

Maine State Senate Given Controversial Power Plan

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — The state senate Tuesday received the controversial Cross Rock proposal, involving construction of an estimated $225,000,000 hydroelectric development on the upper St. John River and flooding its tributaries back into the Allagash wilderness.

Actually, the measure filed by Senator Romeo T. Boisvert (Dem. Lewiston) would only create a Maine power authority to administer the sale of bonds for construction of the project and eventually, the sale of power to pay off the bonds.

After the bond liquidation, estimated to take about 44 years, the state would take over the development. But until then, Maine would receive about $2,000,000 annually from power sales.

A similar bill in 1963 kicked up a legislative storm and was defeated.

PROVIDES ALTERNATIVE
Cross Rock would be an alternative to either preservation of the Allagash for timber harvest and recreation, as recommended by the Allagash River Authority, or the St. John River development plan of the U.S. federal government, which now proposes two lower dams in the Dickey area. The Dickey project is tied in with the Passamaquoddy tide-harnessing plan.

The Allagash region now is the largest wilderness area in the eastern United States and is a prime source of timber for Maine's pulp and paper industry.

The proposed Cross Rock dam would be built below the confluence of the St. John and Allagash rivers, forming a lake about 30 miles long back along the Allagash. The entire waterway, including enlarged rivers and streams, would be 225,000 acres.

Winchester Seeks Larger Market Slice

TORONTO (CP)—Winchester Western (Canada) Limited Tuesday announced it plans to seek a greater share of the $20,000,000-a-year Canadian ammunition market.

President Malcolm Mallory said in an interview: "Until two years ago we imported all our ammunition and it was relatively high priced."

"However, now that we have the facilities to manufacture ammunition at our Coburg, Ont., plant, we are much more competitive."

"We are stepping up our efforts to gain a larger piece of the market and we hope to become a strong competitor in the next two or three years."

Asked why Winchester only entered the Canadian ammunition market two years ago, Mr. Mallory said:

"It's just one of those things I guess the company was so busy in the United States it just overlooked Canada. That may sound silly, but I can think of no other explanation."

Since entering the market the firm has spent $250,000 on plant expansion. It makes shot shells and rim-fire ammunition. Plans for centre-fire ammunition are on the drawing board.

It also plans to manufacture rifles under the Winchester trade mark. It now assembles them at Coburg from parts imported from the United States.

Tax Ruling Is Opposed

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Economic Foundation, a non-profit research organization says a taxpayer revolt has started against an income tax department ruling all employee income taxes deducted at source must be paid through a bank or by certified cheque to Ottawa.

G. J. Rogers, director of the foundation, said a study showed Ottawa regulations concerned with Canadian business appear only to take big business into account.

The council says its research shows:

At an average salary of $1.50 an hour this adds a cost of $3,500,000 a month—more than $42,000,000 a year, to business costs which have nothing to do with producing goods and services.

At four hours a month, that works out to 1,600,000 man-hours of non-productive time. Add an extra hour per month to comply with the new ruling, and the total is 2,000,000 man-hours a month—equal to the work of nearly 1,000 full-time employees.

About 400,000 firms spend a minimum of one hour each week supplying various government departments with figures and reports, and some companies employ as many as six people for this purpose alone.
