MR. AND MRS. ALLAN HOGAN

MacDonald-Hogan Nuptials At St. Dunstan's Basilica

Wedding vows were pledged July 4 at St. Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown, by Doris Marguerite MacDonald, daughter of Mrs. Margaret MacDonald and the late Lewis MacDonald of Charlottetown, to James Allan Hogan, son of Mrs. Ruby Hogan and the late James Hogan of Ottawa.

Officiating clergyman was Very Rev. William Simpson. Organist Mrs. Joseph Dougan accompanied James Flanagan as he sang O Sacred Heart of Jesus; Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling and O Sacred Heart, O Love Divine.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lewis Donald MacDonald, the bride was wearing a full length gown of Chantilly lace with fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and long lily point sleeves. The bouffant tulle skirt was dramatized by an overskirt of lace with self roses.

Her bouffant veil of tulle illusion was held by a jewelled crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of Pink Sensation roses and white carnations.

Two of the bride's attendants were her sisters, matron of honor Mrs. Bradford Murray and bridesmaid Mrs. Merlin MacKenzie of Charlottetown. The third attendant was Mrs. Roger Tanton, also of this city.

Street length, pastel nylon dresses were worn by the bride's attendants, who carried nosegays of yellow tinted carnations and pink roses. Their headdresses were wedding-ring style with brief Swiss nylon veils.

Flower girl Cheryl MacKenzie, the bride's niece was wearing a frock of white nylon and carried a basket of white and yellow shasta mums.

Elmer Hogan was groomsman, and Roger and Peter Tanton ushered. All three are cousins of the groom from Charlottetown.

Following the ceremony, guests were received at the Basilica Recreation Centre. The bride's mother was wearing a three piece ensemble of pink and white linen, a high crowned cloche of pink French lace, and corsage of tinted pink carnations.

The groom's mother chose a pink linen suit, white accessories and white and pink carnations.

Baskets of yellow mums and white carnations graced the head table, which was centered by a tiered wedding cake.

Grace was offered by Father Simpson. The groom responded to the toast to the bride proposed by Elmer Hogan. Emcee for the reception was Robert Inkpen.

Honeymooning in the maritimes and New England states, the bride wore travelling, an oyster white brocade sheath with matching stroller coat, a deep, apricot flowered cloche and corsage of carnations.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Ruby Hogan and daughter, Elizabeth of Ottawa; Mrs. Darald Tanton and daughter, Deborah, West Riverview, N.B.; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Arvay, Burlington, Ont.; Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tulle, Dalhousie, N. B., Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hussay, Ottawa, Ont.

The newly - weds are residing at 637 Cummings Avenue, Apt. 4, Ottawa 7, Ont.

MR. AND MRS. F.R. LAUGHLIN

Wed At Wellington Church Couple Reside At Scarboro

A traditional, floor length gown of white organza over taffeta was worn by Barbara Hazel Day for her wedding on June 27 to Francis Raymond Laughlin.

Sequins, crystals and pearls adorned her gown, which was fashioned with a cathedral train and wrist length, lily-point sleeves. A double crown of crystals and pearls held her shoulder length bouffant veil, and she carried a mother of pearl prayer book adorned with white carnations, yellow rosebuds, stephanotis and ribbon streamers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Day, Wellington Station and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Laughlin Sr. of Miscouche.

Baskets of white, pink and yellow mums decorated the altar of the Immaculate Conception Church in Wellington for the ceremony performed by Rev. Leonard McDonald. The women's choir sang Oh Lord, I am Not Worthy, and On This Day O Beautiful Mother, accompanied by Mrs. Leo Gallant of Wellington Station.

Judy Claveau of Etobicoke, Ont., was maid of honor, wearing a white floor length gown, with yellow roses and yellow organza bolero. Yellow carnations and rosebuds, and white streamers adorned her prayer book. Her headdress was a yellow rose with rose length veil.

Reginald Laughlin Jr., of Miscouche was groomsman, and Edward Laughlin ushered. The guest book was circulated by the bride's sister, Mrs. Edmund McNeill of Richmond.

Sixty-five guests were received by the bridal party at the Birch Hill Tourist Home; the bride's mother wearing pink lace, white accessories and corsage of roses and carnations.

The bridegroom's mother chose a turquoise and white linen dress, matching hat, and corsage of carnations and roses.

