

The Stars Say

By Genevieve Kemble

For Tomorrow
ON this day the Moon enters Virgo, auguring well for literary, publicity and clerical matters. It is a favorable day, therefore, to put accounts in order, to catch up on unanswered correspondence and to find simpler ways in which to cope with bothersome obligations.

For the Birthday
If tomorrow is your birthday you may anticipate a year of change, new business and romantic ventures and, quite possibly, a change of environment. It would be well to remember, however, that in any business of major consequence, changes should not be made without cautious consideration.

Morning Smile

Confused

Asked "Do you prefer monogamy or polygamy?" a famous film director said: "It all depends. In my own home, I like monogamy. But for the office, give me wife and naple every time."

That Body Of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

HEART DISEASE DOES NOT STOP MOST SUFFERERS FROM WORKING

Notwithstanding all that the American Heart Association has taught us about heart disease, there is still the impression that once an individual is known to have heart disease, he must spend the remaining weeks or months as an invalid, his days of usefulness and as a breadwinner being behind him.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the American Heart Association, in a broad attack upon misconceptions that keep many capable heart patients out of jobs, the American Heart Association today launched an intensive three-fold educational drive among heart patients, industrial employers and physicians to spur the employment of workers with heart disease.

Thus in a broad attack upon misconceptions that keep many capable heart patients out of jobs, the American Heart Association today launched an intensive three-fold educational drive among heart patients, industrial employers and physicians to spur the employment of workers with heart disease.

The fact is emphasized, and it needs emphasizing, that a large number of heart patients can and do work, and that when a patient is "selectively" placed in a job and proper medical supervision is provided, continued employment is possible without harmful effect.

It is pointed out to employers

DOROTHY DIX'S COLUMN

Sanatorium Romance

Former Invalid Ponders Love Of Ailing Man And Dubious Friend

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past three years I have been a patient in a tuberculosis sanatorium. Before I came here, I was in love with Ralph, who was four years older than I. At that time, I was 21. Although he had often said he loved me, he hadn't gotten around to the $64 question when I became ill. For several months after I came to the hospital, he was very devoted, visiting me often. Soon, however, the attention ceased and I heard nothing further from him.

Muriel Nissen

I have heard that love comes only once in a lifetime. I think that's false, since I did love Ralph, and know I love Fred now. I would have an easier life with Ralph, but I prefer a struggle with Fred.

ANSWER: You need a better perspective on the problem, which you will get by going home, then taking a good look at the situation. Being away from both men for a while, especially in your home, will make things much clearer to you.

FAIR-WEATHER FRIEND

Ralph seems to be a fair-weather friend who isn't up to coping with ailing people. Since your health may never be robust again, this is a consideration you cannot ignore. If he failed you once, he'll do it again. Fred seems a much more congenial person for you, in a better position to understand whatever restrictions you must observe in the future, and will certainly be more sympathetic.

It's an absurd contention that one can love only once in a lifetime. Few people are married to the high-school sweethearts that once were the center around which the world pivoted. Most folks are in love three and four times before the one and only comes along.

DEAR MISS DIX: Every week my two brothers and their girl friends come to our house to play cards. Last week I remarked, as the game was breaking up, that one of my brothers and his girl always quit when they are ahead. I meant it as a casual, kidding remark, and have said the same thing many times before. However, the girl took it as an affront and now my brother and I aren't talking. Should I accept an apology from her if she gives one, or just not?

MARY H.

ANSWER: Since you made the remark that caused the trouble, I think a note of apology is due from you. Whether you meant it as it was taken or not, an explanation is in order. If the girl gets over her huff and is willing to make up, forget the incident.

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past five years I have been going with a married man. He has been married 18 years. I have been married 20 years. He claims he loves me, not his wife. Although I put him before my husband, he always puts his wife first. I know it's wrong for us to go on seeing each other, but things like that happen. I just want to know if I shouldn't come before his wife?

THERESA

ANSWER: You don't say in just what way you expect to come first, but I can assure you your place is very far down the line. You have a very warped idea of love and marriage; the kind of love you give and expect puts you beyond the pale of consideration from husband, lover or friend.

Stumped

The police raided a private club where four men sat round a table playing poker. They sternly questioned each man. "You're playing cards for money in defiance of the law," they told the first of them. "Not me," he replied. "I just sat down for a talk."

"You've got me all wrong," he replied. "I'm a stranger here." "And you're playing cards, too," they told the third man. "Not me," he answered, "I'm just waiting for a friend." The police then stared at the fourth man, holding cards in his hands. "Well anyway, you're playing cards," they exclaimed triumphantly. "Me playing cards?" he said. "With whom?"

Better English

By S. G. Whelan

1. What is wrong with this sentence? "Your letter has been received, and in reply to same wish to say we will be pleased to accept of your hospitality." 2. What is the correct pronunciation of "pageant"?

ANSWERS
1. Omit "to same," and say, "We shall be pleased to accept (omit of) your hospitality." 2. Pronounce paj-ent, as in at, e as in went untrussed, 3. Magnetize, 4. Economical in the use of resources.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. My wedding is to be very small and doesn't warrant the mailing of engraved invitations. How should I word the short notes of invitation to those friends I should like to attend?

A. They may be worded exactly as the engraved invitations are. Q. When leaving a person to whom one has just been introduced, is it proper to say, "Good-by, Mr. Brown; I hope I shall see you again some time soon?"

