

British Switch On Atomic Power To Prepare Supper

CALDER HALL, England (AP) Britain Wednesday switched on atomic power to cook the family supper—and launched the second industrial revolution.

"We are present at the making of history," said the Queen as she moved a lever at the world's first full-scale atomic power plant.

Scientists and ambassadors from many lands witnessed the event.

The housewife in England's north couldn't note the difference. But many a workman came home Wednesday night to supper cooked with electricity generated by uranium fuel rods at Calder Hall.

The atom, with its awesome meaning in war, now was tamed producing steam which drove a turbine generating electricity. Calder Hall took its place as another feeding station for the country's electricity network.

The contribution to the network was not large.

Calder Hall's production was 46 megawatts of Britain's 20,000 megawatts. One megawatt is 1,000,000 watts. By next March, when the second half of the power station here is completed, the continuous output will be 90 megawatts, enough to light a city of 1,000,000 persons.

Scientists forecast, however, that by 1975 all new power stations in Britain will be of the atomic type instead of those using coal and oil.

Calder Hall is a £16,500,000 project located on a bleak spot in Cumberland. It takes a page in history as the first big country-wide project of its kind. The Russians claim to have an atomic power plant, but it is not connected to the Soviet national network.

The first full-scale atomic-electric plant of the United States is nearing completion at Shippingport, Pa.

BRITAIN IN FOREFRONT

The queen said of the Calder Hall project:

"It may well prove to have been among the greatest of our contributions to human welfare that we led the way in demonstrating the peaceful uses of this new source of power."

Calder Hall is not primarily meant for producing electricity for the housewife's stew. It has a more deadly basic purpose—production of plutonium for Britain's nuclear weapons.

Ironically, with the world dreaming of cheaper power, the new atomic energy electricity costs more than the old-fashioned type.

British scientists estimated the cost of an atomic electrical kilowatt at one penny, compared to 0.7 of a penny a kilowatt for electricity produced by coal or oil.

THREE FREIGHTERS PREPARE TO LOAD POTATOES AT SUMMERSIDE

Three freighters are seen yesterday docked at Marine Wharf in Summerside where they will load potatoes. On the extreme left is the Sunnank which will load about 55,000 one hundred pound bags for Simmons and MacFarlane Produce Limited who are also loading the Willman (third from the left) with 70,000 bags. The Sandwich, second ship in the line is unloading 3,500 tons of superphosphate fertilizer for Canada Packers Ltd., and will then be loaded with 57,000 bags of potatoes supplied by George Brookings of Kensington. All three ships will be proceeding to Florida with their cargo. On the extreme right is a dredge which is enroute from Rustico to Egmont Bay and presently docked at Summerside to pick up pontoons which were trucked here from Rustico. Difficulty has been reported by potato shippers in obtaining enough men to assist in loading operations at the wharf.

Let's Talk It Over

In the realm of education today, we have on the one hand those who deplore the fact that our universities are not turning out in sufficient numbers engineers, etc. who are essential to our progress in this atomic age, and on the other hand we have those who deplore the emphasis placed on mechanics to the detriment of our cultural program. The latter cite with strong logic the fact that Germany during Hitler's regime laid great emphasis on machines, and largely forsook those things that pertain to the spirit. In those days "Kultur" bore little resemblance to the humanities beloved of aesthetes through the centuries.

There is nothing wrong, however with keeping up with the robots in other countries, especially as there is still hope these robots will some day re-create the earth instead of destroying it. When the nations' leaders realize and perhaps they do already, the terrible boomerang effect of launching war in this age, the gates will be open for fashioning a utopia with ultra-modern conveniences we cannot now begin to imagine.

Certainly we should not forsake the cultural program in education. We must be sure it is truly cultural, however, and not just an empty posturing. A cultural education demands appreciation on the part of the recipient. You can browbeat a mechanical "know-how" into your student, not so with culture. It enters only the minds with a welcome mat.
