown, Mon. Dec. 24, 1962. 19

Police Give Data On Features Of 3 Holdup Men

MONTREAL (CP) — Police have released what they know about the features of three men involved in a bank robbery last week in which two policemen were killed. They said they believed that the same men were involved in previous holdups in suburban

St. Laurent — site of Friday's robbery — because of what one of the robbers said. In a holdup in June, the gang of men had scooped up about $8,000 when their leader shouted: "That's enough, let's get out!" In Friday's fatal robbery, the leader was heard to shout: "We are going to clean it out this time." The killer, who wore a Santa Claus suit, was described as being six feet, one inch tall, slim and heavy-lipped.

The lookout man, not seen well by witnesses, was described as five feet, seven or eight inches tall, weighing about 135 to 140 pounds, and about 30 years old. One man, seen by several witnesses inside and outside the bank, was five feet, nine or 10 inches tall, weighing 175 to 180 pounds, about 40 or 43 years old, with black, crew-cut hair flecked with grey, and a long face with a thin, straight nose. Police have released a composite sketch made of him.

Wensley Says Britain Ratted

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Sir Roy Wensley, prime minister of the Rhodesian Federation, has accused the British government of having "ratted on us" by approving Nyasaland's right to secede from the Central African Federation. The British decision was announced in Parliament in London by R. A. Butler, minister in charge of Central African affairs. Wensley told the federation's parliament the British decision was "an act of treachery" that is threatening the complete breakup of the nine-year federation linking the British protectorates of Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia with the self-governing British colony of Southern Rhodesia. Wensley also broadcast a speech declaring Nyasaland's withdrawal from the federation is likely to be "disastrous" for the protection of Nyasaland.

But he added: "The tragedy of separated Nyasaland will be insignificant to what would happen if the two Rhodesias were not kept together." Wensley said he would not have opposed the secession of Nyasaland if Britain had reached agreement on the continued joining of Southern and Northern Rhodesia, the key partner in the federation with its big mining industry. In London, Butler told Parliament Nyasaland's secession did not necessarily mean links between the two Rhodesias would be broken. But Northern Rhodesia as well as Nyasaland now has a legislature controlled by Negroes strongly opposed to the white-dominated federation where Negroes outnumber whites 2 to one. Wensley said that on their Nyasaland decision the British went back on solemn promises that no change would be made in the federation for 10 years except by unanimous consent of the three territories.

Satellite Fails To Supply Data For Use By Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy's Transit 5A satellite is failing in its primary mission of supplying data for navigation aid to ships, officials said here. The satellite was rocketed aloft Tuesday from Point Arguello, Calif.

Dr. Richard B. Kershner, supervisor of space development for the Johns Hopkins applied physics laboratory, said the satellite was in excellent orbit, but that its radio receiver had failed to work on the first five attempts to transmit data to the satellite. Kershner indicated he held only faint hope that the receiver would start working later. The Johns Hopkins laboratory developed the navigation system for the navy. Transit 5A was supposed to have been the first operational satellite in a system of four such vehicles. It was designed to help ships land submarines to determine their positions more accurately. Transit 5A now will be used as a test vehicle, but not as a full operational satellite, Kershner said.

Kidney Graft Patient Dies

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Ian Clark, 34, who made medical history by receiving a transplanted kidney from a fellow doctor last August, died in hospital Friday. Clark was the only man in Britain known to have had a kidney grafted from an unrelated donor. Dr. David Spencer, 32, sacrificed one of his own kidneys in a bid to save Clark's life. The transplanting operation lasted six hours in Hammer-smith hospital and was hailed as a great medical feat.