Honeymooning in P.E.I. the bride wore for travelling a yellow suit with brown and yellow accessories.

The newlyweds are residing at 1580 Victoria Park, Scarboro, Ont.

The ceremony was performed and the nuptial mass celebrated by Rev. Rooney.

The bride was wearing a floor - length gown of white satin, trimmed with nylon, with shoulder veil and carried red roses.

The bridesmaids were Georgina Morrissey, RN, classmate of the bride, and Coleen Clohossey, sister of the bride. Their gowns were blue nylon and each carried white roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Earl Handrahan of Montreal and Mark Doyle of Skinner's Pond. Ushers were Willard Clohossey and Paul Kenny.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Legion Community Centre.

For travelling, the bride chose a blue suit with white accessories.

Out - of - town guests included Sister Mary Camillus and Alfreida Clohossey of Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Clohossey and Patricia, Toronto; Mrs. Leavitt Kenny and Alice Doyle of Boston; Earl Handrahan, Montreal; Ann and Paul Kenny of Boston Mass.; Ronnie White of Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. Joe MacDonald, Joan, Earnaline and Philip of Kensington; and Mr. and Mrs. Alphonsus Morrissey of Earnscliffe.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Table Is Adorned With Summer Flowers

The haying - days we have now, clean, fragrant, delightful ...Indoors we deck our table with blossoms: a single yellow rose in a clear glass, or maybe a mist of blue forget-me- nots in a low yellow bowl; or perhaps a few blooms of the single or double mock orange, flowering now in drifts of white. Their own greenery we put in to grace them. Or we add a sprig of sourthernwood, or a spray of feathery asparagus, or the misty white of baby's breath, to make us winsome bouquets.

Garden things come in now in first abundance to aid the cook. Prized items of season to lend more interest to the meals; tasteful greens to cook—young beets from first thinnings, mangel seedlings too, do quite well. Now lettuce and onions replace the watercress and chives of earlier days. "I wish we had greens" a cook sighed back in the seedtime. "It's a spring-time-wish" she smiled.

"And have you no dandelions?" one queried.

"My mother uses lamb's quarters too" another volunteered.

"See!" Peter exclaimed when we were about the yards today, pointing to a row of solemn creatures perched on a high wire there.

"Yes" Alex nodded soberly, "the baby swallows, they are. "And aren't they tiny and pretty!" we said.

"What do they say?" Peter who with Alex in play puts voices in birds and animals, queried.

"They aren't saying anything at present. But they know that before too long they will be... but let's not talk about it this lovely afternoon" we suggested.

Today brought us at Alderlea, among other interesting visitors a 4-H girl from— as one of the small ones said, "over there where the sun goes down! when from here, we settled on the direction.

She is a fair-skinned, dark-haired lass, petite, and most attractive not only in appearance, but in the smile which could include happily and with genuine interest even Alex's white rabbit, which was duly carried in to the house "to show her."

A likeable miss, this is, a nice ambassadress from the interesting and lovely Province of Alberta. She, the Island's guest for the first time, is the daughter of a ranch. She is pleased with Island farms, though naturally even the largest is only small when compared with those she knows where Canada's famed ranchland lie. When flying in, she was charmed by the patterns of the countryside: the fields in their varied colorings, the woodlands, the white houses, and later with the intriguing red of our Island soil.

She is a busy and, we suspect, sometimes weary girl, trying to fill the hours of her comparatively short stay with so much, collecting so many memories to take back with her to report to loved ones, and to groups of 4-H'ers there. We wish her and all that visiting company of young folks who represent 4-H interests, Canada-wide, and also the exchange students now holidaying on the Island, happy days here, and a safe return to the homes and Provinces that are theirs!

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night.....

MARY HAWORTH

This Wife's First Move Should Be Shopping Trip

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is a touchy problem that concerns my husband and I don't know how to cope with it.

He is a wonderful man; I mean every word of that. He doesn't drink, curse or carouse. He smokes a little, but who cares?

He helps with the housework at times and takes me to a movie or out to dinner every so often. He is a wonderful father to our four children.

But alas (how can I say it?) he should bathe before bedtime and he doesn't. He bathes for work or to go somewhere, but he comes to bed without washing. I always take care to be well groomed for his approval.

The problem needs to be settled, if there is a miracle-way of doing it subtly. I just couldn't hurt his feelings. If you can suggest a way, you'll have my undying gratitude.

E.L.

