MONDAY, Nov. 3.—To-day we will refer to the defeat of the Garibaldians, by the Papal and French troops, at Mentana, which occurred on the 3rd November, 1867, not because of the heroism that may have marked the engagement, but for the sake of the motto adopted by the Roman Committee of Insurrection afterwards, which is a good one now, after the late Scott Act election, when "the righteous scarcely were saved." It was, "Try again and do better."

Fall of Khartoum.

General Gordon's Capture.

CAIRO, Nov. 1

A telegram from Dongola to the Khedive gives details of the story of Gen. Gordon's capture, told by a Sheik who left Shendi, Oct. 7. Khartoum being surrounded for seven weeks by a strong body of rebels, and provisions being scarce, a feeling of discontent and insubordination which had for a long time existed among the garrison, manifested itself. On the 8th, 800 of the garrison deserted to the rebels, leaving only 2,000 faithful to Gordon. On the 9th, being strongly attacked, Gordon was forced to surrender.

The particulars as to the fate of Gordon's followers and himself have not yet been received. It is proved beyond a doubt that the report of Gen. Gordon's capture is true.

That Herring Hitching Post.

BY LOUIE'S FOSTER MOTHER.

A grocer's barrel of herring, outside a grocer's store;
A man with a horse and wagon drawn up before the door.

Across the planking of sidewalk the man conveyed his rein,
And hitched the barrel of herring to hold the horse's mane.

Along the sidewalk of planking came a bevy of girls,
Not seeing before them danger,—'twas just as dark as curls.

They hurried along the planking, which raised the horse's head,
And feeling somewhat uneasy, tightened the lines, 'tis said.

The grocer was busy inside, serving the countryman's need,
But neither bethought him of lines, herring, barrel or steed.

So down went one of the darlings, tripped by the tightened rein,
All muddled, and bruised, and shaken, when lifted up again.

The rest of the bevy of girls took warning in good time,
All profiting by the mishap that pitched one in the slime.

Then stepping over the "ribbons," to give the fallen aid,
They gathered around their playmates, and raised the prostrate maid.

The two men came out from the store, to "wo" the restless steed,
Both held the head up, (not the girl's) these two men did, indeed.

One drove away and left the scene! the other sought his store!
Without one word of sorrow, for the little girl so sore.

That little girl of tender years, who unawares fell down,
Was one of the fair sisterhood, of this fair Charlottetown.

The men could not be gentlemen? Forgive them if you can!
They did not know that human love makes up the real man.

They did not know that lines across a foot-path may destroy,
Or leave a life-long mark upon some luckless girl or boy.

They may have learned the difference 'twixt pot-pie and a roast,
But hang it, 'twas too much for them, that herring hitching post.

A FREDERICTON despatch to the St. John Sun says:—The University difficulty is revived. This morning (Oct 31) the senior and freshmen classes asked the faculty for their decision, as to what punishment would be imposed upon the two classes. The faculty met and after a three hours' consultation, informed the senior class that the conferring of their degrees would be suspended until the Christmas after the next session or longer, and the freshmen class were told that all the scholarships held by that class would be suspended for the year, and that the classical scholarship always open to this class, would be withdrawn this year. The students in a body, after consulting, unanimously resolved to resign all connections with the college, and have informed the faculty to that effect.

The Pall Mall Gazette thus chronicles the growth of the British Empire during Gladstone's Administration:—"We have not annexed Egypt but we garrison it, we have not absorbed the Sudan, but an English army is on its way to Khartoum. We have annexed one-third of Zululand, the whole of Bechuanaland and all the South African Coast from the Orange River to Capene, excepting Angra Pequana. We have rounded off our territory in West Africa by the annexation of a strip of the coast near Sierra Leone. We had sanctioned the annexation of Cameroons, but being forestalled by Germany, we restored the balance by annexing the delta of the Niger. We have established a new East India Company in Northern Borneo, and now we have ordered the proclamation of a British protectorate over the eastern half of New Guinea."

Pennsylvania leads all the other States in the amount of freight handled by railroad. During 1883 for every inhabitant of that State her roads carried 25 tons of freight. In the West the average is 7 1/2 tons per inhabitant, and in the South only two tons. Pennsylvania's tonnage was more than one-quarter of the total of the United States, or 105,000,000; New York comes second, with 50,000,000; Ohio third, with 43,000,000; Illinois fourth, with 35,000,000. New Jersey is fifth and Indiana sixth. The Pennsylvania Railroad alone carried more than one-third of the tonnage in Pennsylvania.
