CURRENCIES

MONTREAL (CP)—The closing bid on the U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was $1.07 9-16, the asked $1.07 19-32. Friday the closing bid and asked were the same. Pound sterling bid was $3.01 5-16, the asked $3.01 7-16. Friday the closing bid was $3.01 3-16, the asked $3.01 7-16.

NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP)—Optimism over news of an apparent U.S.-Soviet agreement on Cuba accompanied a vigorous stock market rally Monday.

Prices rose sharply on a broad front but the closing level was not the day's best. The initial rise took in all of the important stock groupings. By the close, steels and the aerospace defence issues were ragged.

The advance was considerably smaller than last Wednesday's when the market surged ahead on the first word that Soviet Premier Khrushchev had expressed a wish to avoid nuclear war.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed with a gain of 10.33 at 579.35. Last Wednesday it gained 18.62.

Volume was 4,280,000 shares compared with 2,580,000 Friday.

Brokers said that a considerable amount of the early buying was due to short covering—the purchase of stocks to repay borrowed shares sold with the hope of making a profit by repaying them in the future with stock bought at lower prices.

At the same time, the large number of minor transactions reflected increased public participation. Large blocks in some of the higher quality issues showed that institutional buyers were again in the market—for how long nobody knew.

Among Canadian stocks, Distillers Seagrams, International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine all finished a point or more higher. Aluminium Ltd. and Walker-Gooderham were up ¾ and Hudson Bay Mining ½.

Prices advanced in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. Shawinigan was ahead ¾ and Scurry Rainbow Oil ½. Canadian Marconi gained ¼.

Political Parties In Que. Offer Power Issue Choices

QUEBEC (CP)—Political parties fighting in Quebec's Nov. 14 general election are giving voters three different choices on the main issue of publicly-owned electric power.

The Liberals of Premier Jean Lesage, in power since June, 1960, say they will regard re-election as a clear mandate to expropriate 11 of the province's privately-owned power companies.

The Union Nationale, under new leader Daniel Johnson chosen 13 months ago, hasn't committed itself on the issue and wants to hold a referendum on it next year. He says he tends to believe the majority appears to want expropriation.

A third party founded a few weeks ago—l'Action Provinciale—has announced it will have 46 candidates who will campaign against expropriation.

However, because of its last-minute appearance on the scene and the lack of a prominent full-time leader most political observers generally discount it as a major force in the election.

IS OPPOSITION

Its acting leader, Hertel La Roque, a Montreal publicist, said his party is made up of dissident members of the Liberal, Union Nationale and Social Credit parties, and will remain "an opposition party."

After an early grass-roots attempt to participate in the election, the Social Credit party accepted the recommendation of its Quebec leader—Real Caouette—to stay out of it, and remain strictly in the federal political scene.

The New Democratic Party in Quebec, not yet formally established and without a chosen leader, admitted the snap election caught its members unprepared. The NDP said it advised its county associations not to present or support candidates in the election.

Standing at dissolution of the legislature last September was Liberals 54, Union Nationale 40, and independent one.

The expropriation issue has been causing some uneasy feeling between the French-speaking majority of Quebec, which is seeking a greater control of its economy, and the English-speaking element, generally regarded as being in control of financial and management circles.

Mr Lesage and Resources Minister Rene Levesque have been saying that the decision to expropriate the private power companies was taken on economic grounds, but that the take-over also will permit the "economic emancipation" of French-speaking Quebecers.

"Let us be masters in our own house," says Mr. Lesage.

Mr. Levesque, an articulate free-lance television commentator before his entry into politics in 1960, is the main driving force behind the government's expropriation plan.

His constant stress on the need for French Quebecers to become masters of their own economy has caused suspicion in English-speaking circles, some of whom fear further steps towards public ownership in other sectors of the economy.

This fear has been expressed by Richard Holden, an independent candidate against Liberal Richard Hyde, Speaker of the last House, in the predominantly English-speaking riding of Westmount - St. George in west central Montreal.

Mr Holden says some Liberals including Mr. Levesque, "dislike the English and are out to get them."

Mr. Levesque and Mr. Lesage both have denied charges they intend to expropriate the pulp and mining companies, saying such a move would be unwise economically because the companies are engaged in the export business.

"Electricity is different," says Mr. Levesque, who tours the province with a film in which he explains the power issue, then spends as much as three hours answering questions from the audience. "Electricity is consumed in the province."

One of Mr. Lesage's bitterest charges against Mr. Johnson is that "he was chosen leader because he was the only man who would not be ashamed of the Union Nationale's record."

There is some evidence that the Union Nationale was not quite ready for—or expected—an election at this time. Its complete election platform was issued only three weeks before the election date—about halfway in the campaign.

The platform contains something for everybody, including a basic province-wide minimum wage of $1 an hour, higher basic exemptions for provincial income tax purposes, a crop insurance plan and improved farm marketing services for the farmers, a system of portable pensions changes in the hospital insurance plan to expand it into a full medical care plan, and a series of pledges to safeguard provincial autonomy—the party's old battle cry.

Mr Johnson charges the government is bypassing investment houses controlled by French Quebecers in its financing deals.

"Mr. Lesage," he says, "has delivered us bound hand and foot to the Toronto financial houses."

Despite his name, the background of Daniel Francis Johnson, who is fluent in English and French, is French by family tradition, education and outlook.

While he will not commit himself or his party on the expropriation issue, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, his "first lieutenant," repeats that he favors the principle of the power take-over.

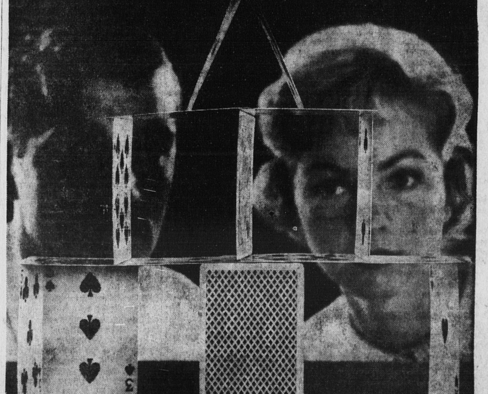
How well built is the house you'll buy next year?



There are 10 ways to tell true quality in a house... Esso oil heat is one of them

Buying a new home is probably the largest single purchase you'll ever make, one that requires careful planning and consideration. Here are ten signs of quality craftsmanship and materials: (1) Smoothly operating windows and doors; (2) Properly ventilated and insulated attic; (3) Sufficient water pressure; (4) Copper water pipes; (5) 100 Amp. electrical circuit; (6) Neatly fitted joists and studs in the basement; (7) Well finished plaster work free from hair cracks; (8) Solid, squeak-free floors; (9) Neat and well finished pointing between the bricks of the exterior walls.

(10) Another sure sign of quality is OIL HEAT. It tells you that the builder was not satisfied installing the cheapest material available but has considered your future safety, comfort and satisfaction. Oil is Canada's most popular and economical heating fuel. Over 54% of all Canadian homes are heated with oil, and oil heat outnumbers all other automatic heating systems four to one. No other heating system gives you such complete, carefree comfort as safe, dependable Esso Oil Heat.

Whatever type of home you buy, make it a safer investment and include Esso Oil Heat in your plans. Call your local Imperial Esso Agent or Distributor and ask about the Esso Heating Equipment Finance Plan.
