S.J.C.

As you may or may not know, the Student Judicial Committee was found to be unconstitutional at its last meeting. This is a matter of great concern because of the obvious power and authority vested in this organization and which warrants strict control. I brought this matter before the council at its last meeting and was criticized because I did not keep it subtly hidden from the students. Rather, in their opinion, it should have left the matter in their hands. This was two weeks ago. At that time I asked Norbert Moran and Paul

MacAdam to arrange a meeting and resolve this difference of interpretation. The constitution states that;

1) Membership on the S. J.C. is:

A) open to upper classmen only.

B) comprised of seven members including the chairman.

2) Quorum for a meeting is set at six members.

Since then, I have heard nothing on the matter from either of these individuals. Therefore, I feel that I am quite justified in showing the ineptness of Norbert Moran in dealing with the problem and the lack of interest shown by the committee. As it now exists, the committee allows any student to take a seat, it comprised nine members of which five are needed for a quorum. This was set up by the former chairman of the S.J.C. in an amendment to the Constitution, or so it was agreed. However, I have since discovered that the amendment was never passed by the Student Union and so is meaningless. Subsequently, I have no recourse but to ask that the S.J.C. revamp itself and follow the criteria set forth by our constitution as it now exists.

RINGS

At the present time the senior class has been shopping around in an effort to find alternatives to the present university ring. Their search has produced four possibilities in addition to last year's ring. The choice is now in the hands of each and every student. There will be a referendum held next Wednesday, November 22, at the library entrance between the hours of 9 A.M. and 5 P.M. This referendum is open to all student union members. Graphic representation of the rings are now on display in the Barn showcase on the first floor. Have a look and decide if the present ring needs changing and then voice your opinions by voting in the referendum on November twenty-second.