A. Yes, this is quite all right. Or, "Good-by, Mr. Brown, I am very glad to have met you." Q. When a man knows the girl he is escorting does not smoke, is it still proper for him to ask her permission for him to smoke? A. Although this custom has relaxed somewhat, it still is a nice thing to do.

How Can I

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I get satisfactory results when dyeing articles of clothing?

A. When dyeing red over yellow, the final shade will be orange; blue over red will be purple; green over blue gives a blue-green. Light colors may be dyed darker, but dark colors can not be dyed a lighter shade unless a dye remover is used. Always remember that the original color plus the dye used equals the final shade.

Q. How can I easily remove road film and grease from the surface of an automobile?

A. By rubbing with a rag or sponge moistened with gasoline. Then wash with an automobile soap and water, and after allowing to dry, polish the surface.

Q. When is the best time for transplanting evergreen shrubs and trees?

A. Evergreen shrubs and trees are best transplanted during the two months of the year beginning with the letter "A"—April and August.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

"Makes me think of the cropping—this weather we're having," an oldish farmer offered. He had come along the fields this morning and stopping to visit with us briefly, was now seated, cap on knee, in the armchair by a window. Beyond, the day was quietly gray, not brooding as we might have expected of March but biding patiently there on the hillside and valley, as one would await some event of moment to happen: intriguing trumpet-call it would be, carried out of some vast nowhere on the voice of a gentle south wind, bidding Mother Nature spread her spring shades, farmers to swing wide the doors of their stables to the sunshine. . . . and James to carry those first lambskins, ewes following closely, to the new green of the paddock and orchard.

"Yes," our visitor smiled, "you can fairly feel the earth stirring beneath footsteps now. . . . It's a grand time of year, Ellen. We even begin to forget our winter aches and pains—they're pushed aside by the thought of the spring work ahead. Not that any part of it is as laborious as once."

"I was just thinking as I walked along the fields: there's no work nowadays, Ellen—not as we used to regard that term. My, the red land that's on farms this spring and what an amount of labour would be required to go into so much cultivating and seeding in the long ago! But now, the farmer sits his tractor at it and is as comfortable as if we were seated in his kitchen, and," he chuckled, "the seeding goes merrily on."

"And there's no last to it—no matter how many acres there are a hundred and sixty acre units! In my day, if a farmer had fifty acres he could manage to keep himself—and the wife busy on it. But now, pouf! they can't turn their tractors on that!"

"No," he said, "there's no work now to farming. . . . no mud this time of year from the river, no fence-rails to cut and split and haul. They string a bit of wire, 'charge' it and say they've been fencing! They turn switches and push buttons and ride machines—if it be only to go to the mailbox. . . . Did you hear the yarn, Ellen, his laugh was infectious, "about the woman who was showing a visitor from 'up back' her modern pantry with all its electric-pow-

Continued on page 9

CONSTIPATED BABY

Nothing better to help clear out bowels quickly—yet gently. No "sleepy" stuff—no more than 50 years. Equally good for the restlessness and feverishness resulting from digestive upsets at teething time and other minor baby ills. Get a package today at drugstores.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Household ScrapBook

By Roberta Lee

Fruit Stains
A good general rule for all fruit stains on fabrics is to stretch the spot over a bowl or vessel and pour boiling water through it (the water must be actually boiling at the time). If the goods has been previously washed, or the stain is an old one, this method will likely fail.

Tomato Soup
A good insurance against the curdling of tomato soup, is to add a pinch of soda to the soup before the milk is stirred in.

Scratches on Furniture
If there is a scratch on furniture, rub sweet oil into it with the finger tips. Then polish with a soft cloth.

Cook's Corner

BANANA NUT BREAD

One and 3/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 2/3 cup sugar, 1/2 cup shortening, 1 cup mashed ripe banana, 1/2 cup chopped nuts (or instead of nuts use 1 cup chopped dates). Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream shortening with spoon until light then gradually beat in the sugar. Both should be very light. Add eggs and beat some more. Add flour mixture alternately with the banana puree, a little of each at a time, beating smooth between additions. Stir in nuts or dates. Bake in greased loaf pan 9 x 5 x 3 inches at 350 degrees F., for about 70 minutes.

As featured in MADEMOISELLE
PIKO'S SPRING SONG...
Piko's lilting fashion of Luscious straw crowned with a wreath of beautiful imported flowers.
In light and dark shades. 6.95
Moore & McLeod Ltd.

Advertisement for Phantom Coronation Colours featuring a woman in a striped dress. Text includes: CORONATION YEAR CALLS FOR PHANTOM CORONATION COLOURS. PAGEANT • ROMANCE • SAFETY. EMPIRE • CONSORT • CORONET. PHANTOM NYLONS. NATIONAL HOSIERY MILLS LIMITED HAMILTON, ONTARIO

Advertisement for Easter Gifts featuring children's clothing. Text includes: SHOP HERE FOR Easter Gifts. Especially for the miniature Easter Parade... festive children's fashions that are scaled to fit your youngster and your budget. FOR YOUR FASHION CONSCIOUS TOT OR TEEN. You'll agree, shopping for the kiddies was an easier task than ever before as our stock of Infants, Tiny Tots and Petiteens was chosen with great discretion. "THE KIDDIES' STORE" THE MISSES HOLMES & BRADLEY 159 Queen St. Phone 92 Remember the FASHION SHOW, Monday, March 23rd