Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

It may surprise some of my readers to learn that weights and measures began in England before the Norman conquest, but through the centuries variations persisted.

The standard English foot of 12 inches is of English origin. By statute of 1224 the size of the English inch was established as that of three barleycorns of average length laid end to end. The foot was 12 of these inches, and the yard 36 of them. A standard yard had been kept at Winchester under the Saxons. The royal standard yard under Richard I was of iron and was exactly 3 feet long.

Cape Breton got its name because of the Breton fishermen who were coming to the island for centuries before Columbus. We have no portrait of our Saviour, unfortunately for all so-called portraits are wholly imaginary the earliest having been painted long after his death. However, we have His physical description and the description must suffice.

The story of Columbus is a pattern often repeated in history, of a man credited with a discovery that had already been made by someone else. Bering, for example, did not discover Bering Strait; Ponce de Leon did not discover Florida; Balboa did not discover the Pacific.

Columbus hardly can be credited with the discovery of America as a geographical fact because to his dying day he insisted that he had reached Asia.

Believe it or not, but Mrs. Brandt Johnson celebrates each of her birthdays by walking a mile for every year of her age.

This year Mrs. Johnson hiked from Beamsville to Toronto in a flat 16 hours. The distance between the two places is 62 miles. Last year she observed her 61st birthday anniversary by covering the same route in 14 hours. But most of the hike was made in a driving rain.

The first Memorial Day observance in Gettysburg, where Lincoln gave his immortal address was held 86 years ago. And it has never rained ever since during the ceremony of strewing flowers. And every President since Lincoln, with the exception of Harry S. Truman, has spoken at least once at a Memorial Day Observance in Gettysburg National cemetery.

A Canadian Company reports it will soon put on the market a photo-electric clock that runs wholly by exposure to light. The Wimespiece will run 24 hours on energy drawn from one hour of light, be in natural, artificial, direct, or indirect. Exposure to light for four hours will wind it. Well, just imagine that!

Many of the vine-covered cottages of by-gone years needed no paint to make them attractive, or to keep them cool in summer. Training the vines about the windows and doors was the occupants' chief concern. Vine-covered cottages were once common in Prince Edward Island, but have gone the way of the hack and the buggy.

The Rev. Donald Nicholson, of Clyde River is a handy pastor to have in a community, for, in a pinch, he can handle farm implements with the best of them and do an AI job as a mason. Last fall when his son-in-law was at his wit's end to find a bricklayer to lay a chimney in his new home, Mr. Nicholson took on the job and completed it in record time. Mrs. Sally King, of Winchester, Ky, is a most remarkable woman in that she is nursing her daughter, Mary 83, who is bedfast. Mrs.

King has passed the century mark. Besides making money for his own country Uncle Sam rolls out the shekels for foreign nations. He makes Ethiopian dollars for Ethiopia, pesos for Cuba, Silver coins for El Salvador, and lempiras for Honduras. In addition, the mint shares the technical knowledge with officials from England, Australia, Canada, and Pakistan. Although 43 of the 48 states limit the hours of employment for women and protect their health, statistics show the average woman outlives her husband by several years. The Woodcock carries its young in flight to and from the nesting ground, holding them, one at a time, between its legs. Sign in Seattle, Washington, grocery: Be like Robinson Crusoe: Have your shopping done by Friday. The average family with water systems installed in their homes, use between 15 and 20 gallons of water every day. The tub bath accounts for from 8 to 10 gallons; a shower 6 gallons, and washing the dishes 3 times a day uses half a gallon per person a meal. "The fragrance of the flower is never borne against the breeze; but the fragrance of human virtues diffuses itself everywhere." General Robert Baden-Powell founded the Boy Scouts in 1906, two years before the Girl Guides.