Dear E.L.: Beware of too much subtlety when trying to make a constructive point. Rather have the courage to convey your meaning. Not with blunt emphasis, necessarily; but by cordial indirection, shall we say.

In that spirit, my suggestion for coping with your problem (or trying to) is as follows:

As a bid for your husband's cooperation in your proper aspiration to keep romance alive, the first step is to go out and buy for him several sleep outfits (pajamas, nightshirts, sleep coats, whatever his preferred sleep garb is) to add a touch of luxury to his wardrobe of personal linens.

Take care to choose colors, fabrics, styling, etc., that you believe will most flatter and please him.

The second step is either to place the package in his hand as a surprise gift, or (better yet, maybe) call his attention to its purchase, neatly stowed away in his bureau drawer.

The third step (which we hope may lead to a happy solution of the delicate difficulty) is to introduce, that very evening, a new daily routine, namely: that of your unobtrusively preparing a bath for him, with big bath towel and hunk of soap at the ready, in a tidied-up bathroom, as bedtime nears. And of having a freshly laundered sleep suit on display, for him to put on after his nightly wash.

In starting this new regime, the assumption (declared or implicit) is that if he is going to try-out his new finery, he will want to scrub-up first.

To be consistent, you may want to refurbish your nightwear wardrobe too, later on. Also, one thing leading to another, you might find it fun, and a help to household harmony, to shop intelligently in a leisurely way for best buys in bedroom furnishings.

Well constructed beds of ample size, firm mattress, rightly fitted sheets, blankets, etc., perhaps an air-condition'ng unit if and when you can afford it, are items which may contribute much to a married couple's appreciation of their good fortune in sharing life together.

M.H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My brother is 16, yet he often acts like a 3-year-old. He is always threatening people behind their backs and acting tough. Also he does a lot of lying to make himself sound important.

And he is always pushing me around, as if he gets a charge out of it. It is my biggest problem to date. My parents think he is always right and would be mad if they knew I had complained to you.

A.B.

Dear A.B.: It is an old story in the human family for big boys to bully smaller boys, including their very own brothers. As for what to do, a proverb says "What can't be cured must be endured." Time is on your brother, Earl Handrahan of Montreal and Mark Doyle of Skinner's Pond. Ushers were Willard Clohossey and Paul Kenny.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Legion Community Centre.

For travelling, the bride chose a blue suit with white accessories.

Out - of - town guests included Sister Mary Camillus and Alfreida Clohossey of Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Clohossey and Patricia, Toronto; Mrs. Leavitt Kenny and Alice Doyle of Boston; Earl Handrahan, Montreal; Ann and Paul Kenny of Boston Mass.; Ronnie White of Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. Joe MacDonald, Joan, Earnaline and Philip of Kensington; and Mr. and Mrs. Alphonsus Morrissey of Earnscliffe.

Share your social news with readers in the women's page columns. Just call Audrey Jenkins at 4-8506 in Charlottetown, Gail Magee at 6-9331 or 6.5068 (evenings) in Summerside, or tre news bureau of The Guardian and Patriot at Montague and Alberton.

There is no charge for publication of such items and our staff will be very happy to hear from you.

Fashion Model Is Negro Beauty

TORONTO (CP)—Sometimes there's an advantage in being a Negro if you're looking for work as a fashion model, says Sharon Lee Marshall.

"In modelling the fact that I'm a Negro enhances my opportunities in some cases. There are good opportunities for Negro girls because couturiers look for models with characteristics which would set them apart."

The attractive 20 - year - old Miss Marshall is one of eight girls out of 120 applicants chosen to take part in the Canadian National Exhibition show here later this summer.

Sharon, who has just finished her Grade 13 exams, lives with her mother, singer Phyllis Marshall and her stepfather, CBC interviewer Ed McGibbon.

The five-foot-10 beauty was one of two Negro girl students at Toronto's Jarvis Collegiate.

"Discrimination? I've never met the problem. I know it exists and I can't understand it. We realize there is a problem but it hasn't happened to us. We're just not exposed to it.

"We just happen to be a family that has no discrimination problems."

SAFE OWL

TORONTO (CP)—Oscar the Owl, a five - foot - tall plastic model, has been enlisted in an adult safety program in suburban North York Township. Sponsors explain that while there are symbols for fire, water and child safety, there has been nothing for adults. An owl was picked because it has been associated with wisdom.
